Two bottles only of the package of your valuable Buchu presented to the Institute have been used by the children, and my patients are pleased. In the case of our little Lieutenant A. J., his pride is no longer mortified, and he is free from the daily morning lamentations of the chamber-maid who has charge of his bedding.
I feel that a knowledge of the result of our use of your Buchu with the children under our charge may save many a Superintendent and Matron of Boarding Schools and Asylums a great amount of annoyance; and many a poor child suffering more from Weakness than from habit, may be spared punishment, that is (not knowing it as a weakness instead of a bad habit) most unjustly inflicted. Thanking you for us on behalf of the children, and hoping others may be alike benefitted, I am respectfully yours,
COL. YOUNG, General Sup't and Director.

A Case of Twenty Years Standing.

PHILADELPHIA, PENN., June 25, 1867.

H. T. Helmbold, Druggist.
DEAR SIR: I have been a sufferer for upwards of twenty years with gravel, bladder and kidney affections, during which time I have used various medicinal preparations, and been under the treatment of the most eminent physicians, experiencing but little relief.
Having seen your preparations extensively advertised, I consulted my family physician in regard to using your Fluid Extract Buchu.
I did this because I had used all kinds of advertised Remedies and had found them worthless, and some quite injurious; in fact, I despaired of ever getting well, and determined to use no Remedies hereafter unless I knew of the ingredients. I was this time induced to use your Fluid Extract Buchu. As you advertised that it was composed of Buchu, cubebs, and juniper berries, it occurred to me that you had no Copaiba in combination; and, with his advice, after an examination of the article, and consulting again with the Druggist, I concluded to try it. I commenced to use it about eight months ago, at which time I was confined to my room.
From the first bottle I was astonished and gratified at the beneficial effect, and after using it three weeks was able to walk out. I felt much like writing to you a full statement of my case at the time, but thought my improvement might only be temporary, and therefore concluded to defer, and see if it would effect a perfect cure, knowing that it would be of greater value to you if I gave satisfactory proof, etc.
I am now able to report that a cure is effected after using the remedy for five months. I have not used any now for the three months, and feel as well in all respects as I ever did.
Your Buchu being devoid of any unpleasant taste and odor, a nice tonic and invigorator of the system, I do not mean to be without it whenever occasion may require its use in such affections.
M. McCORMICK.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 13, 1870.

WAR TALK.—It is stated that at the battle of Woerth the French charged the Prussians eleven times. McMahon was for fifteen hours in the saddle, without food, and finally fell fainting in a ditch, but was accidentally discovered and revived sufficiently to direct a retreat of the fragments of his army on foot.

The Imperial headquarters are no longer at Metz.

Strasbourg is invested on all sides by the Prussians, who hold the railway. General Berger, who commands the city, was summoned to surrender but refused. It is said that the citadel is scantily furnished and that the garrison consists of one regiment of the line and the national guard of the place. A stout resistance is expected.

King William of Prussia has issued a proclamation to the French people stating that he fought against soldiers only and that citizens are secure in person and property.

The correspondent of the New York Herald, who was present at the battle of Woerth, telegraphs the following from Carlsruhe:—

The French official accounts of the battle at Woerth are wholly untrue. Marshal McMahon was completely routed. The French abandoned everything and fled, leaving behind them their killed, wounded and prisoners, numbering 20,000 out of 50,000 men engaged. The French held a strong position, but the Prussians fired with terrible precision and the French very badly. Both sides fought desperately. Finally, the French gave way in a panic.

The French fleet has moved south and the bombardment of the cities of Kiel and Stralsund is expected hourly. Seven ships with troops were expected in the Baltic, Friday. The harbors of Kiel and Stralsund are obstructed by chains, sunken vessels and torpedoes.

The Moniteur gives the following account of the death of General Douay, at the battle of Wissenbourg:—

The General was from the beginning in the thickest of the fight. When he saw the day lost, after he had done all he could to retrieve it, when not even a battalion was left him, he called his aids one by one, gave them orders and sent them away. As soon as the last was gone, the General, spurring his horse, rode some distance to the front, dismounted, and taking a pistol from his holster, shot the animal. Then turning around he slowly walked towards the enemy. The soldiers vainly tried to stop him. Amid terrible fighting he deliberately walked on. The retreating soldiers, aroused by the spectacle, turned again upon the enemy, but fell in heaps around their General, who still pressed forward. Another tremendous discharge from the enemy, and General Douay, almost alone, fell dead.

The Journal de Soir says that Admiral Ronciere le Noury will take command of the defences of Paris, and that 8000 cannoniers from the navy have been placed under his orders, to man the guns of the forts.

The Figaro says that a physician from the front reports that the Prussians acknowledge the superiority of the French guns. Nearly all the French soldiers were wounded in the legs and feet, while at the battle of Woerth the loss of the Prussians is killed and mortally wounded was immense, owing to the larger range of the Chassepot. These facts make a strong impression on the soldiers.

The new French ministry is red hot for war.

The Moniteur states that the Prussian losses in the recent fighting were beyond computation.

The French army of the Rhine has been formed into two corps, of which the larger is massed near Metz, and the smaller under McMahon. Though the Emperor retains the chief command, Bazaine holds general control of the French forces.

It is reported that the French army is retiring from Metz and massing under General McMahon.

The Corps Legislatif have rejected Jules Favre's proposition for a general arming of citizens.

A special dispatch from Paris, Wednesday evening, says:—"The new cabinet means strong measures against Paris as well as Prussia. But do not be mistaken, another reverse and the Emperor is gone. The confidence in him is utterly destroyed. The French are most rapidly re-enforcing and within a few days Paris will be almost denuded of young men.

The popular devotion is for the country and no longer for the dynasty, but everything looks to-day as if the Orleanists or a republic would succeed the Empire."

Paris is more quiet.

Minister Bancroft writes to the State Department that King William voluntarily advised Prince Leopold not to accept the Spanish crown, before France made any demands, and that the Council of State decided he had no authority arbitrarily to forbid him to accept.

A great battle is momentarily expected.

Private letters say that Marshal McMahon's treasure chest, containing 1,500,000 francs, was captured by the Prussians.

The Bank of France suspended specie payments on Friday.

TREASURY RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES.—A special to the Boston Journal says the government receipts for the year ending June 30, 1870, were $566,936,818.48, having exceeded the estimates of Secretary Boutwell by nearly $10,000,000. Total expenditures, $417,433,346.88; balance in the Treasury on July 1, 1870, $149,502,471.60. The increase of revenue and the decrease of expenses in the first fiscal year of President Grant's administration shows a balance of $79,742,956.04 to its credit over the preceding fiscal year, three-quarters of which were under President Johnson's administration, in its influence extending over the remaining quarter, and was most thoroughly eradicated by this administration at the beginning of the past fiscal year. In addition to this, during that year the total amount expended in the redemption of loans was $10,364,680.05. For the last fiscal year the amount was $125,309,204.70 cents.

Communication.

THE FUNDING, OR CONSOLIDATION ACT—Passed by Congress, July 14, 1870.—Sec. 1 authorizes the issue of bonds, — $200,000,000 redeemable in coin, after 10 years, at the rate of 5 per cent.; $300,000,000 payable after 15 years, interest at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent. Also $1,000,000,000, interest at rate of 4 per cent. payable after 30 years,—principal and interest payable in coin of all the bonds, "all of which said several classes of bonds and the interest thereon, shall be exempt from payment of all taxes or duties of the United States, as well as from taxation in any form by or for State, municipal, or legal authority." Thus it appears that one billion and a half of the new bonds for 5, 15, and 30 years are exempt from taxation.

Sec. 2 authorizes the Secy. of the Treasury to sell and dispose of the new bonds, at not less than their par value in coin.

Sec. 3. The payment of the new bonds after the expiration of said loans of 10, 15, or 30 years, shall be in an amount, to be determined from time to time by the Secretary of the Treasury at his discretion, &c.

Sec. 4 relates to the payment and cancelling outstanding bonds.

Sec. 5 relates to the receiving of gold coin on deposit in the public Treasury, allowances of interest, &c.

Sec. 6 relates to the cancelling of all bonds now held in the public treasury, and some other matters.

What is the meaning of funding, or consolidating the war debt? It is not payment, but the debt with interest remains as before, to be paid or liquidated at future periods, when the nation shall have greater ability to extinguish the debt. So far, it will meet with the public approval. And the present bondholders will probably exchange their bonds for the new bonds to be issued, because payments will have a long time to run from 10, 15, and 30 years, the new bonds bearing such a rate of interest as will induce English and American capitalists to invest in the new bonds, which are by the new act, exempted from taxation.

The public debt, in respect to the bonds, will annually increase, and the bond-holders add to their wealth. And the whole debt must be paid, ultimately, by the laboring classes. Now while we approve of consolidation, and extension of the time of payment, we need not now state our objections to exemption from 10 to 30 years. Under the new act, the bond-holders cannot require specie payments prior to the prescribed times. Why, then, did not Congress adopt a salutary measure for the immediate resumption of specie payments, the war debt being no obstacle in the way?

Had there been able financiers and political economists in Congress, sufficient in numbers to enlighten the ignorant members, it would have been done for the benefit of the whole nation, and at this time our convertible paper currency would have been at par with specie, and the gold premium could not have risen so high as to raise the price of the necessaries of life. We confess that we cannot have a very exalted opinion of the intelligence of the majority of the members of the present Congress.

ASHES A SPECIFIC FOR FRUIT TREES. Dr. George B. Wood, of Philadelphia, has communicated to the American Philosophical Society, of which he is President, the results of experiments made by him, which indicate that unleached wood ashes applied around peach and apple trees, give them renewed life and activity, and greatly promote vigorous bearing. Decaying trees have been wonderfully stimulated into healthy growth, by digging four or five inches deep around the base of the stem, scraping away the worms, and filling the hollow thus made with fresh wood ashes. This was done in the fall of 1868, and the following spring they put forth bright, green leaves, and bore a crop of fruit far exceeding anything they had done previously. All of his orchards so treated, give promise of great crops of fruit also this season.

—While the learned and venerable Dr. Lord still presided over Dartmouth College and kept as keen an oversight upon the habits and morals of the young gentlemen of the institution as they required, a report reached him that one of the freshmen, C——, a good student, but rather a fast fellow, was contracting the awful vice of gambling. The Doctor was always accustomed to take the bull by the horns, and upon this occasion the delinquent was immediately summoned into his presence and bluntly interrogated: "I hear that you have been known to play for stakes." The eye of the young reprobate twinkled as he saw a chance for a joke, and demurely responded: "Your have been misinformed, sir. I never played for steaks, though I must confess that I have once or twice for oysters."

HOW TO KEEP BUTTER SWEET.—It is the easiest thing in the world. Simply put it in clean jars and cover with a strong brine. This will keep pure butter a year fresh and sweet, as we know by experience. It is almost equally good to put in oak casks headed tight. This is equivalent to canning fruit. The brine in the case of the jar acts as a heading, keeping the air out. But butter should be made well. Work out the buttermilk till you have only pure 'beads' clear as water, but do not work so much as to break the grain.

—About the 15th of June a cow belonging to Mr. Wm. Burnell of Swanton, Vt., gave birth to a calf, which in the course of a few days was killed and the milk of the cow saved. It was noticed that the milk was very thin and appeared to have no more richness than ordinary skimmed milk. And yet the cow appeared well, and the cause was quite a mystery. A month afterward, however, the cow had another calf, and since then her milk has been perfectly good.

—Here is a profane conundrum, for which the Independent is responsible: What is the difference between temptation and eternity? The one is a wile of the devil and the other a devil of a while.

—The worst yet: An exchange gets off the the following horrible conundrum: "Why is an empty champagne bottle like an orphan? Because it has lost its pop.

—It is said that all Japanese women can read, write and cipher. An exchange says: "In civilized nations men 'sigh-for' them." Oh!

"I have a great love for old hymns," said a pretty girl to her masculine friend. "I am much fonder," he replied, "of the young hers."

Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery is not a fancy drink made of poor poisonous strychnine whiskey, proof spirits refuse liquors, spiced and sweetened to please the taste and lead topers on to ruin, as are the so-called "Bitters" of to day. It is a pure medicinal extract of native roots and herbs, and is a speedy, safe and sure remedy for all severe, acute and lingering coughs, loss of appetite, "Liver Complaint" or "Biliousness" and Constipation of the Bowels. Nothing equals it for purifying the blood and curing Pimples, Blotches, Eruptions, Salt Rhum Erysipelas, Scrofulous and all skin diseases. Sold by druggists.

THE ORDER OF THE DAY.—A general order for SOZODONT. In the TEETH OF ALL OPPOSITION it has become the supreme dentifrice of the age.

No impurity can infest the teeth cleaned daily with SOZODONT. QUILLAY, the bark of the Chilian Soap Tree, an article which possesses cleansing properties superior to those of any other known substance, is one of the ingredients of this peerless compound. SOZODONT is the only dentifrice in existence in which this salubrious botanical product is incorporated.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," handy about the house, mends everything.

☞ JOB AND CARD PRINTING is neatly, promptly and cheaply done at the Chronicle and Gazette Office; and the patronage of friends in this line is respectfully solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Life Sustaining Priaciple.

The vital and the muscular systems are entirely distinct from each other. A man may have the brawn of a Hercules, but if he is deficient in vital energy he will not wear as well, or last as long, or be as healthy and happy while he does last, as the man of ordinary, or even slender build, who possesses a larger share of this animating principle. One of the greatest recommendations of that pure vegetable invigorant, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, is that it increases the vital force of the system. No medicine can double the volume of a man's muscle, or thicken and vulcanize his thews and sinews; but Hostetter's Bitters has an effect much more important. Its use promotes constitutional vigor.

It reinforces the life-power, of which bone and sinew and muscle are merely the instruments, holding the same relation to it that machinery does to steam. Let the slight and apparently fragile take heart, they may have more stamina, though far less physical strength, than the broad shouldered athletes they regard with envy. To restore, to sustain, to increase this staminal principle which, when in full supply, is the source of health and the best guarantee of longevity, is a special property of the famous restorative. It is not only a specific for dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent fevers, constipation, &c., and a preventive of all diseases of a malarious character, but the best of all medicines for strengthening the constitution and awakening the powers of nature, from whatever cause they may have become lethargic. aug6dawtw

PAIN KILLER.
Perry Davis & Son, Proprietors,
1840. PROVIDENCE, R. I. 1870.

Time tests the Merits of all Things.
☞ FOR THIRTY YEARS! ☜
PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER

This valuable Family Medicine has been widely and favorably known in our own and foreign countries, upwards of

THIRTY YEARS!

It has lost none of its good name by repeated trials, but continues to occupy a prominent position in every family medicine chest.

It is an External and Internal Remedy. For Summer Complaint, or any other form of bowel disease, in children or adults, it is an almost certain cure, and has without doubt, been more successful in curing the various kinds of CHOLERA than any other known remedy, or the most skillful physician. In India, Africa and China, where this dreadful disease is more or less prevalent, the PAIN KILLER is considered by the native as well as European residents in those climates, a sure remedy; and I write it is a most efficient remedy for pain. It is a perfectly safe medicine, even in unskillful hands. 1mdawj8

PORTSMOUTH MUSICAL FESTIVAL.—Preparations have for some time been making to have a grand Musical Jubilee in Portsmouth, and the rehearsals in this city and vicinity have been very largely attended and eminently successful, fully 400 children and youth having received instruction in this city, Newcastle and Kittery. The young are often heard singing the new songs taught them by Mr. Wight and the youthful artiste, Miss M. Tracy of Boston; and as we listen to these delightful songsters we can truly say it is unsurpassable, both words and music. The tunes and songs are from Buds of Promise, a new book by Mr. H. F. Wight, an able composer, pianist and teacher, whose services have been procured by the agent, Mrs. M. D. Tracy, who as a female agent is unsurpassed by any in the country; she is a lady deserving the highest respect and most liberal aid, and is here at great expense to herself, with venturing and unceasing energy, positive of success. Large and interesting classes of children, who will join the Jubilee, are being formed and successfully carried on in other villages besides those already named. The Festival will open about September 1st. The services of several Bands have been procured for this grand occasion, and only the hearty co-operation of the local musical organizations is required to make the Portsmouth Jubilee as good if not as great as the coming World's Jubilee next June. We are certain of its brilliant SUCCESS.

☞ A friend sends us the following extract from a letter written to a friend in New York, by a person who has been enjoying the sea breezes and huckleberry-bread of Portsmouth for a few days.

 You ought to see me get away with the huckleberry bread, now that I can eat in peace. When I get through, the plate is a complete wreck; I am getting fat over it—so much so that not a single undertaker in town looks pleasantly at me or gives a civil answer when I ask the average life of those who use it regularly, and if a corpse looks pretty, after full indulgence in some.

The crows that followed me from New York, have left for the French army, and the poor dogs that were so friendly on my arrival skulk around the corners as I approach, the very picture of discouragement.

My wife thinks I am now safe from the ravages of birds, animals and insects; so will probably stay longer, it's such fun fooling these undertakers.

☞ Sagamore Steam Fire Engine has had new boiler tubes put in, new wheel brakes applied, and been thoroughly overhauled and repaired by Messrs. Critchley & Whalley of this city. It was said by some (as in the case of Steamer Dearborn,) that the work could not be done here; but the recent trial of the engine has proved to the contrary. The Sagamore is now being painted by Mr. Stephen D. Seriggins, and when finished will have another trial, when our citizens will see that the workmanship will compare favorably with that of any other city.

☞ A weekly neighbor revamps the daily local news published in the Chronicle for six days before its regular issue, "softens" the items by a resort to the dictionary, calls attention to its attempts at wit by emphasizing the words where it is supposed the laugh comes in, (a very necessary proceding to be sure,) and palms the news (?) off on its readers as original.

IN BOARD OF ALDERMAN, Thursday evening, it was voted to notify the petitioners for widening Fleet Street, that a legal hearing would be heard at an early day.

The petition of Frank W. Miller and others for the acceptance of South Summer Street, was referred to Committee on Streets.

☞ A base ball match is to come off at the Plains, this afternoon, between the Granite State club of this city and a nine from Rye Beach. The muffin game at Rye Beach, next Thursday afternoon, is the talk of the two-hundred-pounders about town.

PERSONAL.—Attorney General Wm. C. Clarke is at the Shoals.

James I. Christie, door-keeper of the U. S. Senate, and James W. Nightingale, Assistant Clerk of the U. S. House of Representatives, were in town on Friday, and have gone to Boar's Head.

☞ A succession of thunder showers passed over this city on Friday afternoon and evening. The thunder was heavy, and the rain drenching.

Two barns on the line of the P. S. & P. R. R. were struck by lightning and burned.

CAPT. BAKER'S BENEFIT is again postponed. His decision not to run Steamer Appledore to the Shoals, Thursday evening, resulted in compliments from the disappointed, who were glad they didn't go when the fog rolled up the river. Friday evening being too unpleasant for the trip, the excursion, by request of the merchants who close their stores, will come off on Tuesday evening of next week.

☞ From Mr. John Sise's Insurance Agency we have a Map of the seat of war in Europe, issued by the Home Insurance Company of New York. The map is in colors and is valuable for reference in these eventful days as well as for advertising purposes for this great Insurance Company.

☞ Workmen are engaged in painting and sanding the steeple of the North Church. Mr. James Williams might be seen Friday afternoon painting the extreme top or acorn from a ladder resting on a suspended triangular staging, the whole hoisted from the belfry.

A HINT.—Lynn, Mass., is afflicted with small cess pools and the city authorities commenced cleaning them out a week ago, before any complaint was made by the citizens. "Go ye and do likewise," "for of such is the kingdom of Heaven."

☞ Paymaster's Clerk John S. Trott left here for duty on board U. S. S. Guerriere, Friday. He has been attached to the Navy Yard as Clerk to Paymaster Guild, and leaves hosts of friends.

☞ Assistant Naval Constructor Samuel H. Pook, formerly attached to this Navy Yard, designed and built the yacht Idler, which was second in the race for the Queen's cup at New York.

☞ The hearing in the "cess pool" case, which was to have been held at Manchester on Friday, was postponed until next Monday, when Judge Bellows will try the case in this city.

☞ The Gas Company are having the gas lanterns repaired and painted, therefore the needed light is missing on nights when the moon is hid by clouds.

☞ A new steam whistle is in operation at Eldredges' brewery at the Creek, which is to be blown at the hours of commencing and leaving work.

THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE for York County was held at North Berwick, commencing Aug. 1st, and continuing until Friday night, under charge of Prof. F. A. Allen, of Penn., State Supt. Johnson, and the County Supervisor, and the session was very successful. Abut 130 teachers enrolled themselves as members, many of large experience.

Prof. Woodman from Dartmouth College lectured upon drawing, its importance, and the propriety of introducing it into common schools. Prof. Phipps of Mass. lectured upon spelling. Every thing was done to make the session of the Institute a pleasant one.

A BAD THROW.—Michael Lovett of Brooklyn threw a knife at his wife, Wednesday morning, with the intention of killing her, but his son, Joseph Lovett, a year old, who was sitting in the doorway in charge of a little girl, received the knife, the blade entering his left breast, penetrating to the heart and killing him instantly.

The comptroller of currency has received about 200 applications for banks under the recently passed currency act. It is believed that three or four hundred new banks will be incorporated under the new law.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on fifteen rejected app ications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MAGIN, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

RICHARDSON'S

LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocket-handkerchief to a

LARGE BED SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are strengthened, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Remember and always have a good strong and hot suds.

Put your Pocket-handkerchiefs, Cuffs, Collars, Napkins and fringes into a sheet or Pillow slip and wash perfectly clean, in two to three minutes. We wash at one time, two or three sheets gathered at the hem, six Pillow slips, six Towels, two or three Cotton Shirts, one pair heavy Pants or two pairs light ones, one heavy Spread or Blanket, always putting the smaller things inside something larger or longer.

Wherever this Little Washer has been introduced the sale has been unprecedented, having sold upwards of three hundred in Dover, N. H., in less than two months; two thirds of the purchasers had been using large awkward machines costing from five to eighteen dollars; all a failure, one great complaint being, that they are heavy and no woman can work them.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

A Lady who has not washed for three years, told her neighbors she did her washing, with that Little Washer, with ease, consequently they circulated one, and the question all over town is, have you got a RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER?

Morning Chronicle.

"OWNING A HOME."—There is no excuse for the shiftlessness, the want of judgment, and lack of ambition which characterizes too many of our young men at the present day in embarking in matrimonial life. It has become the rule now at once to enter boarding houses, or rent at exorbitant prices apartments in city houses, and years are dragged along without a bright look ahead, without possessing in reality a home, struggling from hand to mouth, perhaps, to pay rent or boarding bills, until, after the best part of life is passed while little or nothing has accumulated, the whole income is needed for immediate wants and no chance is left for remedying the great mistake that was made at the outset.

In the first place it is not prudent for any young man to marry until he has by economy saved a few hundred dollars above the amount which will be needed in providing an outfit. Impatience is only another name for imprudence, and those who advise starting in life without knowing that a provision is made for emergencies, for the demands of an increasing family, for sickness, and for disasters, are not good advisers. Yet too many times is the advice given as "marry at once or it may be too late." Ere a twelve month is passed the folly of the course is felt and every effort is needed to ward off the trouble and provide for the exigencies which should have been thought of at the outset.

Marrying and boarding is with a majority of our young people the rule. Some with more energy than the others, commence housekeeping at once in rented tenements, and a very few indeed dare attempt the acquisition of a home of their own.

Now, I am not in such great dread of the "bugbear debt," as many are, and I believe that a home struggled for from the first and earned fairly and squarely, is the happiest and best appreciated; let our young men look about them and see how many chances are constantly before them for acquiring at almost their own terms, a comfortable home, and our word for it, they will regret the money they have for years paid into the hands of landlords and agents.

There are, I venture to say, hundreds of little places consisting of a house and an acre or two of land in our suburbs, which have been waiting for months for a purchaser. Situated in localities accessible sometimes by horse cars, always by steam, they can be bought on a payment of a few hundred dollars down, the balance to run for a term of years, almost at the option of the purchaser at the legal rate of interest.

Suppose a place situated ten miles from the city to be bought for fifteen hundred dollars, three hundred dollars down and the balance in yearly installments of one hundred and fifty or two hundred dollars; we have known of such instances, and doubt not that any real estate agent can mention many others. It would require only an expenditure of the yearly installment with a few dollars for taxes and fifty dollars or so for season tickets, to clear the homestead in a few years. At least an equal amount would be needed for city rents, if such were to be paid, and the advantage of paying annually a sum into a savings bank,—for we regard an investment in real estate certainly as good—over putting it into a landlord's pocket—is most apparent. Invigorated health, independence, self reliance, are the fruits of this cutting adrift from city life, and that these are worth striving for is the firm conviction of one who has succeeded.—Cor. Mass. Ploughman.

PORTSMOUTH RAILROADS.—If there is any one thing more than another that deserves especial commendation in the excellent management of the Eastern Road, it is their uniform and unsparing attention for the comfort and accommodation of the numerous patrons of their deservedly popular route. Of course, with such Conductors as make up their well known and experienced corps,—nothing short of the very best of treatment could be expected; but we cannot help feeling that the Eastern Road is fortunate in securing such competent and popular officers, and especially in having for its Superintendent and in its Board of Directors men of such thoroughly practical business qualities and appreciation of the public wants, and such uniform liberality and courtesy in their dealings with business men.

And in connection with this, is it not about time for the citizens of Dover to make some new efforts towards the completion of the Dover & Portsmouth Railroad, thereby bringing themselves into intimate relations with the Eastern Railroad, and opening new facilities with a prospect for competition on freights and travelling expenses to our business men? If this Road is ever to be built, why not take some steps to that end now? Three or four per cent. on the valuation of the two cities would build it and add immensely to our prosperity.—Dover Enquirer.

—The insure modesty, I would advise the educating of the sexes together; for two boys will preserve twelve girls, innocent amidst winks, jokes and improprieties, merely by that instinctive sense which is the forerunner of matured modesty. But I will guaranty nothing in a school where girls are alone together, and still less where boys are.—Jean Paul.

—"Where do you intend to summer?" asked Jowler of Growler, one day in the heated term. "Summer?" retorted Growler, "is that what you call it? I call it simmer."

—An exchange complains that ice is now four times the price of coal. This winter the thing will be evenly balanced—then coal will be four times the price of ice.

THE MINISTER'S JOKE.—Old Dr. Strong, of Hartford, Connecticut, was not often outwitted by his people. One time he had invited a young minister to preach for him, who proved rather a dull preacher, and whose sermon was unusually long. The people became wearied, and as Dr. Strong lived near the bridge, near the commencement of the afternoon service he saw his people flocking across the river to the other church. He readily understood that they feared they should have the same man in the afternoon. Gathering up his wits, which generally came at his bidding, he said to the young minister: "My brother across the river is rather feeble, and I think he will take it kindly to have you preach to his people, and if you will do so, I will give you a note to him, and will be as much obliged to you as I would to have you preach for me; but I want you to preach the same sermon that you preached to my people this morning."

The young minister, supposing this to be a recommendation of his sermon, started off in good spirits, delivered his note, and was invited to preach most cordially. He saw before him one-half of Dr. Strong's people, and they had to listen one hour and a half to the same dull, hum drum sermon that they heard in the morning. They understood the joke, however, and said they wouldn't undertake to run away from Dr. Strong again.

ENCOURAGE THE BOYS.—I should like to say a few words for the boys, for I think that some of them are wrongly used. There are many farmers' sons who work daily with little encouragement for what they do, and if they lag from discouragement, they are charged with laziness. Now it is hard to work with no recompense. Who can blame the boys for becoming dissatisfied with farming, and going to the city for employment? Fathers should look to their sons' welfare, and not treat them as hired men; give them a share in the stock, and let them have the profits of a plot of ground which they can plant and cultivate as they wish. The boy thus encouraged will take a new interest in the work about him, that will doubly repay you. I am a boy myself, and know something of the effects of the grievances and encouragements of which I have spoken.—W. H., in Country Gentleman.

TO COVER A STEEP BANK WITH GRASS.—The following method is recommended by a German horticultural association. For each square rod to be planted, take half a pound of lawn grass, and mix it ultimately and thoroughly with about six cubit feet of good dry garden earth and loam. This is placed in a tub and to it liquid manure, diluted with about two-thirds of water, is added and well stirred in so as to bring the whole to the consistency of mortar.

The slope is to be cleaned off and made perfectly smooth and then watered, after which the paste just mentioned is to be applied with a trowel and made as even and thin as possible. Should it crack by exposure to the air it is to be again watered and smoothed up, day by day, until the grass makes its appearance, which will be in from eight to fourteen days, and the whole declivity will soon be covered by a close carpet of green.

A CARD TO THE LADIES.

DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILL. FOR FEMALES.

Infallible in correcting irregularities, and removing obstructions of the monthly periods. It is over forty years since these now so well known pills were first brought to notice by Dr. Duponco, of Paris, during which time they have been extensively and successfully used by some of the leading physicians, with unparalleled success. Ladies in poor health, either married or single, suffering from any of the Complaints peculiar to Females, will find the Duponco Golden Pills invaluable, viz., Diseased Inability, Headache, Faintness, Loss of Appetite, Mental Depression, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Loins, Hearing-down Pains, Palpitation of the Heart, Retained, Excessive, Irregular or Painful Menstruation, Rush of Blood to Head, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Fatigue on any slight exertion, and particularly that most annoying, weakening ailment, so common among Females, both married and single, the Leucorrhœa or Whites. Females in every period of life will find Duponco's Pills a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. They invigorate the debilitated and delicate, and by regulating and strengthening the system, prepare the youthful constitution for the duties of life, and when taken by those in middle life or old age they prove a perfect blessing. There is nothing in the pills that can do injury to life or health. Safe in their operation, perpetual in their happy influences upon the Nerves, the Mind and the entire organization.

A FREE PRESS.—Although the art of printing spread rapidly from country to country, it is a matter of astonishment to look back now at the jealous distrust and open or covert hostility which it encountered from many quarters, and at the long period it has required to thoroughly popularize its productions. From the outset, the press was restricted by petty tyrants, who devised a multitude of enactments to cripple its powers, and who, by the innumerable prosecutions and persecutions they authorized and instituted, have impoverished, imprisoned, and, in some cases, executed an innumerable host of printer martyrs. So far has this spirit of persecution been carried, that even in this age, the freedom of the press scarcely exists anywhere except in Great Britain and the United States; and the freedom now enjoyed in England is of recent date.

During the present century, for the first time in the whole history of mankind, the art of printing has had a decent approach to a fair chance for development. The press, recognized as a power, has been relieved of many old restrictions; popular education has created myriads of readers; and in this country, more especially, unprecedented opportunities have been afforded for widening the circle of patrons and purchasers of printed matter, to an unlimited extent, by increasing the demand or appetite for it by the very food that is so abundantly furnished.

The progress already made in the United States, in this direction, would have been deemed absolutely incredible by the most sanguine European printer or publisher of the last century; and no man can now tell what marvels the future will bring forth in the way of the multiplication of printing offices and newspapers, and the increase of editions. The press, free at last, has become so great a power in the land, that the fears of old-time tyrants had evidently a substantial, although an excessively selfish foundation; and its facilities are now applied to such a manifold variety of purposes, that the imagination can scarcely assign limits to its future usefulness.—Printers' Circular.

OVER-DRESSING IN SCHOOL CHILDREN. A correspondent wishes the attention of parents and guardians called to the excellent advice of the Principal of the Comins school that girls should be only simply and plainly dressed at the coming school, exhibition. We have already done it, but do not object to doing it again. Over dressing in women or men is an evidence of bad taste, is vulgar and disgusting. But an overdressed child, besides being an illustration of the bad taste of its parents, excites emotions of pity in behalf of the child. Not only is the simple beauty of childhood overlaid and destroyed by the finery which is put upon her, but the sad reflection is forced on the beholder that the child is on the high road to ruin: for nothing has been the ruin of more youth—especially girls—than a love of dress and finery, early and freely indulged.

But if there were no higher motive, economy and the wish to set a good example should influence parents to dress their children simply. Those who can afford liberal expenditures should remember that multitudes of parents, whose children associate in public schools, cannot afford such expenditures; and yet they feel compelled, by the example of their richer neighbors, to dress their children so that no invidious comparison shall be made. Every consideration of good taste, good morals, good example and economy should, therefore, influence parents generally, to regard the excellent advice of the teacher of the Comins school—and not over-dress their children at the coming school celebrations.—Boston Traveller.

BEECHER IN A NEW PART.—The secret of Beecher's vigorous advocacy of woman's rights is at last divulged. Henry Ward, according to Miss Cady Stanton, imbued with the spirit of decoration, and admiring the curling and frizzing that was wont to characterize the female portion of the Beecher family, on one occasion urged his nieces to curl and friz his hair. This novel request was acceded to with zest, and the Plymouth pastor for the space of one hour, seated in a large chair in the centre of the room, remained as patient as a lamb, while, with hot irons, fairy fingers curled and frizzled those venerable locks into most generous dimensions.

With the addition of a becoming bonnet, skirt, and mantilla, and a fan, he presented so lady-like an appearance that he was quite unwilling to return to the sombre garb of manhood. She tells us also how he alternately reclined on the sofa, talking with true feminine affection, and promenaded up and down the parlor with a large Grecian bend, surveying himself in the glass with the greatest satisfaction. Beecher was so infatuated with himself that he suggested making calls in his feminine garb, upon certain of his friends.

A carriage was ordered, and accompanied by Mrs. Stowe and Miss Stanton, he called on his friend Mrs. Hooker. This lady being much occupied, declined seeing the stranger, but Mrs. Stowe insisted on her coming down, as the lady wished to talk to her about the woman question, as she thought of

H. T. HELMBOLD'S
CONCENTRATED
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
THE GREAT DIURETIC.

The proprietor trusts that his Remedies, from the fact of their being advertised, may not be classed as Patent Medicines.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU is a pharmaceutical preparation. The proper name is given and it is the most active which can be made. It is endorsed as a cure by all medical men for such diseases as recommended by the proprietor. It is pleasant in its taste and odor, free from all injurious properties, and is taken by adults and children. It is tonic, diuretic, blood-purifying, and invigorating. Enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes will find it far more strengthening than any of the preparations of bark or iron.

See medical properties contained in Dispensatory of the United States, of which the buchu is a correct copy—

BUCHU.—Its odor is strong, diffusive, and somewhat aromatic; its taste is bitterish, and analogous to that of mint. It is given chiefly in complaints of the urinary organs, such as gravel, chronic catarrh of the bladder, morbid irritation of the prostate gland, and retention or the incontinence of urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. It has also been recommended in dyspepsia, chronic rheumatism, cutaneous affections, and dropsy.

TESTIMONY.

Cure of Gravel of Five Years Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

SAVANNAH, TENN., May 14, 1869.

Dr. H. T. Helmbold.

DEAR SIR: We introduced your "Fluid Extract Buchu" in this county about eight months ago, and are happy to state that it is meeting with universal favor. We wish to inform you of the marvelous (some may think incredible) cures it has worked wonders. A man in our county, named J. B. Estell, had been suffering about five years with gravel.

About six weeks ago he bought of us one bottle of your "Buchu," and before he was through with one bottle he passed a gravel that weighs eight grains, which we now have on exhibition in our drug store. He says that he will never be without the "Buchu" in his house again. Your preparations are gaining favor every day.

Very respectfully yours, &c.,
ECCLES & HINKLE, Druggists.

Cure of Bladder and Kidney Affection of long Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

WESTPORT, CONN., Sept. 9, 1869.

H. T. Helmbold, Esq.—

DEAR SIR: I commenced taking your "Extract of Buchu" about two weeks since for an affection of the bladder and kidneys. I have suffered for years very much for a few days past. But yesterday relief came through the effect of your "Buchu." A stone passed from my bladder about the size of a large pea, and I now feel perfectly well and entirely free from the pain that I have suffered with "so hard." I attribute my cure to your medicine entirely, and would recommend all persons similarly affected to try it. I have great faith in its curative powers.

Yours truly, THOMAS J. BENNETT.

GERARD, PA., March 31, 1869.

Editor Cosmopolite: I desire, as an unsolicited tribute to the merits of Helmbold's Buchu, and for the benefit of those similarly afflicted as myself, to say that after consulting many eminent physicians and spending nearly all the best advertised Remedies, in the vain hope of finding relief from aggravated kidney and bladder diseases, from which I have suffered excessively for many years, good fortune finally suggested to me Helmbold's Buchu, which I commenced using with little faith, and no apparent beneficial results for about a month.

At the expiration of that time, however, I thought I commenced to experience slight relief, which encouraged me to persevere in its use, and now, at the expiration of four months, although I am an infirm old man, nearly 78 years of age, and consequently medicines cannot be expected to favorably affect me as they otherwise would, I have found such unspeakable relief and permanent benefit from Mr. Helmbold's valuable discovery, that I feel I ought to publicly record the fact, as an acknowledgment to him, and a valuable suggestion to the public. Yours respectfully,

D. M. LAREN.

DR. KEYSER

is a physician of over thirty years' experience, and a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College, and of the University of Medicine and Surgery of Philadelphia. Hear him:

Mr. H. T. Helmbold.

DEAR SIR: In regard to the question asked me as to my opinion about Buchu, I would say that I have used and sold the article in various forms for the past thirty years. I do not think there is any form or preparation of it I have not used, or known to be used, in the various diseases where such medicate agent would be indicated. You are aware, as well as myself, that it has been extensively employed in the various diseases of the bladder and kidneys, and the reputation it has acquired, in my judgment, is warranted by the facts.

I have seen and used, as before stated, every form of Buchu—the powdered leaves—tincture, fluid extracts—and I am not cognizant of any preparation of that plant at all equal to yours. Twelve years' experience ought, I think, to give me the right to judge of its merits; and, without prejudice or partiality, I give yours precedence over all others.

I value your Buchu for its effect on patients. I have cured with it, and seen cured with it, more diseases of the bladder and kidneys than I have ever seen cured with any other Buchu or any other proprietary compound of whatever name.

Respectfully yours, &c.,

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Jan. 28, 1868.

Mr. H. T. Helmbold,

DEAR SIR: Your communication requesting our terms for advertising was duly received, but from a prejudice I had formed against advertising "cures for secret diseases," it was left unanswered. During an accidental conversation in a drug store the other evening, my mind was changed on the character of your Buchu. It was then highly commended for other diseases by two physicians present. Incensed please find our rates of advertising. Yours, T. B. H. STENHOUSE,
Ed'r and Prop'r of Telegraph.

HELMBOLD'S BUCHU.

TESTIMONIALS.

A Permanent Cure of Gravel of twelve Years' Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

BURNSIDE, CONN., Dec. 15, 1869.

Dr. Helmbold,

DEAR SIR: It is with much pleasure that I write you upon facts respecting myself. I do not know hardly how to express myself. I have been for the last ten or twelve years the greatest sufferer in the world, and live; but more sometimes than others. The complaint was in the "Kidneys" and "Bladder." I have been sometimes from twelve to fourteen hours without water, and wanted to make water every minute, but could not. Have consulted doctors, both in Massachusetts and this State, and taken pills, I may say by the quart, also liquored medicine, but found no relief from any, and got worse the last six months. I was so that I could scarcely get about, I could not rest night or day.

It would soon have been "all up" with me if I had not seen your advertisement headed "Kidneys." I read it through and thought I would try it. I purchased a bottle, but, mind you, had not much faith in it. Why should I, when I had been trying so many things that cost me so much? Well, I began taking it, and before I had taken the first bottle I felt bad; but I persevered and got another. By the time I took half of the second I still got worse (apparently.) When I walked it seemed as if my right bladder would fall from its place, and I felt really bad. I felt so, before I had finished the second, that I had madeup my mind it was of no use trying any more—but about the time the "Buchu" was half through its work, but I did not know it, so I gave it up and went to Hartford on Saturday to one of the best doctors in the city. He said it was the neck of the bladder, and I should have to undergo an operation. He gave me medicine, and I went home quite downhearted.

On Sunday I was unable to go to church. I had not taken any of his medicine, but on my return continued using the "Buchu," and in the afternoon I had a desire to make water, but could not. About one hour after this I tried again, with the same result; but the next time I took the vessel it was the same as turning a faucet and stopping it full again. So was it for three times, and the third time there was something came through the passage and struck against the side of the vessel. I examined it, and it is the ugliest stone or gravel you ever saw, covered over with little pieces which collected together. It looks the color of a mad turtle, and is as hard as flint. So you see the "Buchu" was doing its work, although I was feeling so badly. I procured another bottle, thinking there might be some more behind; but since that time I have passed, within eight weeks ago last Sunday, I have been as well as ever I was in my life. I have the stone securely wrapped, and I one who have seen it in this place are surprised.

I cannot tell you all, but this is a true story of my case, and you are welcome to make such use of my name as you think proper. I am pretty well known in Burnside and also in Connecticut. The advertisement saved me. Why not publish more? If any one wishes to see this wonder, they can do so. I could write 10 pages, but I think I have said enough this time, so I remain your ever well-wisher, EDWARD L. HOWARD,

N. Y. S. VOL. INSTITUTE,
Corner of 5th av. and 76th st., Central Park.
(Home and School for the Sons of Deceased Soldiers.)

Dr. H. T. Helmbold,

Two bottles only of the package of your valuable Buchu presented to the Institute have been used by the children, and with perfect success. In the case of our little Lieutenant A. J., his pride is now no longer wetted, and he is free from the daily morning anathemas of the chamber-maid who has charge of his bedding.

I feel that a knowledge of the result of our use of your Buchu with the children under our charge may save many a Superintendent and Matron of Boarding Schools and Asylums a great amount of annoyance; and many a poor child suffering more from Weakness than from habit, may be spared punishment, that is (not forgiving it as a weakness instead of a bad habit) most unjustly inflicted upon them. Thanking you on behalf of the children, and hoping others may be alike benefitted, I remain respectfully yours,

COL. YOUNG, General Sup't and Director.

A Case of Twenty Years Standing.

PHILADELPHIA, PENN., June 25, 1867.

H. T. Helmbold, Druggist.

DEAR SIR: I have been a sufferer for upwards of twenty years with gravel, bladder, and kidney affections, during which time I have used various medicinal preparations, and been under the care of some of the most eminent physicians, experiencing but little relief.

Having seen your preparations extensively advertised, I consulted my family physician in regard to using your Extract Buchu.

I did this because I had used all kinds of advertised Remedies and had found them worthless, and some quite injurious; in fact, I despaired of ever getting well, and determined to use no Remedies hereafter unless I knew of the ingredients. It was this that prompted me to use your Remedy. As you advertised that it was composed of Buchu, cubebs, and juniper,

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

MONDAY, AUGUST 15, 1870.

ADMIRAL DAVID GLASCOE FARRAGUT died at the Navy Yard, at the residence of Commodore A. M. Pennock, on Sunday, Aug. 14th, at 12 o'clock, noon, after a lingering illness of months. Since his serious illness at Chicago last year, the Admiral has been in feeble health, and on the 5th of last July he arrived in this city, feeling confident that his health would be better where he could enjoy the sea breezes. Since that time he has been the guest of Commodore Pennock, with whom he was connected by marriage.

At first, he experienced a change for the better, but the continuance of the excessive warm weather prostrated him and brought alarm to his immediate friends and the millions of countrymen whom he had served and who hoped that his life might have been spared many years longer. Once possessed of an iron constitution which baffled all attacks of insidious disease, these hopes appeared about to be realized and the whole country rejoiced when a change for the better was announced. A paralytic shock, however, shortly followed, and although attended by one of the most skilled Surgeons in the U. S. Navy, Surgeon A. C. Gorgas, all efforts to prolong his life were useless.

In death, the Admiral's wonderful constitution showed itself vigorously, and as he fought his glorious battles of life with a will and purpose that overbore all opposition, so in this last great battle, which all must fight and in which all must be vanquished sooner or later, these characteristics were uppermost and every step towards the end was contested, every breath fought for until the dread change came.

Nearly a week ago, he was pronounced dying, and for two days he scarcely breathed, but as if about to be victorious in the contest for a new lease of life, hours and days passed with scarcely any perceptible change, although a gradual weakening of his powers resulted. On Sunday, he died calmly and without apparent struggle, passing away as peacefully as if going to sleep.

The life of Admiral Farragut was an eventful one. He was born near Knoxville, East Tennessee, in 1801. His father was a cavalry major in the army at the time and his mother was at one time, during his childhood, compelled to defend her house against marauding Indians. Young Farragut entered the naval service at the age of nine years and received a midshipman's commission in 1810. He participated in the famous action between the Essex and two English ships, the Phoebe and Cherub, in the harbor of Valparaiso. He rose through the different grades, was commissioned Lieutenant in 1825 and was Captain commanding the U. S. S. Brooklyn at the Norfolk Navy Yard in 1860. He was at Norfolk awaiting orders when the rebellion commenced and narrowly escaped imprisonment by departing for the North, with his family, the day before the Navy Yard was burned.

His war record is fresh in the memory of his countrymen. Taking command of the Western Gulf Blockading Squadron, the capture of the forts at the mouth of the Mississippi and the city of New Orleans followed, on the 28th April, 1862. He was promoted to Rear Admiral the same summer, and at the surrender of Vicksburg and Port Hudson was active in the Mississippi command. His entrance of Mobile Bay was the crowning act of his arduous and patriotic service, and when in 1866 he was promoted to Admiral, a delighted Nation endorsed the action of the President and Congress.

That Nation now mourns the loss of the grand old hero, whose name is inseparable from the gallant achievements of our Navy, who stood high above all other leaders in that branch of public service, who clung to his country's flag, incorruptible amid temptation, and by noble example incited others to continue in the path of duty. Of such a man it is needless to write. His history and fame are in every one's mind and memory. As well write of Washington or Lincoln, or of the grandeur of his own native hills. His noble and honored life is his best eulogy. His example will always be a shining guide for those who come after him, teaching self respect, honor, integrity, incorruptibility, and devotion to duty, which none can fail to profit by and which a nation's gratitude never can forget.

WAR TALK.—A rumor prevailed in London on Friday, that the French army had been evacuating Metz with the intention of falling back to the main line to await reinforcements, before engaging in a general battle. Advices from the seat of war say that a great battle is momentarily expected.

The London Telegraph is authorized to formally contradict the report that the Prince Imperial is in London.

England declines to join with Austria in the league for guaranteeing the belligerents against loss of territory, giving as a reason that the league could not save the North German confederacy in case Prussia should be defeated.

The special correspondents of the Tribune, and two others, were arrested at Metz as Prussian spies,—mobbed by the people, with difficulty protected by the soldiers, repeatedly examined by the military authorities, released, re-arrested, examined and finally taken before General Coffinieres, commanding in Metz, who threatened them with death. They were released and ordered to leave Metz instantly, and quit France either by Boulogne or Dijon.

Among the German prisoners taken at the beginning of the campaign, are members of the Landwehr, who were called into service six weeks ago. This proves that Prussia expected war before it was declared, and that she was not taken by surprise, as her government represented.

Paris is quiet, that is to say, the soldiers are able to disperse the mobs as fast as they form.

The Pr. Queen announces she will take personal charge of the wounded of both nations, and their treatment shall be identical.

The London Times says: — "The pride of France is wounded and her prestige dimmed; who brought this on her, must suffer for it. Victorious or discrowned is Napoleon's alternative on the next battlefield."

The German forces between Rastadt and Cologne are said to number in the aggregate 750,000, and according to the Paris Siecle, there are 250,000 German soldiers now in Lorraine.

The Bavarian army has passed thro' the Vosges and bivouacked at Dumeringen, near Saarlouis.

The Russian Crown Prince promises to release all newspaper correspondents taken prisoners on the field.

General Sheridan has left Berlin for the King's headquarters. Before his departure for the seat of war he visited General Hopkenfaldt at the War Office, where he was received with the attentions with which he has constantly been surrounded since his arrival in Germany.

The investment of Strasbourg by the German troops has been confirmed.

The presence of Napoleon at the battle of Woerth is postively reaffirmed.

It is said that the Prussians have largely outnumbered the French in every engagement. The French claim that at Wissemburg 8000 men checked 80,000 Germans, with 120 guns, for four hours, the former losing 4000 men while the enemy lost 10,000. They also assert that McMahon, at Froschweiller, had only 40,000 men against 90,000 Germans. Yet the French only yielded when 100,000 more Germans were hurled upon them.

The proceedings in the Corps Legislatif, Friday, were marked by a still more violent debate than that which forced the resignation of the Ollivier ministry. Amid much tumult M. Keratry moved that a "committee of inquiry be instituted and that Marshal Leboeuf be summoned before it." Amid tumult, an unknown voice from the left cried, "Summon Bonaparte, and not his creatures.? As soon as the confusion could be quelled, M. Keratry proceeded, and referring to the French reverses in '92, said that then "French generals were shown defeat was a crime, and our reverses ceased." M. Thiers replied and opposed the motion, said that officers must not now be called from the field to answer inquiries while the army was in danger, and thus concluded an otherwise temperate speech: "The empire is henceforth out of the question; there can be no empire without an Emperor; to this state of things a republic must inevitably succeed."

The journals of Metz publish Marshal McMahon's report to the Emperor. The report says that the enemy, in greatly superior numbers, began the attack at 7 o'clock, Saturday morning. The first attack having been repulsed about noon, in the evening they reopened the contest, throwing forward numerous sharpshooters, protected by six guns in a commanding position. Masses of infantry were then brought up and at four o'clock in the afternoon, McMahon was forced to order a retreat, which was effected in good order, the enemy's pursuit being without vigor and by no means troublesome.

It is reported that Strasbourg capitulated after a brief bombardment by the Prussians.

In a sharp skirmish at Metz the Prussian advance was checked and repulsed.

☞ The Supreme Court of New Hampshire, on Thursday postponed its decision of the Northern Railroad injunction case until August 29, saying that they desired further testimony upon the illegal combinations charged in the bill, and upon the question whether the old directors of the Concord Railroad made the contract in good faith. The court suggested that as the questions arising in the case were grave ones, considerable time must be elapse before they could determine what should be the disposition of the road pending the litigation. Several members of the court informally stated at considerable length their views and doubts upon many points in the case, as it now appears before them, intimating very strongly that even in the event that the contract should be held to be illegal and the possession taken from Governor Stearns, it might not be given back to the new directors if it should turn out that they combined together and used the funds of the savings bank to elect themselves to office, as that would be a breach of trust, but that the court upon the application of a bona fide stockholder would appoint a receiver to take and run the road until the honest stockholders could elect a new board of directors, or that, in case no such stockholder should file a bill, then the court might call upon the Attorney-General to take charge of the road and run it in the interests of the public and all the stockholders.

So it would seem that the Ring is not to be sustained by the Courts, any more than by the people—and that real justice may not, after all, suffer at the hands of technical law. Good, so.

DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO BREAK JAIL. At half past 11 o'clock, Saturday night, Mr. S.D. Scriggins discovered fire in the jail on Islington Street, and aroused Deputy Marshal Joy. On entering the jail, it was found that John Thompson, committed for trial for stealing a team from Henry R. Stoddard, had stove up the furniture of his cell and set fire to it, with the hope of escaping. Messrs. Joy and Scriggins found the cell all ablaze, but succeeded in quenching the fire by liberal doses of water. Had it not been discovered in the nick of time, John Thompson would have soon been a smoked and roasted J. T. and three other prisoners in adjoining cells might have been prisoners of earth no longer.

☞ The City of Portsmouth has at last purchased the desired span of horses for the Street and Fire Departments. Mr. J. C. Butler selected them in Vermont, while visiting there; and Street Commissioner Ham went up, approved and completed the purchase, and drove them home. They are a noble pair, brown bays; brothers, weigh about 2400 lbs, and appear to be well worth the $700 they cost.

☞ At the annual meeting of the Portsmouth & Dover R. R. corporation held at Dover Point on Friday, Messrs. John H. Bailey, Daniel Marcy, Geo. L. Treadwell and Frank Jones of Portsmouth, and Amos D. Purington, Joshua G. Hall and Oliver Wyatt. of Dover, were chosen Directors for the ensuing year.

A steamer returning from Coney Island came in collision with a sloop in New York harbor, Friday evening. The shock knocked off several persons, who were drowned, and injured the steamer so that she could hardly be brought to a wharf and unloaded before she sunk.

☞ At the Manchester Trotting Park, Thursday and Friday, Mr. Woodbury Locke's bay mare Rosa Bonheur won the race for horses that have never beaten 2:50, in eight heats—her time 2:46 1-2, 2:48 1-4, 2:52.

COUNTY FARM.—It will be seen by advertisement, that proposals will be received by the Rockingham County Commissioners, on or before August 25, for the erection of two buildings at the county farm.

☞ The new Johnson organ has arrived, and is being put up in the Universalist Church. It will probably be about ready for use, the last of this week.

FEW PEOPLE unacquainted with physiological chemistry are aware of the quantity of iron in the blood, but all should know the importance of keeping up the supply, for debility, disease and death are sure to follow when the quantity becomes too much reduced. The Peruvian Syrup (a protoxide of iron) supplies this vital element, and has cured many chronic diseases.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Life Sustaining Principle.

The vital and the muscular systems are entirely distinct from each other. A man may have the brawn of a Hercules, but if he is deficient in vital energy he will not wear as well, or last as long, or be as healthy and happy while he does last, as the man of ordinary, or even slender build, who possesses a larger share of this animating principle. One of the greatest recommendations of that pure vegetable invigorant, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, is that it increases the vital force of the system. No medicine can double the volume of a man's muscle, or thicken and vulcanize his thews and sinews; but Hostetter's Bitters has an effect much more important. Its use promotes constitutional vigor.

It reinforces the life-power, of which bone and sinew and muscle are merely the instruments, holding the same relation to it that machinery does to steam. Let the slight and apparently fragile take heart, they may have more stamina, though far less physical strength, than the broad shouldered athletes they regard with envy. To restore, to sustain, to increase this staminal principle which, when in full supply, is the source of health and the best guarantee of longevity, is a special property of the famous restorative. It is not only a specific for dyspepsia, constipation, intermittent fevers, debility, &c., and a preventive of diseases of a malarious character, but the best of all medicines for strengthening the constitution and awakening the powers of nature, from whatever cause they may have become lethargic. eu6dawlw

☞ FOR THIRTY YEARS! ☜
PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER

This valuable Family Medicine has been widely and favorably known in our own and foreign countries, upwards of

THIRTY YEARS!

It has lost none of its good name by repeated trials, but continues to occupy a prominent position in every family medicine chest.

It is an External and Internal Remedy. For Summer Complaint, or any other form of bowel disease in children or adults, it is an almost certain cure, and has without doubt, been more successful in curing the various kinds of CHOLERA than any other known remedy, or the most skillful physician. In India, Africa and China, where this dreadful disease is more or less prevalent, the PAIN KILLER is considered by the natives, as well as European residents in those climates, a sure remedy; and while it is a most efficient remedy for pain, it is a perfectly safe medicine, even in unskillful hands. lmdawly8

House To Let—John S. Harvey.

☞ To-morrow evening is assigned for Capt Baker's Benefit Excursion. Give it to him!

☞ Wadleigh of Milford is at the Shoals, preparing for next summer's campaign as Speaker of the G. & G. C. of N. H.

Chief of Bureau of Equipment and Recruiting, Reynolds, was at the Yard, with Paymaster H. Bridge, on Saturday, on an inspecting tour.

THE ALDERMEN, at the last meeting, adopted the recommendation of the Com. on Streets, to have a legal hearing on the Fleet Street widening petition, immediately.

Mr. Goodall, att'y for Cutter heirs, offered to accept the $300 voted by the Board for land, &c., to be taken in widening Congress St., if the City will also lay granite base for fence, at cost of $50 or so. The Mayor was authorized to complete the bargain.

The Mayor stated that the Aqueduct Co. will lay the 12-inch pipe desired down Islington and Congress Sts., for use of the Fire Dept., if the City will pay 10 per cent. annually on the cost—the Co. to keep same in repair. The Com. are to make further report.

The petition for acceptance of So. Summer St., which was before the Board last year, was referred to the Mayor and Ald. Fernald.

A complaint of blacksmiths' fires, in setting tyres, was referred to Com. on Fire Dept., with power to act.

The Com. on Sts. were authorized to prune trees on the streets, where needed; and to investigate complaint of Mr. W. S. Willey, of the street workmen removing wall from Mr. Elwyn's gravel lot on LaFayette Road. Also, with the Mayor, to repair Sagamore Bridge.

Voted, that the City Marshal be directed to enforce the new law punishing owners of buildings let for liquor shops, &c.

Correspondence of The Boston Daily News

A GLIMPSE OF PORTSMOUTH.—About sixty miles from Boston, the old stage road, "Down East," crossed from New Hampshire into Maine, over the Piscataqua, at the head of a deep, spacious, unfreezing harbor. Along the western shore of this harbor, sleeps a quaint town of comfortable, old-fashioned houses. Here, some forty-five years ago, I first saw living star-fishes, sea-urchins, ships and pavements. Strangely enough, I saw these animals a second time, last year; pavements and ships I have seen in more lands than one. Still I had a strong interest in seeing old Portsmouth.

I saw it at sunset. It might have been Sir Eustace Gray's sunset, that had lasted ever since my former visit. Shops were open, and men were in them. I saw a team in the street. But the aspect of the place was that of a rich and comfortable town, taking a siesta of a century. That siesta was once rudely disturbed by the necessity of running a railroad through from Boston to Portland. There is another road, too, which is supposed in Portsmouth to run to Concord. It in fact terminates at Manchester, a place that was begun long after Portsmouth was finished.

Once in a while, too, Portsmouth wakes up, and a furious swapping of jackets takes place; after the inhabitants have made a few thousand dollars apiece by it, they quiet down again. On of these occasions, I am told, they established a coal mine, or cotton factory, or cod liver oil or salt; or some such thing, but nothing that changed the aspect of the place. * * *

It is strange how many lively disturbers of her peace, sleepy Portsmouth has cast out. Her Bad Boy is counted in Boston a good man. Her Mrs. Partington is not elsewhere considered an old woman. But I cannot single out more from the crowd scattered all the way to California, some of whom have stopped only short of the Presidency. Bnd there is enough more of the same material left asleep at home.

I left this sleeping beauty, grieving over her, thinking of Tennyson's Day Dream, and wishing that the "Fated Prince" would come and kiss the sleeper awake. That Fated Prince is only twelve miles off; and the impassable hedge is the cupidity of New Hampshire men who have invested in railroads between their capital and Boston, and who are willing to sacrifice their only seaport, and Eeastern and Northern New Hampshire, and Northern Vermont, for the sake of them. Two little links are lacking; from Portsmouth to Dover, twelve miles, and along the Saukie shore, some twenty-five more. Portsmouth could build the whole in one year, if the State would let her; and the State would let her if once she would wake up and storm like a termigant. But no; she will sleep till the kiss comes. Then look out! Coal, salt, iron, cotton, sugar are wanted all along up the country; vacant wharves, a perfect habor, vast capacities, all idle at Portsmouth, some forty or fifty miles nearer the demand than the crowded harbor of Boston. Boston will never feel the loss; the Sleeping City will bound into prosperity with the kiss of that railroad.

☞ During the thunder shower of Friday afternoon, a cow was struck by lightning and killed at the Wm. P. Jones' farm.

☞ The Head Guards, Capt. Urch, of Manchester arrived here on Saturday evening and went into camp at Newcastle. They are a fine looking body of men.

☞ The remains of the late David D. Wyatt of Mobile, arrived in this city on Saturday, and Rev. Dr. Peabody, who solemnized Mr. Wyatt's marriage is expected to officiate at the funeral services, this Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the residence of Mr. T. S. Nowell, 96 State Street.

DOG-DAYS.—On Friday and Saturday no less than eighteen unhappy and unlicensed dogs (not all curs, by any means,) were slain by the City Marshal, under the provisions of the dog licensing ordinance. Some of the dogs were fine looking animals; but their owners did not think them worth licensing, so they died. The streets already show the benefit of this action, which is to be continued until all the street dogs are either licensed or dead. Persons owning valuable dogs that are still unlicensed, had better lay out a dollar or they will lose their canine pets.

☞ While we are pleased to learn that a gentleman of this county (Surgeon Thomas W. Leach of Newmarket,) has been ordered to this Naval Station, we regret to lose from this vicinity Surgeon Albert C. Gorgas, who has held the position of Surgeon of the Navy Yard for the past three years. The latter gentleman is to be attached to the U. S. S. Brooklyn, which vessel is shortly to join the European squadron. During his connection with the Yard, Surgeon Gorgas has won the respect and esteem of a large circle, both in the medical profession and among the community at large, as a gentleman of the highest professional abilities, and never-varying courtesy to all. He will carry with him much good will and many good wishes, when he leaves his three years' home.

BASE BALL.—The match at the Plains, Saturday afternoon, between the Granite States of this city and a picked nine from Rye Beach, resulted in another victory for the Granite States, who played without Dow and Fitzgerald, two of the second nine, Casey and Lightford, filling the vacancies, and filling them well. The Rye Beach nine were a good team and with their swift pitcher, it seemed as if the Granites were fated, but the Rye pitcher was disabled and withdrew from the game on the third inning, the Granites having been whitewashed three times in succession.

We noticed the well known 2d base player, Sanger, in the Rye nine, and he played with his usual success. They had more than one good pitcher in the nine, and their catcher was one of the best players ever seen here.

The Granites were demoralized at first in the absence of their recognized leader, but on the 4th inning they commenced batting finely and followed up well, making 18 runs on their 8th. The Rye beach nine were whitewashed five times during the game, the score at the close being 41 for the Granites and 10 for Rye.

In the Granite nine, Hackett and Morrissey each made a home run, Morrissey made a fine double play, Gaines was as noisy and impudent as ever, and forgot he was playing with gentlemen, Cunningham proved himself a worthy successor of Dow, at the pitcher's point, Donnell played 1st base and Casey 2d nicely, Lightford did some heavy throwing and excellent catching at left field—and the fielding of the whole nine was most excellent. They lack just one thing—discipline.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 30 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

RICHARDSON'S

LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocket handkerchief to a

LARGE BED SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Remember and always have a good strong and hot suds.

Put your Pocket handkerchiefs, Cuffs, Collars, Napkins and Fringes into a sheet or Pillow slip and wash perfectly clean, in two to three minutes. We wash at one time, two or three sheets gathered at the hem, six Pillow slips, six Towels, two or three Cotton Shirts, one pair heavy Pants or two pairs light ones, one heavy Spread or Blanket, always putting the smaller things inside something larger or longer.

Wherever this Little Washer has been introduced the sale has been unprecedented, having sold upwards of three hundred in Dover, N. H., in less than two months; two thirds of the purchasers had been using large awkward machines costing from six to eighteen dollars; all a failure, one great complaint being that they are heavy and no woman can work them.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

A Lady who has not washed for three years, told her neighbors she did her washing, with that Little Washer, will ease, consequently they ordered one, and the question all over town is, have you got a RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER?

List of Names of Purchasers who have the Little Washer now in use.

Morning Chronicle.

A Few Good Books.—By I. F. Holton, Everett, Mass.—Friend Miller:—From a large number of books of which your readers will never hear through me, I cull a few which I think worth a "tintype's" notice in your valuable columns. I will not try to say as much of them as they deserve, but what I say shall be fair.

Townes' Chemistry heads the list. I have been partial to Townes for about twenty-five years. Only in later years, for organic chemistry I have used Hunt in Silliman's Text-book. Since the extensive changes of a few years past, I have had no decent chemistry, save Storer's Inorganic. H. C. Lea of Philadelphia has done us an eminent service in republishing the tenth English edition of Townes. It virtually supercedes everything in the market, except that, for inorganic chemistry, some might prefer Storer. 857 pp., 12mo.

Caldwell's Agricultural Chemical Analysis is published by Orange Judd & Co. When I see two potatoes in the same field, which have been treated exactly alike, yield one five times what the other does, I say "See the loss from ignorance." Much of this ignorance might be removed by analyses of the soils. These are taught in Agricultural Colleges and in some others. But Analysis is a life-study, and this book renders a limited department of it possible to the farmer in the winter at home.

Mary's Grammar, by Mrs. Marcet, who died in 1818, is again published by Appleton. I have good hopes of it in private tuition, as a means of rendering a very irksome study for children much more easy and pleasant. The difficul ties of which children complain are not inherent in the science. 240 pp., 12mo.

The Natural Speaker, by Pres. Alden, of the N. Y. State Normal School, is prefaced by McCosh, and published by Appleton. Pres. McCosh considers Dr. Alden's book as constructed on the true principles of rhetoric. I doubt much the power of all the Aldens and McCoshes that live to stop the bawling of declaimers. Something may be done by the proper selection of pieces. In the 136 here given we find very few from professed speeches, and not one appears, on a cursory glance, from the old parliamentarians who "dammed the Nile with bulrushes," etc. It is curious how utterly that style has left the House of Commons. 302 pp., 12mo.

Of the Origin of Religious Belief, by S. Baring-Gould, Part I (Heathenism and Mosaism) is given us by the Appletons. There must have been an origin for every myth, but I cannot resist the feeling that the author is too confident, and believes more in his own profundity than I do. He will never persuade me that Mosaism is of man, or grew in the mind of man as heathenism did, any more than I could think that the perfect mathematics of the honey-comb grew out of tentative experiments of insects in general. The Appletons publish the book; 414 pp., 12mo.

The Pursuit of Holiness, by Edward Meyrick Goulburn, D. D., is an instructive little book by the Appletons. Quite different theories may lead to the same conclusion; very different processes may end in the same result. I have no doubt of the piety of the Dean of Norwich, but do not think his belief in baptismal regeneration helped the matter. But others besides high-church Episcopalians may profit by a study of the most important "pursuit" that mortal man ever undertook.

My two remaining books relate to the wines of ancient Palestine. Both are from the "National Temperance Society and Publication House." The older book is, like its publisher, unluckily named,—has just the name not to sell a book; Scripture Testimony against intoxicating Wine. It takes upon each of the ten Hebrew words which in their English translation suggest alcohol; refers to every place where they occur. They are supposed to include vine-crop, grape jam, must, grape-cakes, grape-molasses, grape-sugar, and (for all we know) metheglin, palm-toddy, palm-sugar, pomegranate juice or other articles of diet and beverage. The principles of the book accord with Kisson's Cyclopedia, and are, I doubt not, as correct as can be ascertained at this late day. The author is Rev. Wm. Ritchie of Dunse, Scotland; its size, 214 pp., 16 mo. The other book, Communion Wine, by Rev. Wm. M. Thayer of Boston was called forth by Dr. Laurie's unfortunate article in the Bibliotheca Sacra of Jan., 1869. It is a much prettier book, occupying much the same ground. Mr. Thayer's clincher is the fact that the Lord's Supper was instituted with paschal wine and this is, in this age, and probably was in all ages, conscienciously free from alcohol. It is made from raisins, and never passes through the hands of a liquor-dealer. There is then no reason whatever to think our Savior used fermented or intoxicating wine.

A Bank for Losings.—On the chief thoroughfare of this city I often pass a stately savings bank, built of freestone, and I see groups of working people deposit their hard-earned money. Some are mechanics; some are Irish domestics; some are poor widows laying by a few dollars for their fatherless children. But on the same street the tempter has opened more than one bank for losings. In some parts of the city there is one on nearly every corner. In almost every rural hamlet, too, is there a similar institution. New York city contains six thousand of them.

In each of these banks for losings is a counter, on which old men and young, and even wretched woman, lay down their deposits in either paper or coin. The only interest that is paid on deposits is in redness of eyes and foulness of breath, and remorse of concience. Every one who makes a deposits gains a loss. One man goes into the bank with a full pocket and comes out empty. Another goes in with a good character, and comes out with the word drunk written on his bloated countenace.

I have seen a mechanic enter in a bran new coat and come away again as if the mice had been nibbling at his elbows. I have known a young clerk to leave his situation behind him in one of the Devil's banks of losings. Several prosperous tradesmen have lost all their business there. Church members have been known to reel out from these seductive haunts, trying to walk straight, but backsliding at every step. What is worst of all, thousands of people go in there and lose their immortal souls!

If the cashiers of these instituions were honest, they would post at the door some such notice as this: "Bank of Losings. Open at all hours. Nothing taken in but good money. Nothing paid out but disgrace and disease, and degradation and death. An extra dividend of delirium tremens will be given to old depositors. A free pass to perdition given to those who pay well at the counter; also tickets to Greenwood and other cemeteries, entitling the holder to a drunkard's grave! All the children of depositors sent without charge to the orphan asylum or the alms-house."—T. L. Cuyler.

—Some years ago, in the New Hampshire legislature, a new member, somewhat noted for "pumping thunder," made a speech—it was upon a bill for taxing bank dividends—in which he attempted to be very pathetic in favor of widows who owned bank stock. "Yes, Mr. Speaker," he exclaimed, with indignant energy, "the gentleman from Dover who introduced this bill, deaf to the cries of her orphan children, would strip the widow"—But before he could conclude the sentence, he was interrupted by a laugh. Astonished, but undaunted, he exclaimed with profound feeling: "Gentlemen, it is not the subject of derision. I appeal to you in all candor, to say if it is not worse than stripping. Put on this tax, and you will drive the widow to her last shift!" Shouts of laughter here petrified him in his place, and he spoke no more during the session.

The Chronicle.

Correspondence of the Chronicle and Gazette.

BOSTON, Aug. 12.

The citizens of Boston who are obliged to remain at home are divided into two classes—the Hot-and-hots—and have a fair idea of the temperature of the torrid zone. The exodus to the beaches and islands, the mountains and lakes, has been steady for weeks, and many of our streets are nearly deserted, while the churches on Sunday show a beggarly array of empty pews. A slight shower on Wednesday laid the dust for a few moments, but did little toward cooling the atmosphere.

The immense pleasure travel has taxed the capacity of the Eastern Railroad severely, but its energetic officers have been so vigilant that this unusual test has only rendered the road more popular than ever. Two new cars, of a class superior to anything heretofore known on this road, are to be constructed at once at the car shops in Salem. I cannot say that they will be compartment cars (English railway coaches,) but I have often wondered that neither the Eastern nor the Boston and Maine had any of those cars on their through trains.

Considering the drought, fires along the line of the Eastern road have been very few this season, and no bridges have been burned. The fires which prevailed to so great an extent a summer or two since, destroyed most of the decaying vegetation, leaving little food for the fire-fiend.

Boston is doing well in the way of small "sensations," considering the state of the weather. The falling of a house on Hanover street, the shooting of the children at South Cove, the heavy failure of a trusted trust-lawyer, the sinking of the steam yacht Grace Irving, all combine to add piquancy to the days whose doggedness might otherwise become monotonous.

We long ago ceased to laugh at the sign of "Bob Jones & Father," but the advocates of the equality of woman indulge in internal cachination as they read in our city papers the card of "E. G. Stevens & Daughter, conveyancers."

The "season" of '70-71 has opened. The caterers for public amusement come in the vanguard. The "Howard" threw open its doors the present week, much improved. The "Museum" will follow next week, and then the "Globe" (nee Selwyn's) and "Boston" will cater to returning thousands who have been in self-imposed exile. The Craig Burlesque Troupe have played a successful season at the Museum, and they have deserved it for presenting this line of business freed from its objectionable features of vulgarity and immodesty.

I have had the pleasure of perusing proof sheets of two new books on subjects important and interesting to all, which will be issued early the coming season. The author, a physician well known by his works both of muscle and pen, has treated his subjects in a chatty, colloquial style that will at once commend itself to the great mass of humanity who are intended to be benefitted by this record of observation and experience. M.

A CURIOUS ACCIDENT happened a week ago in Alfred, the facts of which are as follows: Mr. George Roberts, living at Alfred Gore, having dislocated his shoulder, another gentleman whose name we forget, took him in his wagon, to carry him to the village, where his shoulder might be put in place. Just as they came to Dane place, on the road leading from the Gore to the village, the horse was frightened, and both gentlemen were thrown from the wagon. The gentleman with Mr. Roberts had his collar bone broken, his ribs fractured, and also sustained severe internal injuries, while curiously enough, the injured shoulder of Mr. Roberts was re-set.—Biddeford Journal.

—Suppose A. Lincoln had taken his boy "Tad" out to Arlington Heights at the begining of the war, and got on a barn and witnessed a little picket firing a mile off, and then telegraphed to his wife that "Tadd" had received his battism of fire, and that the soldiers blew their noses to see how tranquil he sat a-straddle of the roof of the barn. It would have been as sensible as Napoleon's dispatch.—N. Y. Democrat.

—Dr. Warren recently amputated the foot of Miss Murphy of Kennebunkport on account of extensive disease at the ancle joint. Tight shoes!

—Fred Douglass once said that you could no more silence a brawler by answering him, than you could get the ding out of a brass kettle by beating it.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE.
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continued by taken as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression, large doses should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relish the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawjeeod4m

OLD FOLKS,
YOUNG FOLKS,
ALL FOLKS,
WHO ARE WEAK, whose appetite is poor, whose blood needs iron, who are bilious, whose stomach and nerves need to be strengthened, will be benefitted by
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Liver is stirred on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the vegetable tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the digestion of Iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.
MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel to act on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect medicine. It purifies the blood and imparts IRON to it. It acts on the Liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is a most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons whose blood is poor, and who need Iron and a strengthening medicine. 2meodawjy25

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such an application may be so nourishment by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 16, 1870.

WAR TALK.—Strasbourg has not surrendered.

Pfalzburg, the key of the Vosges, 25 miles from Strasbourg, has surrendered to the Prussian Crown Prince.

The King of Prussia has issued a proclamation at St. Avold, in which he declares military conscription abolished in all French territory occupied by German troops.

Prussia is concentrating a great army of invasion, consisting of 750,000 men, between Cologne and Rastadt. The leaders of the French army are making preparations to resist this tide of invaders. More than 400,000 men will be brought together between the Vosges and the Moselle within two days. Immense convoys of provisions have been sent to the field.

Paris is transformed into a citadel, the armament of the fortifications is complete.

The evacuation of Metz by the French is reported.

The Prussians occupy Nancy.

All quiet on the Rhine.

The mouths of the rivers of Elbe, Eyder, Jahde, and Weser, are blockaded by the French fleet.

At a secret meeting, Saturday, of the Corps Legislatif, Jules Favre developed with ability and moderation the proposition that a committee of defence, having supreme power, be appointed by the Chambers. Only 50 or 60 deputies voted for it and the proposition was lost.

Count Palikao has issued an address to the French troops, in which he blames them for firing too quick at Wissenbourg. He says that they used more ammunition in one day than the Prussians would in three. The Marshal reminds the soldiers that they are now on a grand line of defence, from Thionville to Metz and Nancy, and they must hold their ground. Back of that is the line of the Meuse, then Argonnes, then the line of rivers, illustrated by the campaign of '14; and behind this is Paris, and behind Paris is all of France, with four million of armed men and a thousand millions of treasure.

The French Journal Officiel says that the activity at the Ministry of War is wonderful, and the immense resources of the country will soon be available. Large numbers continue to volunteer.

The journals notice that the public sentiment in France is calmer, and the deepest determination is evinced thro'out the country to retrieve the recent defeats.

L'Opinion Nationale says that the Germans admit that their loss in killed and wounded is in the proportion of five to two of the French.

It is said that a telegraphic blunder caused Marshal McMahon's disaster. Marshal Failly was directed to move on Limeback. He found "Ransback" in the telegram as received.

The seat of war is now between the rivers Saar and Moselle.

Reports from Paris represent that 70,000 reinforcements have already moved to the front.

The fortresses of Hutzelstien and Lichtenburg, in the Vosges mountains, have been bombarded by the Prussian artillery, and have capitulated.

The Russian newspapers, of the national party, begin again to express fears that Germany is proving of too great strength.

A great battle is expected shortly, somewhere between Nancy and Chalons.

The French on Saturday offered battle to the Prussians, but they did not accept.

The King of Prussia telegraphed to the Queen on Monday that his troops had won a victory at Metz.

Napoleon telegraphs to Eugenie that the Prussians were repulsed.

It is thought that the Prussian attack was a feint, as Metz has been flanked and the Prussians hold Pont-a-Monsson.

Napoleon left Metz for Verdun on Sunday.

Another battle is reported to have taken place on Monday—said to be a Prussian victory.

☞ Chang and Eng have arrived in New York from Liverpool. On the second day out Chang was attacked with paralysis, which affects his left side and has almost deprived him of the use of his limbs and the power of speech. Eng has thus far felt no symptoms of illness which affects his brother. They were accompanied by three of their sons, and will proceed to their home in North Carolina as soon as Chang's health will permit.

—A Pennsylvania school marm recently "struck Ile." But it was a juven-ile.

Gleaned and Ground.

A meeting was held in Portland, Me., Friday evening, the object of which was to advance the interests of Governor Chamberlain in view of the coming election of a United States Senator from that State.

A band of Ku Klux made a raid on the town of Versailles, Ky., Wednesday night, killing a negro preacher named Turpin and another negro. Great excitement prevails, and a military company from Frankfort will go to Versailles to keep peace.

A letter from Rome on the 8th inst. states that the Pope declares that in the case of a hostile occupation of any portion of the Pontifical territory, he will leave the papal domains and probably go to Malta.

The New York Orange men have decided to have their parade Monday. The regular United States troops, under General McDowell, with the police and militia, have been ordered to be in readiness to protect them.

RACING.—At Buffalo, N. Y., Friday, Goldsmith Maid beat George Palmer in three straight heats; time, 2:23 1-2, 2:21, 2:20. Lucy beat George Wilkes, —time, 2:25, 2:25, 2:26 1-4. There was no double team race, Jessie Wales and Purity having been withdrawn.

At Saratoga, Friday, Enquirer won the first race for the Kensen stakes of $2000, two miles, for three year olds; time, 3:48 1-4.

☞ A letter from Heidelberg says that when German students gets drunk, they are entirely satisfied if they succeed in getting each other home; but when Americans get drunk, they insist on whipping out the whole beer-house, and seeing the establishment properly closed up before they leave.

LATE REV. DR. STOW.—Messrs. Gould & Lincoln, Boston, publish an elegant finished little volume entitled "Pastor and Preacher," a memorial of the life of Dr. Stow. It will be sent to any address, by the publishers, on receipt of $1.

☞ The Harvard base ball club won the Amateur Championship at New York on Sunday, beating the Stars 12 to 6. They returned home on Monday, having played 25 games, winning 19 and losing 6. Their total runs were 669 to 296 for their opponents.

THE NEW GAME, "Le Cercle," is becoming a great favorite with pleasure seekers hereabouts. At Hampton and Rye we notice it is serving to enliven the festive scenes on the beaches.

TEMPERANCE IN DOVER.—The ladies Temperance committee in Dover appeared before the Board of Alderman last week, to have a hearing on their petition to the city Fathers to close up the many liquor shops in Dover. The Dover Gazette says "the result was, the Board voted unanimously to do just what they swore to do when they took their oaths of Office. We give the preamable and resolution."

Whereas, a petition, signed by I. D. Stewart and others, praying that the sale of spirituous liquors be suppressed within the limits of the city, has been presented to this Board, Therefore,

Resolved by the Board of Aldermen of the City of Dover, That we will prosecute every person guilty of a violation of Chapter 99 of the General Statutes, of which we obtain reasonable proof, and that we will receive any and all complaints made in accordance with the provisions of said Chapter, by said petitioners, or any committee or member of said petitioners, or by any citizen or committee of citizens, and cause the proper officers to prosecute the same.

☞ The Methodist Camp Meeting at Kennebunkport occurs the 25th, and will hold one week. The grounds have been enclosed by a substantial fence five feet high. The committee having the matter in charge are leveling the grounds and putting them in a thorough state of preparation.

MIDWAY (W. P. R. R.,) July 28.—An unknown man committed suicide at Moore's Landing, last Sunday, by tying two sacks of bricks to his neck and jumping off the wharf. No work is supposed to be the cause of the rash act.—Telegram.

If you think it is "no work" to jump into a river with two sacks of bricks about your neck, just try it once.—Elko (Nevada) Independent.

—Upon the bridge over the Platte, leading out of Denver, Colorado, there was a year ago this inscription: "No vehicle drawn by more than one animal is allowed to cross this bridge in opposite directions at the same time."

DIABETES.—Cured by drinking skim milk, from three to four pints per day, and no other food, persevered in until cured. Iron, quinine, opium, &c., as medicines, may be used or not, as desired.—Braithwaite's Retrospect, Part 61.

—Man may be a worm; but a glance at the dandies proves that he is not the worm that never dyes.

—The man who would keep his head cool should'nt put a stove pipe on it.

New Hampshire Items.

The City Council of Dover have voted to give the name of "Sawyer Grammar School"—in honor of Hon. Thomas D. Sawyer,—to the new School House now being built on Fifth Street.

A gentleman by the name of Foss, a resident of Durham, while in Dover, on Wednesday last, doing business, was prostrated on Franklin Square by a sunstroke, which terminated fatally in the evening.

The ninth biennial convention of the New England Gallaudet Association of deaf mutes, is to be held at the State House, Concord, on the 7th of September, and continue two or three days, with one or two evening lectures. Half fare on railroads and steamboats in New England, and some other States. Hotel board at reduced prices. Eagle Hotel $2.50 per day for not over 75 persons. Phenix, $2.00 per day for all. A large attendance is expected.

Mr. Ebenezer L. Bennett of Lee, is a remarkable man. He appears like a man of about fifty years of age, with all his faculties unimpaired, and yet he is 83; but he never lost a meal of victuals on account of sickness, never took the advice of nor a prescription from any physician, in any case during his life, and he has used tobacco (merely as an antidote for water pangs) about sixty-two years last past. Mr. David Murray of Newmarket says this bad habit may have shortened his life twenty years or so.

Messrs. Clark Bros., manufacturers of carriages in Exeter, have a remarkable horse for speed and endurance. He is worked every day in a machine for sawing and splitting carriage stock, and on Monday was driven to Hampton Beach in the afternoon with four heavy men in a carriage, and returning with five men, he made the distance, 10 miles, in 45 minutes.

The News Letter believes the parlor in Mr. N. K. Leavitt's new house is the most spacious in Exeter. Mr. L. has nearly finished his new residence.

Within a few days the Exeter Machine Works have shipped from their manufactory two 50 horse engines, two 8 horse engines, two brass lathes, one small engine lathe, two drilling lathes, four leather strippers, besides quantities of shafting, &c.

Dr. Robert Thomson, the well known physician and surgeon, of Dover, who for twenty-five years past has ministered for all the ills that flesh is heir to with remarkable succes, died last week aged 62.

At the raising of Palmer's barn, in Hampton, in the year 1800, there were eight ladies present, each with a male infant in her arms. Seven of these children are now living, and six of them recently met together and assisted in the moving of John J. Leavitt's store from its former to its present site.

The thermometer stood at a hundred and twenty degrees in the stone ledges on Rattlesnake Hill, Concord, Aug. 9th. Chains bars and metal tools became so hot that they could not be handled and all work ceased. "How is that for high?"

Mr. J. G. Moore, of Franconia, has worked up 300 cords of wood this season into 28,000 bushels of pegs.

The hut on Mount Washington called the Tip Top House rents for $3000 for the season, about six weeks usually. The charges are six dollars a day.

☞ The warden of the Connecticut State Prison, Captain Wm. Williard, was murdered with a knife by a convict named James Williams, on Sunday.

If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watering or weak, feel dull and stupid or debilitated, pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, you may rest assured that you have the Catarrh. Thousands annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, terminate in consumption and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive or less understood by physicians. R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., is the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—a perfect Specific for Catarrh, "Cold in the Head," or catarrhal headache, which he sends to any address, post paid, for sixty cents, or four packages for $2. Pamphlet sent free. Sold by druggists.

THE ORDER OF THE DAY.—A general order for SOZODONT. In the TEETH OF ALL OPPOSITION it has become the supreme dentifrice of the age.

No impurity can infest the teeth cleansed daily with SOZODONT. QUILLAY, the bark of the Chilian Soap Tree, an article which possesses cleansing properties superior to those of any other known substance, is one of the ingredients of this peerless compound. SOZODONT is the only dentifrice in existence in which this salubrious botanical product is incorporated.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," handy about the house, mends everything.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Life Sustaining Principle.

The vital and the muscular systems are entirely distinct from each other. A man may have the brawn of a Hercules, but if he is deficient in vital energy he will not wear as well, or last as long, or be as healthy and happy while he does last, as the man of ordinary, or even slender build, who possesses a larger share of this animating principle. One of the greatest recommendations of that pure vegetable invigorant, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, is that it increases the vital force of the system. No medicine can double the volume of a man's muscle, or thicken and toughen his tendons and sinews; but Hostetter's Bitters has an effect much more important. Its use promotes constitutional vigor.

It reinforces the life-power, of which bone and sinew and muscle are merely the instruments, holding the same relation to it that machinery does to steam. Let the slight and apparently fragile take heart, they may have more stamina, though far less physical strength, than the broad shouldered athletes they regard with envy. To restore, to sustain, to increase this stamina, principle which, when in full supply, is the source of health and the best guarantee of longevity, is a special property of the famous restorative. It is not only a specific for dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent fevers, constipation, &c., and a preventive of all diseases of a malarious character, but the best of all medicines for strengthening the constitution and awakening the powers of nature, from whatever cause they may have become lethargic. auddawlw

PAIN KILLER.

Perry Davis & Son, Proprietors, 1840. PROVIDENCE, R. I. 1870.

Time tests the Merits of all Things.

☞ FOR THIRTY YEARS! ☜

PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER

This valuable Family Medicine has been widely and favorably known in our own and foreign countries, upwards of

THIRTY YEARS!

It has lost none of its good name by repeated trials, but continues to occupy a prominent position in every family medicine chest.

It is an External and Internal Remedy. For Summer Complaint, or any other form of bowel disease in children or adults, it is an almost certain cure, and has without doubt, been more successful in curing the various kinds of CHOLERA than any other known remedy, or the most skillful physician. In India, Africa and China, where this dreadful disease is more or less prevalent, the PAIN KILLER is considered by the natives, as well as European residents in those climates, a sure remedy; and while it is a most efficient remedy for pain, it is a perfectly safe medicine, even in unskillful hands. 1mdawjy8

THE FUNERAL OF THE LATE ADMIRAL FARRAGUT, on Wednesday, will be an impressive ceremony. Many military and civic societies will join in paying the last tributes of respect to the illustrious dead. We hear that the body of the deceased Admiral is to be embalmed. It will be deposited in the vault at St. John's Church until cold weather, and will probably be then taken to New York for interment.

U. S. Steamer Speedwell sailed for Boston on Monday evening, and is to return with officers and marines from that Naval Station, who will take part in the funeral ceremonies.

Business will be generally suspended. The custom house will be closed at noon, and there will be no work at the Navy Yard to-morrow.

The flags at this Naval Station, in the city, and on every vessel, small and large, in the harbor, were at half-mast on Monday.

The following will be the order of the funeral procession:—

Music.
Escort.
(Consisting of Marines, Head Guards, and other troops under arms.)
Officiating Clergymen. Surgeon
Pall Bearers—Hearse—Pall Bearers.
Body Bearers.
Squad carrying Admiral's and American Flags.
Battalion of Seamen unarmed.
U. S. Navy Officers.
U. S. Army Officers.
Military Order of the Loyal Legion Society of Army and Navy of the Gulf.
Grand Army of Republic.
Fire Dep't and Board of Engineers.
Odd Fellows.
Free Masons.
Knights Templar.
Members of City Government and of the Press.
Collector of the Port and Officers of U.S. Customs.
Postmasters and Members of the Legislature.
U. S. District Attorney and Judges of District Courts.
Foreign Officers of Army and Navy.
Foreign Consuls.
Chiefs of Bureaus and Departments of National Government.
Members of House of Representatives.
Senators and Governors and Ex-governors of States.
Members of the Cabinet and Foreign Ministers.

Procession will form at 11 A. M., Wednesday, in Portsmouth, on Daniel Street, with the left resting Congress Street. When on the march the left will be in front.

Procession will march at 12 M.

All organizations will please report at the Mayor's office to Lt. Comdt Yates, U. S. N., Assistant Marshal, before 11, A. M.

The procession will march up Congress and Islington to Cabot St., down Cabot to Middle St., terough Middle to State St., through State to Chapel St., and thence to St. John's Church, where it will be halted and the body placed in the vault.

Officers of the Navy will form in the Navy Yard at 10-45, A. M., in epaulettes, caps, swords, blue pants, and white gloves.

☞ On Monday, Messrs. Wesley Remick, Calvin Goodwin and Frank M. Paul of Eliot, Me., were shot at by Mr. Clement Huntress at Newington, where they had just landed from the river. They had a few words with Huntress about a dog that had barked at them and Huntress threw stones at them at first, and as they moved on and were on the land of Mr. DeRochement, Huntress fired his gun, which was loaded with buck shot. Paul was wounded in the left leg and Remick received a shot in his right arm and one in the centre of his forehead. No arrest has been made.

THE CESS POOL.—The petition for a temporary injunction on Frank Jones and Jarvis Brothers of this city, to prevent them from draining their premises into the North Millpond, was heard before Chief Justice Bellows, on Monday. D. H. Spinney, Asa Ham, Aaron Akerman, Thos. Wardwell, and Mrs. Clough, testified as to the character of the nuisance, and its being caused by Jones' brewery. The Judge will visit the premises this morning, and the defence will be heard. Mr. Goodall appears for the complainants, unknown, on behalf of the State; William H. Hackett for Jarvis.

REMEMBER CAPT. BAKER'S BENEFIT this evening. The Cornet Band is engaged and we hope every available seat on the boat will be. If you don't wish to go, buy a ticket and give it to some one who does.

☞ The Custom House, and we presume all Government buildings, will be closed to-morrow, (Wednesday) at 12 o'clock, M., on account of the funeral of Admiral Farragut.

☞ Hon. A. H. Cragin, chairman of the U. S. Naval Committee, arrived in town on Monday and will remain to attend the funeral of the late Admiral Farragut.

☞ At the S. J. Court at Manchester, among the seventeen Divorces decreed, was that of Mary Townsend vs. John E. Townsend of this city.

THE DEATH OF FARRAGUT.—Our exchanges come to us teeming with eulogies of the noble hero just departed—all uniting in regrets at his death and praise of his life.

The Boston Herald says:—

The sad event will cause a sense of almost personal loss all over the country. For sixty years he has served his country in its navy, and his brilliant deeds during the late war showed him to be not only the first officer in the American navy, but one of the very first naval captains of the world. His modesty was only equalled by his skill and bravery. He never assumed any of those poor airs too common with the quarter-deck. His greatness was of the true type, incompatible with anything but the extreme of modesty and simplicity, and wherever his genial face appeared it gave assurance of a gentleman as well as a hero.

The Advertiser speaks in the same strain:—

Few events could so startle and grieve the nation as the death of this venerable sailor; few events could so rudely shake the unconscious belief that the people's heroes have some miraculous power of resisting death; that they bear a charmed life; that they are endowed with perpetual youth. Admiral Farragut realized more nearly than any living officer, the popular idea of a sailor. All those qualities with which poets and romancers invest their naval heroes, seemed to be in him developed to the highest degree. He was generous, frank, and modest. His manners were as gentle as his heart was brave. He possessed that indescribable bonhomie, that cheerful temper, which is almost peculiar to those who follow the sea. * * * * * * *

The history of the nation contains no nobler name than that of the old Admiral who lies in his shroud at Portsmouth.

The N. Y. Tribune says:—

The Lord keep his memory green, for David Farragut's life is one of the noblest legacies which this generation can bequeath to posterity.

On Sunday, the Secretary of the Navy issued the following order:—

The Secretary of the Navy has the painful duty of announcing to the navy and the country the death of the highest officer of the service. David Glascoe Farragut, Admiral of the Navy, died at Portsmouth, N. H., at meridian, on the 14th instant, in the 70th year of his age. Nearly sixty years of the life of this officer have been spent in the service of his country. The records of his deeds are written on the noblest pages of history, and his death will be mourned by the whole people, who loved while they honored him. He will be buried from St. John's church, Portsmouth, N. H., on Wednesday, the 17th instant, at noon.

☞ The "Muffers" who intend to go to Rye on Thursday are requested to leave their names with Mr. M. T. Betton immediately.

☞ On our 4th page will be found a record of the services of the late Admiral Farragut.

IRELAND.—The Orange anniversary is passing quietly at Enniskillen, where trouble was feared. Londonderry is quiet. A desperate fight occurred at Derry on Friday, between the Orangemen and Catholics, in which three persons were killed and several wounded. The military were obliged to interfere to restore order.

☞ Reviewing Mr. James T. Field's experience and success, as publisher, writer and editor, at some length, the Independent holds it to be that gentleman's imperative duty to produce a book comprising his reminiscences of all the great authors he has known so intimately, at home and abroad.

☞ The Bullock party of Georgia have been defeated in the legislature and there will be an election this Fall.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, } Trustees.
CHARLES L. FROST,

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.

It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and color. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.

One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds, 2 coats: while one Gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and coats but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.

The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.

The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Also, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research into Patents, Specifications, Models, works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Opinies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice or fourfold applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend a.l inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

RICHARDSON'S
LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocket handkerchief to a

LARGE BED SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Remember and always have a good strong and hot suds.

Put your Pocket handkerchiefs, Cuffs, Collars, Napkins and Fringes into a sheet or Pillow slip and wash perfectly clean, in two to three minutes. We wash at one time, two or three sheets gathered at the hem, six Pillow slips, six Towels, two or three Cotton Shirts, one pair heavy Pants or two pairs light ones, one heavy Spread or Blanket, always putting the smaller things inside something larger or longer.

Wherever this Little Washer has been introduced the sale has been unprecedented, having sold upwards of three hundred in Dover, N. H., in less than two months; two thirds of the purchasers had been using large awkward machines costing from five to eighteen dollars; all a failure, one great complaint being that they are heavy and no woman can work them.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

A Lady who has not washed for three years, told her neighbors she did her washing, with that Little Washer, with ease, consequently they ordered one, and the question all over town is, have you got a RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER?

THE LATE ADMIRAL FARRAGUT.—Born at Campbell's Station, East Tennessee, 1801. Appointed Midshipman "at large" December 17th, 1810; commissioned as Lieutenant, January 13th, 1825; attached to receiving ship at Norfolk, Va., 1827; serving on board sloop of war Vandalia, Brazil Squadron, 1829 and '30; attached to sloop of war Natchez, Brazil Squadron, 1834; commissioned as Commander, September 8th, 1841; commanding sloop of war Decatur, Brazil Squadron, 1843; attached to Norfolk Navy Yard 1846; commanding sloop of war Saratoga, Home Squadron, 1847–49; serving at Norfolk Navy Yard, 1850; commissioned as Captain, March, 1851; on Ordnance duty, 1851–54; commanding Mare Island Navy Yard, California, 1856–58; commanding sloop of war Brooklyn, Home Squadron, 1859–60; waiting orders, 1861; commissioned as Rear Admiral, July 16th, 1862; as Vice Admiral December 21st, 1864; as Admiral, July 25th, 1866. He has had twenty-five years' sea service; eighteen years' shore duty, and has been fourteen years unemployed.

The name of David Glascoe Farragut is one of the most famous in the annals of the United States Navy. When a boy of nine years, his father procured him an appointment as Midshipman, and his first cruise was in the frigate Essex, Commodore Porter. While serving in the Essex he participated in the engagement which resulted in the capture of H. M. ship Alert. On March 28th, 1814, after a desperate and bloody fight of three hours, the frigate Essex was captured in the Bay of Valparaiso by H. M. ships Phœbe, of thirty-six guns, and Cherub, of twenty-eight guns.

Midshipman Farragut, twelve years of age, was wounded, the only wound he ever received, being knocked down the hatch by a falling man, and severely bruised. In his official report to the Secretary of the Navy, Commodore Porter made special and honorable mention of the lad, saying with appropriate regret that "the boy was too young for promotion."

Under Commodore Porter, in the West Indies, Midshipman Farragut took part in the attack on the rendezvous of pirates, at Cape Cruz, on the south side of the Island of Cuba, July 23, 1823. The United States naval force consisted of the schooner Grey-Hound, Lieut. Com. L. Kearney, and the schooner Beagle, Lieut. Com. L. S. Newton. The attack lasted twelve hours. The boats of the pirates were captured and their village burned.

From this time, for nearly forty years, he was sailing about the world, or quietly serving at different naval stations; and at long intervals, rising by seniority from grade to grade.

When the Rebellion began, Captain Farragut was sixty years of age, and had been in the service forty-eight years. He was living at Norfolk, Virginia, where he had married, and being a native of the South, it was hoped by the rebels that he would cast his fortunes with the seceding States. His firm determination to remain true to the flag, called forth no unmeaning threats. He was plainly informed that it would not be safe for him to remain in the South with the sentiments he held. He left Norfolk on the 18th of April, 1861, the night before the burning of the Navy Yard and government vessels.

Captain Farragut's first appointment during the Rebellion was to the command of the naval expedition organized for the capture of the city of New Orleans. His orders reached him January 20, 1862, and on the 3d of February following he sailed from Hampton Roads, in his famous flagship Hartford, for Ship Island, which place the fleet reached in safety, and there made the final preparations for the attack on the defences of New Orleans. These defences consisted of Forts Jackson and St. Philip, mounting 120 guns of long range and heavy calibre, a fleet of 20 armed steamers, and four powerful iron-clad rams, one of them of 4000 tons, with a battery of 16 heavy guns, and, in addition, chains, rafts, and fire-ships. On the 24th of April, Farragut attacked and passed the forts, encountered and destroyed the rebel fleet, under J. K. Mitchell, and ascended the Mississippi River. On the 25th, he attacked the Chalmette batteries, on both sides of the river, three miles below New Orleans, drove the enemy from their guns, captured the forts, and the same day took possession of the city.

June 24th, 1863, the Admiral, with his fleet, passed Grand Gulf; on the 28th commenced the attack upon, and passed Vicksburg and its surrounding batteries. On the 16th of July, to the mortification of the Admiral, the rebel iron-clad ram Arkansas made its appearance, having escaped out of the Yazoo River, passed through the fleet exchanging shots, and reached the cover of the Vicksburg batteries. At 7 P. M. the fleet passed down the river, engaging the batteries and ram at Vicksburg. The army having failed to co-operate with the fleet, and Farragut not having a sufficient force to make a land attack on Vicksburg, he was compelled to proceed to New Orleans, as it had become necessary to repair most of the vessels of his squadron. In March, 1863, Farragut was ordered to open communication with Rear Admiral Porter, of the Mississippi Squadron, and General Grant, both of whom were operating against Vicksburg. He therefore moved up in strong force from Baton Rouge, and on March 14th the fleet attempted to pass the batteries at Port Hudson, but only the flag-ship Hartford and the Albatross were successful. With these he succeeded in approaching Vicksburg, and in communicating with Rear Admiral Porter across the Peninsula.

This gallant act of Rear Admiral Farragut being effected, the navy had command of the river between Vicksburg and Port Hudson, and was enabled to establish a blockade of Red River, and thus intercept the supplies from Texas destined for the rebel armies. This accomplished, the Admiral left his flagship, the Hartford, and returning below, by way of the Atchafalaya, he resumed operations for a final assault on Port Hudson.

May 24th he engaged the batteries at Port Hudson, and from that time until July 9th, when the garrison surrendered, he gallantly and efficiently co-operated with the army in its investment of the place. The river being now open, Farragut turned over to Rear Admiral Porter the entire control of the western waters above New Orleans. Deeming that his long service and useful labors of eighteen months entitled this gallant officer to special consideration, the department tendered him a leave of absence, which he accepted.

August 5, 1864, the fleet under Rear Admiral Farragut passed the forts at the entrance of Mobile Bay, and engaged the rebel iron-clad Tennessee and her consorts. After a desperate fight of several hours duration, the rebel fleet surrendered to the United States naval forces, and the fall of Mobile became a mere question of time. Fort Powell was blown up August 6, Fort Gaines surrendered August 8, and Fort Morgan August 23.

In September, 1864, Vice Admiral Farragut was offered the command of the naval expedition then fitting out to attack the defences of Wilmington, North Carolina; but impaired health obliged him to decline. In the summer of 1867, Admiral Farragut was ordered to the command of the European squadron. He sailed from Brooklyn, N. Y., in the frigate Franklin, in 1867, and returned to the United States in the fall of 1868. During this cruise Admiral Farragut was everywhere received with respect and courtesy. The crowned heads and titled nobility of Europe seemed to vie with their humblest subjects in doing honor to this noble specimen of the American naval officer. — From "Records of Living Officers of the United States Navy and Marine Corps," 1870.

THE GATE-KEEPER'S DAUGHTER.—The indiscretion of a French journal, in announcing the morganatic marriage of the King of Italy upon what he believed would at once be his nuptial and mortuary couch, revives the scandal and the romance of Victor Emanuel's private life, which was well known in Europe, but of which few in America were cognizant. The lady whom the penitent monarch so tardily made "an honest woman," but whom he did not make the Queen of Italy, is no other than she who, when she first met Victor Emanuel, was the pretty daughter of a gate-keeper in Sardinia.

He was then but a prince and not a sovereign; but the difference of station between the two was then deemed too great to be bridged over by a marriage. Nevertheless, they loved, and ere long she became his wife in something of the same fashion as that described in the recent divorce case of Bissell vs. Bissell—no priest blessing the union, and both parties probably cursing the cruel fate which compelled them to sin or else be miserable.

It is said that, when Victor Emanuel was told that he must marry the daughter of the Archduke of Austria, he insisted that it should be understood that his connection with the gate-keeper's daughter, who in the interim had been provided with every facility for the improvement of education, should not be broken off; and that this arrangement was consented to by all parties concerned. If this be true, it can be easily imagined that the wife was not much more contented than the mistress, and that in neither of Victor Emanuel's homes was there perfect peace. However, that is a fortune to which men other than princes are subject.

"Peace, sometimes wandering lays her head
On regal couch, in captive's den;
But nowhere finds she rest with men,
Save only with the dead."

And there is no reason to believe that, notwithstanding Victor Emanuel's reputation for indiscriminate gallantry, he remained faithful in heart to his first love, and that in the society of his peasant mistress, whose influence over him never abated, he enjoyed all the happiness which one in his peculiar situation could expect. Five children were the fruit of his marriage, and seven others were born to him by his mistress. When, after a few years, his Queen died, it was in the power of the King to at least make the partial reparation which he now has done.

But it seems that it was not until he was brought face to face with death that he consented to do so, and the fact that the announcement of his morganatic marriage is coupled with the report that his abdication is about to follow, indicates most probably that the anger of his legitimate children has been aroused by what they may consider an insult to the memory of their dead mother, and that they have enlisted on their side a sufficient popular sympathy to make the situation of their father a very unpleasant one.

A morganatic marriage is one in which it is stipulated that the wife and her children shall not enjoy the rank nor inherit the possessions of the husband; but, Prince Humber, who perhaps was disappointed by the failure of his father to die the other day, may not unreasonably object to being compelled to recognize the children of a gate keeper's daughter as his brothers and sisters.

New Hampshire Items.

At Concord, at 10 o'clock Thursday night a large and beautiful meteor made its appearance in the north east. Starting from a point near the zenith, it fell about thirty degrees and vanished. The light from it was so brilliant as to penetrate through the foliage of the trees as distinctly as sunlight and to cast a shadow across places in the moonlight. It appeared like one of the balls of a large Roman candle. After an interval of about three minutes from its disappearance, there was a heavy report like the firing of a large cannon. It must, therefore, have been from thirty to forty miles distant. Other observations may determine its exact locality and distance. It was also seen by a party down river, near whales'-back Lighthouse.

In the S. J. Court, at Manchester, Law Term, a case from Coos County, of Ray vs. Adams, claim for services rendered to his wife of defendant in defending her against a libel for divorce for adultery. An allowance was made by the court during the trial, and paid to Mr. Ray by the defendant. This suit is for additional charges, and is based on the claim of legal liability, and not on any promise. Held, that the husband is not legally liable in such a case.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for such case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Retention, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression, a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawje16eod3m

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1870.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.—The rumors from the seat of war, and the conflicting reports from French and German sources, are summarized by the Boston Advertiser of Tuesday morning, as follows:—

The feature of the news this morning is the report of a four hours' battle near Metz on Sunday, in which Napoleon says the Prussians were repulsed, while King William says his troops won another victory, and a special correspondent at Carlshrue says the French were defeated and thoroughly routed. It appears from the different reports, that while the French were crossing from Metz to the left side of the Moselle, they were attacked by a portion of the Prussian army. That it was a favorable time for an attack is clear, but from the conflicting reports it is not possible to determine whether the Prussians allowed a sufficient portion of the enemy to cross, to leave the remnant weak enough to be overpowered. There are rumors that the battle was renewed on Monday, but with what result is not definitely known, although the indications are that the French were defeated. The Emperor and Prince Imperial are at Verdun. In Paris, Sunday, there was a riot of considerable importance, but the police and soldiers quelled it. Disorders in other cities of the Empire are also reported.

The New York World has news of a battle fought before Metz in which the Prussians were victorious, and also of a severe repulse sustained by the Prussians in an attempt to prevent the crossing of the Moselle by the French.

The main body of the French Army is moving to the Meuse and toward Chalons. Their whole position is most critical and it will be very difficult for them to retrieve themselves. The Prussians are believed to have now nearly one million of soldiers in the field.

The British army is rapidly recruiting, and at the clubs and elsewhere the feeling is hourly gaining ground that Europe is in danger from the military preponderance of Germany, and that England must be prepared to maintain her traditional policy of keeping the North Sea out of the control of any preponderating military power whatever.

The French loss at Metz was 4000.

The second contest resulted in the repulse of the Prussians in an almost hand-to-hand encounter on the walls of the outer line of the works. The Prussians, though stubbornly contesting their ground, were beaten off by the French masses.

The London Daily News has a telegraphic despatch which says that a great battle was fought Monday, and the whole line of the German army was defeated.

The latest news is as follows: The French defeat is confirmed; Fortress Marshall, near Saverne, has surrendered to the Prussians with 60 cannon. Paris is wild over a supposed victory.

☞ There is to be an excursion to Wells Beach next Sunday in Steamer Appledore.

S. J. COURT. Law Term.—At Manchester, Aug. 11th. All the judges were present, Chief Justice Bellows presiding. Among the cases decided, we note the following for Rockingham County, from the report of the Concord Monitor:—

Janvrin v. Fogg. Held (opinion by Sargent J.) that a mortgage of personal property, followed by possession under the mortgage, can not be treated as creating a pledge, in case the mortgage was invalid, unless such an agreement was made at the time of making the mortgage could be stamped on payment of penalty, and as on a new trial no new question of fact could be submitted to the jury in spite of the erroneous rulings, the verdict should not be set aside, if the mortgage was presented at the trial term properly stamped, and the penalty to the United States paid or remitted. The court declined to decide whether the want of stamps rendered an instrument illegal or not, notwithstanding the Supreme Court of Massachusetts has held that it is no part of the duty of a State court to enforce the United States stamp laws.

Marston v. LeFavour & als. (Foster J.)—Bill in equity for conveyance of land deeded in alleged secret trust by complainant, to father of defendants, who is dead. The only evidence to sustain the bill was that of the complainant, which the court decided would not be received, as the other party to the transaction is dead.

Belknap vs. Boston & Maine Railroad.—Trespass for ejectment from the cars. Plaintiff had an excursion ticket good for one day, and came to the cars and found them crowded, and so concluded to remain till the morning and did remain till the second train on the next day. He then offered the ticket, which was refused, and he was put out of the cars by force, refusing to go on request. Plaintiff returned to Boston, and after seeing the Superintendent, returned on the next train on his ticket, having actually lost three hours' time only. In addition, the amount ($435) awarded for actually damage, exemplary damages ($1200) were given to the plaintiff by the jury at the trial.

It was excepted that these damages were excessive, and that the verdict should be set aside. The court held (opinion by Sargent J.), that the damages were excessive, and that it was evident that the jury was effected by some prejudice, and that the verdict should be set aside. An option, however, was given to the plaintiff to accept $200, which the court thought reasonable, in place of a new trial, and which was the verdict in a former trial, which was set aside for an informality.

State vs. Lincoln. (Opinion by Foster J.) There were two counts in the indictment, one for obtaining money by representations that he was an agent for collecting certain debts, and the other that he was such agent and embezzled the money. The indictment was claimed to be bad, because one was for a felony and one for a misdemeanor, and that to defend against one count, he must admit the other. To prevent this, was the object of the Solicitor in joining the counts. The distinction between the felonies and misdemeanors is not so clear in and this case, but the rule laid down by the text books sustains the view taken by the defendant who is placed in no jeopardy, and the motion to quash is denied.

A PUBLIC ANNOYANCE.—Loud complaints have been made for a long time, as to the non-connection at Great Falls, of the trains of the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway Road and the Great Falls Branch of the Boston & Maine Railroad, whose passenger stations are about twenty rods apart and connected with each other by continuous rail. A wrangle has arisen between the roads, and the arrangements hitherto existing ceased, by which quarrel passengers have had to get from one station to another, and get on the other train, as they could. The inconvenience is a serious one, and though the Railroad Commissioners made a report on the subject in season for the consideration of the late Legislature, railroad matters of another character engrossed public and Legislative attention so much that the matter was not acted on.—Concord Patriot.

This Chronicle has been accused of siding unfairly against the B. & M. Road, in its differences with the Eastern Road. Now we should like to know, which is responsible for taking up the connecting rails at Rochester; as they were taken up several years ago and if we don't denounce the authors of this outrage on the public, then we don't know ourself, that's all. This is no new thing, we know,—the lack of connection and co-operation between the two lines; but none the less is it an outrage, for all that. Railroads are especially the people's property, and no railroad kings of any sort have any right to own or run them except for the public interest. We have always understood that the B. & M. Road was at fault in this matter, but we are open to conviction,—and at any rate, we hope the next Legislature will compel them to connect both rails and trains.

☞ Maj. B. B. French, a native of New Hampshire, died at his residence in Washington, Friday, aged 70. Maj. French has been a resident of Washington forty years. He was formerly Reading Clerk, afterwards Clerk of the House, and subsequently Commissioner of Public Buildings, but was more widely known in connection with the Masonic fraternity.

—A bird that goes with the wind—the weathercock.

WOULD-BE MUDICIDE.—The Rockland Free Press says that a few nights since Mrs. Elliot of Thomaston, Me., a widow lady, in a depressed state of mind, attempted suicide by jumping off one of the wharves, but the tide was out, and she landed fast in the flats, where the sticky mud held her a prisoner. She finally made an outcry, and was relieved by some person who heard her.

—Lost, stolen, or mislaid,—a French Prince, 14 years of age, of tranquil temperament, wears red trowsers, and carries a bullet in his pocket. Was last seen going home from a baptism of fire. Is supposed at Paris to be in Metz; is supposed at Metz to be in Paris; is supposed at other places to be in London. Any information concerning him will be received with the greatest indifference by the Corps Legislatif.—N. Y. Tribune.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Life Sustaining Principle.

The vital and the muscular systems are entirely distinct from each other. A man may have the brawn of a Hercules, but if he is deficient in vital energy he will not wear as well, or last as long, or be as healthy and happy while he does last, as the man of ordinary, or even slender build, who possesses a larger share of this animating principle. One of the greatest recommendations of that pure vegetable invigorant, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, is that it increases the vital force of the system. No medicine can give a feeble volume of a whole muscle, thicken and vulcanize his thews and sinews; but Hostetter's Bitters has an effect much more important. Its use promotes constitutional vigor.

It reinforces the life-power, of which bone and sinew and muscle are merely the instruments, holding the same relation to it that machinery does to steam. Let the slight and apparently fragile take heart, they may have more stamina, though far less physical strength, than the broad shouldered athletes they regard with envy. To restore, to sustain, to increase this staminal principle which, when in full supply, is the source of health, the best guarantee of longevity, is a special property of the famous restorative. It is not only a specific for dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent fevers, constipation, &c., but a preventive of all diseases of a malarious character, but the best of all medicines for strengthening the constitution and awakening the powers of nature, from whatever cause they may have become lethargic. aug8dawlw

DRY GOODS NOTICE.

☞ ON OR BEFORE October 1st, 1870, I shall withdraw from the firm now transacting business under the name and style of STEPHEN H. SIMES & Co., as it will be for the interest of both partners to reduce the Stock to as low a point as possible, without breaking up the usual good assortment, the Goods now on hand, or that may be received, (equal in quality and style to any to be found in New Hampshire) will be offered low.

With gratitude to very many kind friends who for a long series of years have honored me with their continuous patronage and to the public generally, I respectfully solicit a continuance.

All persons having demands against me will please present them for payment, and those indebted to the firm for goods purchased previous to January 1st, 1870, are respectfully requested to settle, as early as possible after this date. jy7

FARRAGUT.

Grand in his dreamless sleep our Admiral lies;
The brave heart still, so fondly loved and blest;
The light gone forth from those prophetic eyes,
The guiding hand at rest.

His star in glory set—his great work done;—
Muffle the drum, and toll the solemn bell;
And let the deep voice of the minute-gun
A people's sorrow tell.

A friend who failed not in the darkest hour;
A valiant soul who at his Country's call
Battled with Treason born of lust and power,
And triumphed over all.

One noble life the less for heaven to take;
One hero more passed from this land of ours;—
Lay fairest garlands on his bier, and make Death beautiful with flowers.

A Nation's heart shall be his funeral urn,
While time shall add new lustre to his fame;
And Freedom's fires with holier light shall burn,
Where'er is breathed his name.

ALBERT LAIGHTON.

THE FARRAGUT OBSEQUIES.—The preparations for the funeral services have been completed and they will be of a very imposing character. A battalion of Marines from the Charlestown Navy Yard and the Band from that Post are here and there may be companies of Heavy Artillery from Boston and Portland. The Portsmouth Cornet and Harlow's Marine Bands are to take part. Rev. Dr. Montgomery of New York (pastor of the church at which Admiral Farragut worshipped) will be the officiating clergyman, assisted by Rev. Rufus W. Clark, Jr., Chaplain Kane and others.

Among the dignitaries invited to be present are President Grant, Vice Admiral Porter, Secretary Robeson, Ex-Secretary Welles, Gens. Banks and Butler, and the New England delegation in Congress. Gen. McDowell and staff have telegraphed that they will be in attendance; there will doubtless be many other distinguished military, naval and civil officers here.

The public houses at Rye Beach, the Custom House and many city residences will be draped in mourning. The hearse is draped with flags and crape and will be drawn by four black horses, with plumes, housings, and trimmings of the same hue. Thousands will be in attendance from far and near to pay their respects to the gallant dead.

The U. S. S. Speedwell arrived from Boston on Tuesday evening with 60 marines and 25 sailors. A large number of officers will arrive by this morning's train.

☞ Steamer Favorite, Capt. Davidson, is again running on her regular track between this port and the Shoals, after a temporary absence, during which the Clara Bateman took her place. The Favorite will leave Dover for the Shoals every morning, commencing to-morrow, (Thursday,) until Tuesday next, inclusive; returning, will leave Portsmouth for Dover at 4:45 P. M., each day. On Saturday evening the Favorite will have an excursion down the river from Dover, with the Cocheco Cornet Band.

☞ Mr. J. J. Hatlinger, Agent for the Little Washer, will leave town for a week or ten days, having been overworked of late and being obliged to take a respite. Orders left at the places mentioned in his advertisement will be promptly attended to on his return. One hundred and eighty-one machines have been delivered since the 1st of June, and over 60 more will be at hand, to fill out orders already given, on his return.

A general order of the Navy Department provides that on the day of Admiral Farragut's funeral, the national flag shall be displayed at all the navy yards and stations, and on board of all ships of the United States now in commission, and that seventeen minute guns shall be fired at noon from each navy yard. All officers of the navy and marine corps will wear crape on the left arm for thirty days.

☞ The house on Islington Street, late Mr. Fisher's, which was bid off at the recent sale by Aaron Young, Esq., it is understood was purchased for Joseph B. Stearns, Esq., the well known electrical engineer, of Boston, whose wife is a daughter of J. M. Edmonds, Esq., the former owner and occupant. We are always glad to gain such scientific men for citizens.

☞ On Tuesday morning Judge Bellows spent an hour or more in examining the Cess-pool at the Creek, and the premises adjoining. The evidence in the case was about closed at 6 o'clock, P. M., at which hour the court adjourned to 8 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning.

☞ "Muffers" will meet this evening at the room of E. A. Joy at 7 o'clock to make arrangements for to-morrow's Rye campaign.

THE FUNERAL OF ADM. FARRAGUT will take place to-day. The following is the official order of the funeral procession:—

Music.
Escort.
(Consisting of Marines, Head Guards, and other troops under arms.)
Officiating Clergymen. Surgeon.
Pall Bearers—Hearse—Pall Bearers.
Mourners.
Body Bearers.
Squad carrying Admiral's and American Flags.
Battalion of Seamen unarmed.
U. S. Navy Officers.
U. S. Army Officers.
Society of the M. O. L. L. U. S.
Society of Army and Navy of the Gulf.
Grand Army of Republic.
Fire Dep't and Board of Engineers.
Odd Fellows.
Free Masons.
Knights Templar.
Members of City Government and of the Press.
Collector of the Port and Officers of U. S. Customs.
Postmasters and Members of the Legislature.
State Judiciary.
U. S. District Attorney and Judges of District Courts.
Foreign Officers of Army and Navy.
Foreign Consuls.
Chiefs of Bureaus and Departments of National Government.
Members of House of Representatives.
Senators and Governors and Ex-governors of States.
Justices of U. S. Supreme Court.
Members of the Cabinet and Foreign Ministers.

The Military part of the procession, consisting of escort, and officers of the Army and Navy, will form in the Navy Yard, at 10.45 A. M., whence it will move so as to take position in town at 11.30 A. M., in its assigned place.

The rest of the procession will form in Portsmouth at 11 A. M., on Daniel Street, with the left (which will be in front on the march) resting upon Congress Street, and there await the arrival of the Hearse.

Heads of Organizations will please report to Lt. Comdr. YATES, at the Mayor's office in Portsmouth, before 11 A. M., Wednesday, for the positions of their societies.

All organizations not mentioned above, are cordially invited to attend, and, upon reporting to Lt. Comdr. YATES, will be assigned appropriate positions.

Officers of the Navy will report at the Commandant's quarters in the Navy Yard, at 10.45 A. M., in epaulettes, caps, swords, white gloves and blue pants, with black crape upon the left arm, above the elbow, and on the sword hilt.

At 11 A. M., the Marines of the escort will form with their centre opposite the Commandant's quarters, having the music, with drums muffled, on the left.

Upon the right of the escort of troops, leaving an interval of fifty yards, will be the color guard under its officer, bearing the Admiral's flag and the National ensign, draped with crape. Upon the right of this body of men will be the battalion of seamen, unarmed, commanded by their officers.

Upon the right of these will be the Navy officers, in two ranks, in the inverse order of their rank from left to right.

The line will face the quarters.

Upon the appearance of the body, the Marines will present arms, the drums will gives four ruffles, the officers and seamen will uncover their heads, the colors will be drooped, and the music will play a dirge; then the coffin will take position in the interval to the right of the marines.

When the coffin is in position, the officer commanding the Marines will bring his men to a shoulder, officers and men resume their caps, the column will face to the left, and march to the boat, where it will embark.

Upon starting from the Yard the saluting battery, alternating with the Vandalia, will commence firing minute-guns, and cease firing when the bells cease tolling; and the same formation will be resumed on the shore.

All officers will be supplied with crape for their sword hilts and left arms, on application.

Any troops under arms desirous of officiating, will be at the landing, and will take position ahead of the Marines, and in rear of the music.

The procession will pass up Daniel Street, along the line already formed, and halt when the rear is opposite to the head of the leading organization.

The whole procession will then move on up Congress and Islington Street, to Cabot Street, down Cabot to Middle, down Middle to State St., down State to Chapel Street, and thence to St. John's Church.

The escort will halt so as to bring the centre of the troops opposite the door of the church, and will wheel into line.

As the coffin is moved from the hearse and carried into the church, the troops will present arms, the members of the procession will uncover their heads, the colors will be drooped, the drums will give four ruffles, and the music will play a dirge.

The seamen and marines will remain in position outside the church. The mourners, officers, members of the M. O. L. L. U. S. and Society of Army and Navy of Gulf, and Free Masons, will enter with the body, and the rest of the procession will follow in inverse order.

The whole body of the Church will be reserved for the procession.

Seats will be occupied as follows:—Mourners and Pall Bearers in the front pews, on each side of centre aisle; next, officers of Army and Navy; next, Army and Navy of the Gulf, and Society of M. O. L. L. U. S.; next, Free Masons; next, Members of Cabinet, Foreign Ministers, and other prominent members of the Procession, who will occupy the right tier of pews, beginning at the chancel. The rest of the procession will fill up the pews in rear of these, on the right side of the church, in order, and then fill up those on the left,—moving into the church in inverse order,—(that is, the rear first.)

The marines and sailors will remain outside.

After the funeral oration, the officers will march out, followed by the Society of M. O. L. L. U. S. and of Army and Navy of the Gulf, and will turn to the right, pass up Chapel Street, past the door of the vault, and past the Marines and troops, and form across the Street, facing toward the church, at right angles to the escort.

The Free Masons will then move out, and form facing the Marines, between the vault and the church door.

The clergymen, followed by the bier, pall bearers, and mourners, will then move out of the church, and pass between the marines and Free Masons to the vault. The escort will present arms, the colors will be drooped, four ruffles of the drum will be given, and the music will play a dirge.

The religious services will then be followed by Masonic services, and after these, three vollies will be fired.

The Left Wing of the procession will reform, march to the landing and embark. The Right wing will reform, march to the Square and dismiss.

Respectfully, &c.,
A. F. CROSMAN, Comdr., U. S. N.,
Commanding Procession.
Approved, A. M. PENNOCK, Comdt.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings, we warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds are for 20 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, be sides paying about 7 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,

It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Liver is acted on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the vegetable tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the digestion of Iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.

MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel to act on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect medicine. It purifies the blood and imparts IRON to it. It acts on the Liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is a most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons whose blood is poor, and who need Iron and a strengthening medicine. 2medoawly25

RICHARDSON'S

LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocket-handkerchief to a

LARGE BED SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

The sale of the LITTLE WASHER is unprecedented, not only in Portsmouth but everywhere else where it has been introduced. All who desire one of these valuable Little Machines will do well to apply early, as the demand is greater than the supply. J. J. HATLINGER, Agent.

Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal advice and advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on their rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. AYER'S

HAIR VIGOR,

For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.

Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations thing crows and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.

If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

S. J. Court, Law Term, at Manchester.

THE NORTHERN vs. CONCORD RAILROAD.—The court (by Bellows, C. J.) was not ready to decide the question of dissolving the injunction at this time, and should postpone it till Aug. 29, at this place. The question of who shall control the road during the progress of litigation, which is likely to be protracted, is important, and should be carefully considered. Before deciding it, the court desire such evidence as the parties may present, in relation to the allegation of a combination among parties to purchase stock to control the road, and of complicity of some savings banks.

The Court also desire evidence on the allegation that this contract between the Concord and Northern Railroads was not made in good faith, but for some other purposes than the benefit and advantage of the two roads. The court will hear whatever testimony the parties may present on Aug. 29th on these points, to which time the court will be adjourned.

Judge Sargent suggested that if the charge of fraud in making the contract was sustained, he should be inclined, even if the contract were legal, to place the road in the hands of a receiver. So if he should be satisfied that the officers of Savings Banks had improperly used the trust funds to get possession of the road, or had improperly combined, he should hesitate to order the road into the possession of the new board, even if the contract seemed to be probably illegal, and should prefer a receiver till the final decision of the cause.

He said it may be a long time before an ultimate decision can be reached, probably years; if it should be five years, and this road remain in the hands of the Northern Road during the time, that party will reap the full benefit of the contract, before a decision could be made. The question arises whether both parties should not be kept out of any authority in the management, and that a third party run the road. Both of the contending parties may be innocent, both may be in error.

Judge Doe stated that it might be advantageous to present some doubts that had arisen in his brief consideration of the case, in accordance with the English practice. Stearns is in possession, and the right of possession must be settled by law and not by force. Hence an injunction to keep things as they are would ordinarily issue now, if none had issued, unless it appeared distinctly that the contract is illegal. He thought the approval of the Governor and Council, and Railroad Commissioners, sufficient. He considered it a lease, though he had some doubts if it is a lease by our statute.

He had some doubts whether the "bad. faith" charged against the old board of the Concord Road does not sufficiently appear, and whether the plaintiffs had not notice of it, and also whether the old board could be heard to say that they might properly do what they did. For the purpose of preventing mischief, even if the contract is illegal and void, he had doubts whether the defendant directors should be allowed to take possession of the road during the pendency of this suit, and even whether they ever should be allowed to have possession of it, if they obtained their election as directors by a breach of trust in their management of Savings Banks.

I am not prepared, he said, to say that on further investigation, than I have had time to make, with all my other duties and obligations, that it would not be the duty of the court to preserve public peace by injunctions, until some bona fide stockholder, if there is one, shall apply for a receiver; and in case no such application should be speedily made, to preserve the peace of the public, by injunction, till the Attorney General could be advised by the court to make such application for the benefit of the State and of all the owners of the stock, till the stockholders should elect a board of directors in a fair and legitimate manner. The public is, after all, the most interested in these quasi public corporations.

It would be no objection to the action of the court in this direction, that the savings banks were amply secured and had not and would not meet with any loss of the loans, all of which were amply secured. A breach of trust is not authorized by any profit or advantage to the persons for whose benefit the trust is held, or by full indemnity. This point Judge Doe illustrated by other cases, as sajes by a guardian. He suggests that the case should be examined from the beginning, and if it is found that the defendant directors were elected as alleged, measures should be taken to protect bona fide stockholders and to exclude from the State all such practices. It is the duty of trustees and directors to control the corporation entrusted to them for the benefit of the corporation, and without considering their own aggrandizement at all.

If it appeared here that trustees of savings banks had obtained money from banks under their control, or by any combination had hired money of each other, and not for the benefit of their depositors, but for the purpose of getting control of a railroad and making themselves directors, it is a matter of doubt whether these facts do not make a sufficient case for the court to keep things as they are till some bona fide stockholder shall apply for the appointment of a receiver, to manage the road till other directors are elected to whom there can be no objections.

If no such application is speedily made, it may still be the duty of the court to keep things as they are till the Attorney General shall be advised that it is his duty in behalf of the public to have a receiver appointed to run the road for the benefit of the public, and of the stockholders.

During the course of his remarks, Judge Doe commented on some deficiences in the bill, which might be remedied by amendment. He stated that he did not wish to be understood as expressing an opinion, but only indicating doubts which had arisen on points, which counsel might like to meet in their arguments. This case had to take its turn, and all other business could not be put aside to settle this cause, as some people seemed to expect.—Concord Monitor.

The remarks of Judge Doe created an intense interest, as it had been whispered, without any authority, that his opinion would be very different from what he showed it to be.

The eyes of the bar and spectators were turned towards Justice Smith, who, it was supposed, concurred with Justice Doe. Mr. Smith offered no suggestions.

It is now said by many of the best lawyers, that the final opinion of the Court will be, to put the management of the corporation into the hands of a third party, as suggested by Justices Sargent and Doe.—Manchester Mirror.

THE CONCORD RAILROAD.—As before stated, the Court has postponed action on the suit between the Northern and Concord Railroads, to the 29th inst. The Court indicated, however, some of the principles that may govern the case. While Judge Doe expressly states that he does not wish his statements to be regarded in any other light than as an expression of doubts and suggestion of points concerning which he desires to be enlightened, the inference will inevitably be drawn, that the Court inclines to consider the contract a lease; and also that the new board obtained their election by an improper combination and an illegal use of trust funds, resulting from their connection with the savings banks. If these two conclusions are sustained, they intimate that the Road may be taken from the control of both parties, and placed in the hands of a receiver to await the election of another board by bona fide stockholders.

So it seems the Ring is not to obtain immediate possession of the Railroad, at any rate; and so cannot keep their promises to reward their friends and punish their enemies, by removing the tried servants of the old corporation, and filling their places with raw recruits. Neither the ability of Ex-Gov. Smyth, the threats of Pearson, or the various diversified talents and appliances of the incongruous collection of speculators, will avail thus to impose upon the people of this State, and the old stockholders of the Concord Road; and if the Court examines all phases of the case, it will doubtless follow the lead of the honest convictions of nine-tenths of the disinterested spectators of this struggle, and justify the doings of Gov. Stearns and Judge Minot, in saving this property from the rapacity of this horde of speculators.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT? IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.

It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.

One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds, 2 coats; while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 29 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.

The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in all different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.

The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings on the spot, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the BEECHER IN A NEW PART.—The secret of Beecher's vigorous advocacy of woman's rights is at last divulged. Henry Ward, according to Miss Cady Stanton, imbued with the spirit of decoration, and admiring the curling and frizzling that was wont to characterize the female portion of the Beecher family, on one occasion urged his nieces to curl and friz his hair. This novel request was acceded to with zest, and the Plymouth pastor for the space of one hour, seated in a large chair in the centre of the room, remained as patient as a lamb, while, with hot irons, fairy fingers curled and frizzled those venerable locks into most generous dimensions.

With the addition of a becoming bonnet, skirt, and mantilla, and a fan, he presented so lady-like an appearance that he was quite unwilling to return to the sombre garb of manhood. She tells us also how he alternately reclined on the sofa, talking with true feminine affection, and promenaded up and down the parlor with a huge Grecian bend, surveying himself in the glass with the greatest satisfaction. Beecher was so infatuated with himself that he suggested making calls in his feminine garb, upon certain of his friends.

A carriage was ordered, and accompanied by Mrs. Stowe and Miss Stanton, he called on his friend Mrs. Hooker. This lady being much occupied, declined seeing the stranger, but Mrs. Stowe insisted on her coming down, as the lady wished to talk to her about the woman question, as she thought of lecturing on that subject. On entering the parlor, one glance at Henry's mischievous eyes satisfied her as to the indenity of the strange lady, and she exclaimed "I know you! wolf in lamb's clothing," and Beecher as a petticoated peregrinator was unmasked.

New Hampshire Items.

Mr. Abram Dearborn of Exeter, who was badly injured by a mowing machine accident, is suffering from lockjaw and is in a precarious condition.

The Boston, Concord & Montreal Railroad have recently put on their line two very elegant passenger cars, which, for finish and style, modern improvements, and comfort, are not excelled by any cars leaving Boston. Persons who cannot enjoy a trip in one of these cars, up through the beautiful lake and mountain scenery of the Montreal road, had bttter stay at home. These cars were manufactured by the Ranlet Manufacturing Company, at Laconia, and we take pride in having so creditable productions go from a New Hampshire manufactory.

While this neighborhood was parching for lack of water, Lancaster was suffering from an overdose. The hardest shower of rain known there for years occurred on the evening of the 9th, lasting about one hour. The roads in all parts of the town are very badly washed out, and many of the small bridges and sluice-ways carried off. It is estimated that it will cost $1000 to repair the Whitefield road. The barn of G. D. Hodgdon was very badly injured, his loss is estimated at full $1,000. The water rose so high as to run into the windows of the first story of his house. The water rose in the river about two feet in an hour.

The widow of the late Samuel Leavitt, of Lake Village, was found dead in her bed last Sunday morning. She was 92 years of age.

On Sunday morning, about half-past three o'clock, a special policeman of Nashua was attracted to the Chestnut Street Methodist Church by the noise of falling glass, and he hastened thither just in season to see a man rapidly disappearing up Pearl Street. After a good smart foot-race, in which the officer in pursuit concluded he should be distanced, and that his only hope of capturing the thief lay in the chance of wounding him, he drew his revolver and sent a leaden message after his fleet-footed adversary. The burglar then turned on his heel and returned the compliment. A second and third shot was fired by the policeman without effect, and three more by the burglar, whose last shot hit the policeman in the ankle, but not seriously injuring him. The chase continued through several streets, but the burglar finally escaped the clutches of justice, losing in his flight his hat and a portion of his tools, which are in the possession of the City Marshal.

Patrick Kaine, an Irishman, who has been in the employ of Joseph B. Walker, Esq., of Concord some five years, shot himself probably sometime between 1 and 6 o'clock Tuesday morning. At last account he was still living.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they can be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawje16eod4m

WAR TALK.—A despatch to Paris from the sub-perfect of Verdun says there was artillery firing all day Monday in the direction of Metz, and persons arriving from that section reported a great battle in which the Prussians had been defeated with a loss of 40,000. This information is questionable, and entirely without official confirmation.

From several sources come reports of the battle before Metz on Sunday. The Prussians surprised the French when their army was divided, and attacking the portion remaining on the east bank of the Moselle, brought on a battle of no inconsiderable proportions and much fierceness. The French were driven into the fortress, and their ability to have constituted the "repulse" which the Emperor claimed, in his despatch to the Empress.

A private despatch from London dated, Tuesday, 10:30 A. M., confirms the French defeat, with fearful loss, in the late battle.

The North-German Gazette urges a general celebration of the last Napoleon fete-day.

The bulk of the French army is now concentrated at Etain, in the Department of the Meuse, 76 kilometres from Chalons and distant 20 kilometres west from Metz, almost on the direct road to Chalons sur Maine. Reinforcements are constantly arriving.

Advices from Paris state that the Emperor is actively organizing large forces at Chalons.

The garrison at Strasbourg made a sortie towards Ougard, but were driven back with heavy loss. They lost three guns.

Empress Eugenie has applied to the Belgium Government for permission to traverse that country on her way to England.

Marshal McMahon reached Chalons Sar Marne, Saturday morning.

The Emperor Napoleon arrived at Chalons, Tuesday night.

Count Palikao, the French Minister of War, has received official intelligence from the army, stating that the army was in excellent condition, and continued to execute combined movements. After the brilliant engagement of Sunday evening, two divisions of the Prussian army, which had been endeavoring to harass the French on their march, were suddenly surprised by the French rear guard, which by a brilliantly executed retrograde movement turned upon the pursuing Prussians and repulsed them, effectually checking their advance. The pursuit was delayed, and the harrassed corps effected a combination with the main body of the French on the Moselle.

The troops now in Algeria are not to be recalled.

It is officially stated that the rear of the forces from Metz has joined the main French army, after checking the advance of the pursuing Prussians.

There is no doubt that hard fighting has been going on since Saturday last, the French being engaged in a great strategic movement, involving a series of engagements. Operations are carried on in a place where communication is difficult. The telegraph wires having been but the news necesssarily comes slowly.

The telegraphs have been cut in the rear of the Prussians.

Count Palikao has officially announced that he has received despatches from the headquarters of the French army to the effect that the Prussians Tuesday relinquished their attempts to interrupt the line of the French retreat and to prevent the junction of the corps of McMahon and Bazaine.

The Prussian army under Prince Frederick Charles, after repeated and fruitless assaults on the French line, have abandoned their attempts to disrupt the French army and delay its union. The Prussians are now retreating upon Commercy, southwesterly from Metz, after three or four sanguinary and well contested engagements.

The Prussian forces suffered a serious check in their efforts to pierce the French centre. The new French army will be under the sole command of Marshal Bazaine, and will co-operate with the army of the Rhine, by which it is ready to be supported.

Gillaudet (Paris editor of the Courrier Des Etats Unis) telegraphs that the French army has checked the advance of the Prussians and avenged the battle of Woerth.

The late severe battles were fought between Metz and Verdun, in which the Prussians were severely punished.

He says this will give time for the organization of the new army at Chalons, numbering over 200,000.

He gives a very favorable report of the condition and spirits of the French armies.

THE AVENUE—WHY NOT FIX IT? Messrs. Editors:—In April, 1869, Mrs. Mary H. Cutts died, and left to her executors $20,000 in trust, to prepare, widen and ornament Richards Avenue, from the dwelling houses to South Street and the cemetery. In view of the above, I would like to ask, through your paper, why efforts have not been made tending to such an improvement? Richards Avenue is frequented by hundreds every day, who are reminded of the liberal bequest; and why her wish is not carried into execution, is the wonder of many a PEDESTRIAN.

[Reply.—Before arguing from given premises, it is well to establish them. When Franklin was asked why, when a fish was put into a pail full of water, it did not run over, he first proceeded to test the matter practically, and of course showed at once that there was no truth in the statement. Neither is popular idea respecting Richards Avenue correct, for notwithstanding we published the will in full last year, the views of our correspondent are very generally entertained, though erroneous.

The $20,000 was left for a perpetual fund, the interest (when it shall accumulate sufficiently) to be applied, first to erecting a suitable monument to the deceased lady donor, and fence for her cemetery lot; and then to improving the Avenue. So that there is little if any doubt but this thoroughfare will ultimately be nicely fitted; but Messrs. Hackett and Mason, the executors, cannot well be hurried, notwithstanding the popular impatience.

The delay is to be regretted, on many accounts, one of which is that all those concerned most directly in the affair are elderly men—the Executors of the will, and the owners of the land on the line of the Avenue. Notwithstanding the miserably scanty width of the upper end of the street, we presume it would hardly at present be deemed practicable to remove the dwellings there; but no material improvement could be made, without at least doubling the width of the untenanted portion. We believe the proposition of the executors is, to retain and improve the entire width of the present driveway, between the trees, for carriage use, and to greatly extend the width on one or both sides, for a promenade, with other rows of trees, &c. Various widths are suggested for this, from 50 to 200 feet.

The land on the Avenue, is owned, we believe, wholly by Messrs. Elwyn and J. W. and D. H. Peirce; and Col. Peirce (who years ago gave all the trees for the beautiful rows on the Avenue,) was desirous that the land for the widening should be decided on last year, so that the grading could be done before winter, and the trees set ere this—and we have no doubt all the land-owners there would be disposed to assist in the matter; but, although the Board of Aldermen have, both this year and last, appointed a committee to confer with those in charge of the bequest, they have as yet been unable to make any progress, but hope to do so this Fall.

We make this statement in reply to numerous inquiries and complaints which come to us from all quarters.

Cleaned and Ground.

Italy and Spain are in a troubled state, and the proclamation of a republic in either or both would excite little surprise.

A warrant was issued Monday from the Police Court in Washington, for the arrest of Congressman R. C. Butler, of Tennessee, for forgery.

Another fillibustering expedition has landed in Cuba. The cholera is reported to be making ravages among the insurgents.

SEABROOK.—We understand that Rev. Wm. A. Rand, who has supplied the pulpit at South Seabrook for three years past, has accepted a call to become pastor of the South Seabrook Congregational Church. Mr. Rand has labored assiduously for the improvement of that section of the town, and we rejoice in his success.

The law-abiding citizens of Seabrook, after persistent effort, have secured the appointment of a Police force of seven men, and at a town meeting lately held, money was appropriated, to build a lock-up, near the Eastern Railroad Depot.

THAT MUFFIN MATCH at Rye will come off this afternoon, weather permitting. Three teams have been engaged to take the "muffers" to the scene of conflict, and will leave Market Square for Jenness' Saloon, Rye, at 12 o'clock, noon. The game will commence at 2 o'clock, P. M. "Muffers" will govern themselves accordingly. The batters will chowder after the close of the game. A large audience will be in attendance, according to our Rye correspondent.

THE CESS POOL.—On Tuesday and Wednesday, the following witnesses were called by Mr. Goodall, for the State, to testify as to the character and cause of the cess-pool nuisance,—in addition to those before named: Robert Shillaber, Charles A. Shannon, Dr. Hall, Dr. Dearborn, Oliver Ayers, John H. Slater.

For the defence, Messrs. Frank Jones, Robert C. Jarvis 2d, J. G. Hadley, Jas. Ayres, G. C. Varney, Wm. Alton, C. H. Downs, C. H. Gould, T. Glaizebrook, Dudley Varrell, Reed V. Rand, Ira Seymour, Albert Hayes, Thos. M. Holmes, Jos. R. Holmes, and Josiah Morrison, nearly all being workmen in Jones' brewery, were called; but the testimony of several of them told strongly against the establishment, as the cause of the nuisance.

On Wednesday, Judge Bellows, after a patient and full investigation of the case, and a personal visit to the premises, decided that he should not oblige Mr. Jones to suspend business, but suggested a change in his sewer strainer, so that no hops can go through—and this change we understand will be made to-day.

On the part of Mr. Goodall, it was attempted to be proved that hops, malt and beer sediment, were the cause of the stench. The defence denied that any appreciable quantity of hops passed the sewer, and that these float; while Mr. Goodall brought into Court, hops sunk to the bottom of a bottle of water, and the sediment of a beer barrel,—and claimed to show the Judge, at the Pool, that the hops were two feet deep in the mud.

If, as is claimed, the injunction was partially granted, as to Mr. Jones; the Judge decided that the case was not sustained as to Jarvis' factory being responsible for the nuisance.

SUNDAY EXCURSION.—The many friends of O. A. Frost, formerly of this city, and now proprietor of the Atlantic House, Wells Beach, will be pleased to learn that the Steamer Appledore, Capt. Baker, is to make an excursion to that place next Sunday. The arrangements will be such that the party will have several hours ashore, where they will have the opportunity of enjoying the facilities for surf bathing, &c., which that place affords. A fast sailing boat and a hospitable shore to land upon, will be a temptation which will serve to fill the Appledore with a goodly number.

—A Cincinnati woman had eleven children, but insisted that the census marshal should call again the last of the week, when she would make it an even dozen.—Exchange.

A Portsmouth census taker recently came across a similar case. An Irish woman, living on Bow Street, returned seven as the number of her children, and rather nonplussed the gallant official by telling him to count one more for the next week! The abashed "Joseph" declined, on the ground that he couldn't decide in advance how to class the expected human.

☞ We regret to learn that Mr. Theodore S. Harris, the prominent druggist, of Boston, has been seriously ill for several days, at the Kearsarge House in this city. He was thought to be a little better on Wednesday.

☞ Col. Oscar A. Mack, U. S. A., was in town on Wednesday on a tour of inspection of national cemeteries.

☞ A State Prohibitory Convention held at Boston on Wednesday, nominated Wendell Phillips for Governor.

If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watering or weak, feel dull and stupid or debilitated, pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, you may rest assured that you have the Catarrh. Thousands annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, terminate in consumption and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive or less understood by physicians. R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., is the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—a perfect Specific for Catarrh, "Cold in the Head," or catarrhal headache, which he sends to any address, post paid, for sixty cents, or four packages for $2. Pamphlet sent free. Sold by druggists.

THE ORDER OF THE DAY.—A general order for SOZODONT. In the teeth of all opposition it has become the supreme dentifrice of the age.

No impurity can infest the teeth cleaned daily with SOZODONT. QUILLAY, the bark of the Chilian Soap Tree, an article which possesses cleansing properties superior to those of any other known substance, is one of the ingredients of this peerless compound. SOZODONT is the only dentifrice in existence in which this salubrious botanical product is incorporated.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," handy about the house, mends everything.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Life Sustaining Principle.

The vital and the muscular systems are entirely distinct from each other. A man may have the brawn of a Hercules, but if he is deficient in vital energy he will not wear as well, or last as long, or be as healthy and happy while he does last, as the man of ordinary, or even slender build, who possesses a larger share of this animating principle. One of the greatest recommendations of that pure vegetable invigorant, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, is that it increases the vital force of the system. No medicine can double the volume of a man's muscle, or thicken and vulcanize his thews and sinews; but Hostetter's Bitters has an effect much more important. Its use promotes constitutional vigor.

It reinforces the life-power, of which bone and sinew and muscle are merely the instruments, holding the same relation to it that machinery does to steam. Let the slight and apparently fragile take heart, they may have more stamina, though far less physical strength, than the broad shouldered athletes they regard with envy. To restore, to sustain, to increase this staminal principle which, when in full supply, is the source of health and the best guarantee of longevity, is a special property of the famous restorative. It is not only a specific for dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent fevers, constipation, &c., and a preventive of all diseases of a malarious character, but the best of all medicines for strengthening the constitution and awakening the powers of nature, from whatever cause they may have become lethargic. au5dawlw

THE FARRAGUT OBSEQUIES.—The funeral procession which followed Admiral Farragut's remains to their temporary resting place, was the most imposing pageant of the kind ever seen in Portsmouth, being by far the largest in point of numbers that ever marched to a funeral here. There were more than 1000 in the procession by actual count, the many organizations seeming to vie with each other in appearing with full ranks to testify their love and respect for the man whom they honored, living and dead.

Citizens seemed to take a general interest in showing their respect to the dead, and business was suspended while the procession passed on its route. Many private residences and places of business, public and private, were decked in black and white drapings, but not so many as we expected to see. Among the principal were the store of Rider & Newell, the elegant store of C. H. Mendum & Co., and others on Market street, Thacher's apothecary, Sise's insurance agency, the grocery of Butler & Laighton, the apothecary store of Wm. R. Preston, with the inscription, "To the memory of Admiral Farragut—the noble Patriot, the fearless Sailor, the honest Man. The nation mourns the loss of its great Defender." On Middle Street the residences of Collector Bailey, Jos. H. Foster, Esq., and Dr. Preston, were finely decorated, the inscription at Dr. Preston's residence being, "He lived—He died—but his name is enshrined in the hearts of every loyal American."

Among the distinguished gentleman attending we noticed Maj. Gens. McDowell and Foster, U. S. A., Ex-Secretary Gideon Welles, Ex-Assistant Secretary Fox, Gen. N. P. Banks, Gov. Stearns, Ex-Gov. Goodwin, Senators Cragin, Patterson and Wilson, Gens. Sargent and Drake of the Army and Navy of the Gulf, Brig. Gens. Ingalls and Roberts, Commodore Steedman, Hon. R. C. Winthrop, Wm. James Colles, Judge Clifford, Hon. M. Hopper, M. C., Thomas G. Welles.

The whole arrangements were in charge of Comdr. Crosman and Lt. Comdr. Yates, who proved themselves at once very efficient and gentlemanly officers.

The residences of Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett and Alderman Nowell, as well as the Kearsarge and Rockingham Houses were handsomely decorated.

Upon leaving the church the remains were followed to the vault by Commodore Pennock and Maj. Montgomery, for the family.

The Pall Bearers were Rear Admiral Thatcher, U. S. N., Maj. Gen. McDowell, U. S. A., Maj. Gen. Foster, U. S. A., Commodore Parrott, U. S. N., Col. McCauley, U.S.M. C., Commander Wells, U. S. N., Commander Badger, U. S. N., Commander Potter do; Paymaster Watson, do; Chief Engineer Moore, do; Surgeon Hiland, do.

The remains were brought from the Yard at 12 o'clock in Steamer Emerald, escorted by U. S. S. Speedwell and Port Fire.

Among the mourners was Mr. Henry Taylor, colored, who had been with the Admiral throughout his last campaign and to whom the grand old man had become greatly attached.

Within the Church—that beautiful and somewhat quaint old building, with all its memories of greatness and grandeur—the scene presented was one not to be forgotten. The decorations were neat and simple,—well fitted to the character of the grand old hero, who having well fought his last battle, now sleeps his last sleep. On the front of the gallery, and running down the pillars, were knots, rosettes, festoons and entwinings of black and white; with an entablature of the same including a sword, on the front of the orchestra.

The desk, pulpit, font, altar, and chancel, as well as the burial casket, were profusely decorated in appropriate designs with exquisite flowers, anchors, crowns, wreaths, crosses, bouquets, &c., from Dee & Doyle, florists, of Boston; and a beautiful floral ship,—a fairy craft indeed, lying in port, with hull and masts all of flowers, from B. F. Galvin of Boston. All the decorations we understand, were made under direction of Lt. Comdr. McCauley and the wife of Comdr. Carpenter.

The casket was of rosewood with rich silver mountings; and the Admiral's full dress jacket, cap, apaulettes and sword lay on the top. The deceased was in uniform, with white kid gloves; and the opportunity offered to look upon his face once more, was improved by almost every person in the house.

The Episcopal burial service was performed by the rector of St. John's, and Rev. Dr. Montgomery of New York, pastor of deceased. Dr. M.'s brief oration and eulogy, was very beautiful and eminently fitting; but as we hope to give it in full to-morrow, we shall only say now, (and what could we say more?) that it was worthy of its subject, whom the preacher well said, was as the greatest only are,—in his simplicity sublime.

The singing was by a male quintet, consisting of Messrs. Ilsley, Davis, Goodall, L. S. Butler and Newell, and was much liked.

The procession moved in the following order:—

Platoon of Police.
Post Band.
Escort,
(Consisting of Head Guards, Capt. Urch, Battalion Marines, Maj. Lewis, 5th U. S. Artillery, Maj. Brewerton.)
Officiating Clergymen. Surgeon.
Pall Bearers—Hearse—Pall Bearers.
Mourners.
Body Bearers.
Squad carrying Admiral's and American Flags.
Battalion of Seamen unarmed.
U. S. Navy Officers.
U. S. Army Officers.
Society of the M. O. L. L. U. S.
Society of Army and Navy of the Gulf.
Grand Army of Republic.
Portsmouth Cornet Band.
Fire Dep't and Board of Engineers.
Odd Fellows.
Free Masons.
Knights Templar.
Members of City Government and of the Press.
Collector of the Port and Officers of U. S. Customs.
Postmaster and Members of the Legislature.
State Judiciary.
U. S. District Attorney and Judges of District Courts.
Foreign Officers of Army and Navy.
Foreign Consuls.
Chiefs of Bureaus and Departments of National Government.
Members of House of Representatives.
Senators and Governors and Ex-governors of States.
Justices of U. S. Supreme Court.
Members of the Cabinet and Foreign Ministers.

The Military part of the procession, consisting of escort, and officers of the Army and Navy, formed in the Navy Yard at 10.45 A.M., whence it moved so as to take position in town at 12 M., in its assigned place.

The rest of the procession formed in Portsmouth at 11 A. M., on Daniel St., with left resting on Congress Street, and there awaited the arrival of the Hearse.

Officers of the Navy reported at the Commandant's quarters in the Navy Yard, at 10.45 A. M., in one-and-one, caps, swords, white gloves and blue pants, with black crape upon the left arm, above the elbow, and on the sword hilt.

At 11 A. M., the Marines of the escort formed with their centre opposite the Commandant's quarters, having the music, with drums muffled, on the left.

Upon the right of the escort of troops, leaving an interval of fifty yards, was the color guard under its officer, bearing the Admiral's flag and the National ensign, draped with crape. Upon the right of this body of men was the battalion of seamen, unarmed, commanded by their officers.

Upon the right of these were the Navy officers, in two ranks, in the inverse order of their rank from left to right.

Upon the appearance of the body, the Marines presented arms, the drums gave four ruffles, the officers and seamen uncovered their heads, the colors were drooped, and the music played a dirge.

When the coffin was in position, the officer commanding the Marines brought his men to a shoulder, officers and men resumed their caps, the column faced to the left, and marched to the boat, where it embarked.

Upon starting from the Yard the saluting battery, alternating with the Vandalia, commenced firing minute-guns, and ceased firing when the bells ceased tolling.

The procession passed up Daniel Street, along the line already formed, and halted with the rear opposite to the head of the leading organization.

The whole procession then moved on up Congress and Islington Street, to Cabot Street, down Cabot to Middle, down Middle to State St., down State to Chapel Street, and thence to St. John's Church.

The escort halted so as to bring the centre of the troops opposite the door of the church, and wheeled into line.

As the coffin was moved from the hearse and carried into the church, the troops presented arms, the members of the procession uncovered their heads, the colors were drooped, the drums give four ruffles, and the music played a dirge.

The marines and marines remained in position outside the church. The mourners, officers, members of the M. O. L. L. U. S. and Society of Army and Navy of Gulf, and the Free Masons, entered with the body, and the rest of the procession followed in inverse order.

The whole body of the Church was reserved for the procession.

The religious services were followed by the Masonic services, and after these, three volleys were fired.

The Left Wing of the procession reformed, marched to the hearse and escorted the Right wing reformed, marched to the Square and dismissed.

☞ The venerable Charles Tappan, aged 88 years, formerly of this city, is on a pleasure visit to England. He writes to the Boston Transcript, an account of the American Ship Liverpool, (1300 tons, 27 years old) aboard which he was, running down and cutting in two the in steamer Tusyama, 600 tons. The Liverpool was little damaged. Mr. Tappan says both were temperance vessels, or the fearful scene would have been, yet more fearful.

A GRAND ORGAN CONCERT will be given at the Universalist Church on Friday evening, Aug. 19th, by Dr. Wilcox of Boston. Tickets 25 cents, for sale at the stores of John Hodgdon, James M. Carr, Dr. Preston and by A. F. Craig. Doors open at 7 1-2 o'clock. Concert to commence at 8.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 20 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,

FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,

FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,

It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Liver is acted on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the vegetable tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the digestion of Iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.

MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel is not on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect medicine. It purifies the blood and imparts IRON to it. It acts on the Liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is a most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons whose blood is poor, and who need Iron and a strengthening medicine. 2medeaw1y20

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. B. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Reissues, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made ninety-eight rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. RICHARDSON'S

LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocketband-kerchief to

LARGE BED-SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

The sale of the LITTLE WASHER is unprecedented, not only in Portsmouth but everywhere else where it has been introduced. All who desire one of these valuable Little Machines will do well to apply early, as the demand is greater than the supply. J. J. HATLINGER, Agent.

AYER'S

HAIR VIGOR,

For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is even restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.

Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently premature baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.

If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white caps and hoods, nor stain the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a graceful pertinacity.

Morning Chronicle.

Correspondence of the Chronicle and Gazette.

RYE BEACH, Aug. 17.

Eds. Chronicle:—The "muffin" Base Ball match on Thursday, P. M., is creating considerable talk, and there is every probability that a large crowd will be present to witness the sport. The fame achieved by the "heavy weights," in the previous match has spread abroad in this region, and there is much anxiety to see Leavitt, Joy, Betton, Vaughan and Kennedy, and other little infants, "git up and git."

The match will take place in a field near Jenness' Saloon. It is a very eligible location, but the field is rather too small for those whose forte lies in the bat. However, the ground is the best to be had under the circumstances, and it will only afford additional fun if some extra wall-climbing is done for the amusement of the spectators.

If the weather should prove favorable the "Muffers" and "Batters" will have opportunity to cover themselves over with glory and dirt, amid the enthusiastic plaudits of their assembled fellow citizens. D.

N. H. FARMING.—Forty years ago, George W. Lane, a self-reliant New Hampshire boy, commenced business for himself on a capital of eleven cents. Now he is rich, and has bought the old Gen. Derby farm in Derry, of 250 acres, of worn-out land, and has moved upon it, to improve it. He is determined, by keeping careful accounts of all expenditures and returns, to find out if farming with capital will pay in New Hampshire. Most people think it will not. Mr. Lane thinks it will, and is determined to try it. He has much information, and has had a sharp eye upon agriculture in Europe. His successes and his failures (of which latter we hope he will have few) will both be full of instruction to farmers of less means.

In early boyhood, in that charming old "Monthly Visitor" of the late Gov. Hill, (says J. D. Lyman in the Manchester Mirror,) I read of a Boston man who made ten per cent. upon his investments in a New Hampshire farm, which he hired and carried on. If Mr. Lane can succeed in making an investment of from $20,000 to $40,000 pay in New Hampshire farming, it will be of immense value to the State by causing others to follow his excellent example. How glorious it would be to see thousands of our old farms thus improved and cultivated! What happy homes they would make for the pent-up denizens of cities.

ROSA BONHEUR, a beautiful bay mare, entered by Woodbury Locke, is another new candidate for fame; young, flighty, with some splendid, sprightly bursts of speed, that may trouble a lot of them when she gets settled down to steady work. In the race, Amy had the first heat her own way. Ned made the second close and exciting. The third was nip-and-tuck, but he had the best of it, and the fourth a good deal the best of her. After that he fell back, and she kept a second position, Rosa settling down and winning two heats, followed by a dead heat between her and Amy. The excitement was intense. The horses were tired, and the final heat was postponed to the next morning. It was close on the backstretch the first half-mile, then Amy broke, Rosa Bonheur shot ahead and kept the lead, winning the heat and the first money, $100. Amy Stone second and Ned third.—Manchester Mirror.

N. H. FIRE INS. CO.—Important business operations. The President and Secretary of the Lake Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of Wolfeborough, were in Manchester Tuesday, and transferred all the risks of that Company to the new N. H. Stock Company. By reference to the Annual Report of the Insurance Commissioner, it will be seen that the Lake Company was in a good financial condition, and the only Mutual in the State that had funds to re-insure their risks and wind up their affairs, without assessing their premium notes, or without loss to their policy-holders. This transfer will be of mutual advantage and satisfaction to both Companies, as it gives the N. H. Ins. Co. 1,200 good farm risks at the usual rates, and secures the policy-holders of the Lake Co.

The N. H. Fire Ins. Co. now has over 2,000 risks, mostly farm buildings, though it has been in operation only four months. As we predicted, it is a great success, and will sweep the board, insuring most of the dwellings for the farmers and mechanics of New Hampshire.—Mirror.

John M. Davis is the agent for Portsmouth and vicinity, of the New Hampshire Co.

FULL DRESS.—In a recent lecture delivered in Philadelphia, Monsieur Du Chaillu thus describes the dresses of a negro King and his Court, with whom he met in his travels in Africa: "King Diapo was dressed in a swallow tailed coat, about the style our grandfathers wore, and that he must have procured of some traveller, and nothing else besides! His Prime Minister had on a white shirt, one sleeve lost, and which could not have been washed for two years, and nothing else. The second head man had a necktie on, and nothing else! The third head man had a hat on, and nothing else! Another one of the suite wore a pair of shoes, and nothing else! After the King and his Ministers came his wives. His chief wife carried an umbrella, and wore nothing else besides.

—A touching incident always remembered—The first kiss.

New Hampshire Items.

Dr. William Prescott, of Concord, met with a serious accident, in Boston Monday. He was standing on Washington Street reading a bulletin, when some one in the crowd pushed him, so that he fell, breaking his shoulder bone, and also injuring his hip. The Doctor was carried home Tuesday, and conveyed to his house on a litter.

In Rochester, Mr. John Whitehouse was holding his grandson Johnny Dorr, by the hand; Johnny injudiciously tried to turn round suddenly and broke a wrist by the twist and fall he got.

In Great Falls, Mr. William Atkins was thrown from his carriage and badly bruised. His little daughter had her left arm broken.

In Dover, Mr. Albert M. Canney was thrown out of his wagon and had a collar bone broken. Mr Hodgdon who drives an ice cart, was run over by his own team, breaking three ribs.

—A beautiful maiden at Lansingburg, N. Y., having been afflicted by the addresses of two lovers, usually also at the same time, adopted rather a novel means of ridding herself of them. A few evenings since they called at her residence in their best black suits. She left them together on pretence of going upstairs, and in a few minutes the servant maid made bold to enlist their services in the removal of some flour in the kitchen. They went fo work willingly, and the maid found so many additional jobs for them to do, that the poor fellows were finally glad enough to escape from the house without seeing the object of their affection. They never went again.

Communication.

Messrs. Editors:—Being particularly dependent on the limited and simple resources of the country, for amusement during the summer,—its flowers, its gentle and fragrant winds, its gorgeous sun sets; permit "a still, small voice" to breathe its gratitude, for your interest in preserving the lives of those charming little minstrels of the forest, that so largely contribute to the fleeting pleasures of this season, and are so cruelly tortured by reckless boys.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT? IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT. It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.

It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.

One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.75, and will only cover 16 square yds, 2 coats; while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.

The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.

The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago. Before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the

THE FLOWER GARDEN.—Evergreen hedges will require attention as they grow. Where the height desired has been attained, the top and strong growth should be cut back while they are still watery. The side shoots need not be touched till past midsummer. All wise people now employ the conical shape for hedges. In cutting back the top growth at this season, the conical form can still be preserved.

Cut off the flowers of roses as they fade,—the second crop will be much better for the attention. Seeds of all flowering plants should be also taken off; all this assists the duration of the blooming season.

Bulbous roots, when done flowering, and the leaves have faded, should be taken up and dried,—mixed with chaff, or other light loose material, placed in paper bags, and stowed away in a dry place till fall.

Dahlias should not flower early. Keep them growing till fall, when they will flower finely.—Gardener's Monthly.

BARNS IN FRANCE.—The barns at present coming into use, are built of brick dove-tailed into each other, no mortar being employed—and the interstices, ample for ventilation, will not permit the entry of vermin. The form of the building is round, two or three stories in height, with zinc roof. I have observed a few days ago, an oat-bin, some two feet high, standing in a corner of a stable, and occupying but a little space. It is filled from the top; the cover being secured by padlock. Outside is a graduated scale that marks the quantity of grain daily withdrawn, and forms a perfect tell-tale in the event of dishonesty.—Paris Cor. California Farmer.

HOGS IN CLOVER.—An Ohio hog raiser advocates the system of pasturing hogs on clover during the summer. He presents, as the advantage of this plan, the statement that an acre of ground in clover will pasture five hogs four months, and that it will take the corn from half an acre to feed them the same time; the cultivation of the corn he counts equal to the other half acre. He further claims that the hogs pastured on clover are in far better condition than if fed on corn, as they are better framed, healthier, and eat better; and also states that the land is enriched by the clover pasturing.

—A veritable descendant of St. Martha came into a neighbor's house in Buffalo a few days since, downcast, weary with many cares and cumbered with much to do; "cleaning, working, cooking, washing, sewing, and everything else! no rest; never was, and never will be, for me!" "Oh, yes," said the good woman she addressed, "there will be a rest one day for us all—a long rest," "Not for me! not for me!" was the reply. "Whenever I do die, there will be a resurrection the very next day! That would be just my luck!"

TO KEEP OFF CABBAGE WORMS dissolve half a pint or more of salt in a pailful of soap-suds or water, and with a watering-pot wet the leaves every other morning for a week. When there is no rain to wash off the salty sediment from the leaves, if it does not destroy all worms, lice, or insects that trouble the cabbage, experience will differ from mine for the last fifteen years.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of the remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be judiciously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists, to take one occasionally pill, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawje14eod6m

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 19, 1870.

WAR NEWS.—The Journal Officiel publishes a notification of the blockade of the coast of the German and Prussian States.

The blockade of the German ports having been established, Austria is permitted by the Russian government to pass merchandise, duty free, through the port of Riga.

There was a serious engagement at Gravellotte on Tuesday, in which the advantage was gained by the French, who lost heavily.

The new Prussian loan is unsuccessful at Hamburg.

General Sherican, with Consul-General Webster, has, through the good offices of Minister Bancroft, been cheerfully accorded permission by the military authorities, to follow the campaign with headquarters with the King of Prussia.

ABUSE OF SAILORS.—The Newburyport Herald says that probably few people who have not seen with their own eyes or been in a way of obtaining information on the subject, are aware to what extent common sailors may be and often are abused with impunity. They understand that poor Jack is looked upon as a legitimate object of plunder by all sorts of sharks, that he has to work hard and fare hard; that he now and then catches a rope's-end, to quicken his motions; has his sensibilities touched by an occasional damning, and on the whole has rather a rough, and yet jolly time generally.

But they do not understand that many ships are floating hells, over whose forecastles Dante could have plainly read, "all hope abandon, whosoever enters here," where from the first to the last day of the voyage such tortures of body and soul are endured that the victims sometimes prefer to risk all the hell there may be beyond, by deliberately committing suicide. "Man overboard" means sometimes more than is ever known, even if he is not knocked overboard by a passionate and brutal officer.

On such vessels it is a constant occurrence for men to be knocked down with marline-spikes, jumped on, kicked in the face and mangled out of all semblance of humanity, for the most trival offences, and even for unavoidable mistakes, errors of judgment or inability from sickness to perform their duties. Such vessels seldom come into port without their regular quota of gashed heads, broken jaws, dislocated ribs and constitutions impaired or ruined by confinement and starvation in irons.

It is but a few weeks since the master of a ship in New York was convicted of killing one of his men—it was called manslaughter, not murder—and it was settled by a fine less than his wages for the voyage. This was the third man that this same captain is known to have killed, one of whom he shot with a revolver from the yard-arm, our informant, who was one of his mates, being a witness to the act. To be sure he claimed it was his intention only to frighten him with the whiz of the ball, but at any rate no notice was taken of the matter.

This same brute shipped a crew in Liverpool, not a man of whom he had ever seen, and so of course could have had nothing against them, and when the shipping master sent them aboard, he stood at the gangway and dealt each one, as he passed, a severe blow, knocking several of them down, "just to show them," as he said, "that he was captain on board ship, and to give them a taste of his discipline." We trust there are not many such fiends at large, but the simple fact that this man has been suffered to command a ship twenty-five years, shows that something is radically wrong.

[Note. — The Newburyport Herald need not "trust that there are not many such fiends at large," for in the American merchant service they are numbered by hundreds. No dishonor or guilt attaches to the murder of an old sailor by his officer or captain—on the contrary, it is regarded as a proof that the murderer is a "smart man." A very large percentage of American ships are just such "floating hells" as the Herald refers to—fully one-third of the whole merchant fleet. I do not talk at random, for I have been to sea myself, and kept my eyes open while there. In less than fifteen years' service, I witnessed a number of murders, and knew of others and of many suicides; but the only man that ever was punished in connection with these affairs was myself—for I was sentenced by an American consul to be taken on board my ship in irons, for leaving her clandestinely to charge the captain with murder! And had I not been enabled to command an influence that surprised both skipper and consul, I have no doubt I should have been taken to sea, and knocked on the head as a "dangerous rascal," as soon as the ship was clear of the land. This state of affairs will never cease so long as the United States laws directly encourage and foster it. F.]

☞ In the republican county convention at Portland, a resolution was adopted declaring Governor Joshua L. Chamberlain the choice of the convention for United States Senator, to be chosen by the next legislature.

Communication.

PARTY SPIRIT. — Messrs. Editors :—Your paper of the 15th inst., contains a very correct and excellent article in respect to a "Free Press," and the obstacles and persecutions it has encountered under arbitrary governments in its progress, until it became free in England and the United States. It is very evident that the source of is improvement, has been the increase of knowledge, and in proportion to the increase, will be the gradual extirpation of despotic governments. It is said that knowledge is power. It is so when connected with the general diffusion of virtuous principles. But at the present period in our country, we are very reluctantly compelled to believe that money has more power than knowledge. The history of our democratic, republican government is less than a century, and during that short period, we have departed very much from the principles which underlie the government. Simplicity, frugality, and economy seem to be little regarded, as we increase in population, and advance towards the acme of national greatness.

The Press is, or ever should be, the camp of knowledge to the community. Its value is increased, by the increase of the knowledge of its Editors; and as a sequence, it becomes their duty to inculcate only correct political and moral doctrines. It is deeply to be regretted that the Press is fettered, in some degree, by party-spirit; or, at least, is constrained to support the political sentiments of the party which supports it. A bitter party-feeling has prevailed among religious denominations, ever producing enmity among the members, for a natural diversity of opinions. But that anti-Christian spirit seems to be abating, by the more general diffusion of knowledge. Rev. G. E. Ellis, in a sermon delivered in 1850, before the Convention of Congregational Ministers of Massachusetts, said:—"We wish to abate the miserable rancors of sectarianism, which is kept alive, in part, by ignorance, and in part by bigotry."

The point to which we wish to call the public attention, is to abate the miserable rancor of party-spirit, which endangers the perpetuity of our free institutions. It was the "bane" of the ancient Republics, which produced their downfall, and will be of ours, should it be indulged in to excess. Yet a proper degree of jealousy and watchfulness of our rulers and their measures, may be attended with salutary effects. But party-spirit has risen to a height, which overlooks the vital interests of the Republic. "In the Roman Senate, Octavius had a party, and Anthony had a party, but the Commonwealth had none." Parties at the present period, are too contracted in their views, too selfish in their objects, and while great efforts are made to reward partisan leaders and aspirants for office, the vital interests of the whole people are either heedlessly neglected, or else made a willing sacrifice, upon the shrine of party. The people have party predilictions; and a diversity of sentiment is the life of society. Truth is elicited from free discussion; but such discussion should not create personal enmity.

The Commonwealth is in need of a powerful party, acting with a single eye to its prosperity and welfare. But where is the party that offers no devotions, except upon the altar of our beloved country? The politicians attempt to widen the break between the two, at present, great parties. False accusations are iterated, and reiterated all over the land. The motive is to gain the political ascendency, in order that the leaders and noisy declaimers may gain the loaves and fishes of office. Now the great body of our virtuous and enlightened people are sound and patriotic; and North of the Mason and Dixon line are homogeneous. The idea that they are opposed to the sacred principles, which have led to the nation's glory, and placed her in the front rank among the nations of the earth, is absurd; for their vital interests are entwined with those of the whole people, and those to whom they confide their political affairs. An unprincipled politician, or demagogue of any party, who can be bribed, should never be trusted with political agency, no matter what party-name he may assume.

The present is a crisis in our State and national concerns, and there is no doubt that some, if not many, are capable of being corrupted by the golden influence. There is a great waste of the people's money, aproligacy, and disregard of economy, such as was never known in our past history. As all political power in this country is derived from the people, it becomes their duty to arise in the majesty of their strength, and elect to office those only who are incapable of being corrupted, and in whose integrity they can safely confide. SENEX.

FEW PEOPLE unacquainted with physiological chemistry are aware of the quantity of iron in the blood, but all should know the importance of keeping up the supply, for debility, disease and death are sure to follow when the quantity becomes too much reduced. The Peruvian Syrup (a protoxide of iron) supplies this vital element, and has cured many chronic diseases.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Life Sustaining Principle.

The vital and the muscular systems are entirely distinct from each other. A man may have the brawn of a Hercules, but if he is deficient in vital energy he will net wear as well, or last as long, or be as healthy and happy while he does last, as the man of ordinary, or even slender build, who possesses a larger share of this animating principle. One of the greatest recommendations of that pure vegetable invigorant, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, is that it increases the vital force of the system. No medicine can double the volume of a man's muscle, or chicken and vulcanize his thews and sinews; but Hostetter's Bitters has an effect much more important. Its use promotes constitutional vigor.

It reinforces the life-power, of which bone and sinew and muscle are merely the instruments, holding the same relation to it that machinery does to steam. Let the slight and apparently fragile take heart, they may have more stamina, though far less physical strength, than the broad shouldered athletes they regard with envy. To restore, to sustain, to increase this stamina principle which, when in full supply, is the source of health and the best guarantee of longevity, is a special property of the famous restorative. It is not only a specific for dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent fevers, constipation, &c., and a preventive of all diseases of a malarious character, but the best of all medicines for strengthening the constitution and awakening the powers of nature, from whatever cause they may have become lethargic. au6dawlw

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Life Sustaining Principle.

The vital and the muscular systems are entirely distinct from each other. A man may have the brawn of a Hercules, but if he is deficient in vital energy he will net wear as well, or last as long, or be as healthy and happy while he does last, as the man of ordinary, or even slender build, who possesses a larger share of this animating principle. One of the greatest recommendations of that pure vegetable invigorant, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, is that it increases the vital force of the system. No medicine can double the volume of a man's muscle, or chicken and vulcanize his thews and sinews; but Hostetter's Bitters has an effect much more important. Its use promotes constitutional vigor.

It reinforces the life-power, of which bone and sinew and muscle are merely the instruments, holding the same relation to it that machinery does to steam. Let the slight and apparently fragile take heart, they may have more stamina, though far less physical strength, than the broad shouldered athletes they regard with envy. To restore, to sustain, to increase this stamina principle which, when in full supply, is the source of health and the best guarantee of longevity, is a special property of the famous restorative. It is not only a specific for dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent fevers, constipation, &c., and a preventive of all diseases of a malarious character, but the best of all medicines for strengthening the constitution and awakening the powers of nature, from whatever cause they may have become lethargic. au6dawlw

THE EQUITABLE

LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY OF THE UNITED STATES,

Office No. 92 Broadway, New York.

The Most Successful Life Insurance Company in the World.

A Surplus Premiums of Profits returned to the Policy-holders, instead of being partially or wholly appropriate to the use of the Stockholders, as is the usage with all "Mixed" and "Proprietary" Companies.

Dividends made Annually, from the start, and not postponed until the third, fourth or fifth year as in most other Companies.

Profits apportioned to the assured on the "Contribution plan," which is conceded to be the only equitable mode of division; and not by the mode adopted by many companies, which is grossly UNJUST to a large proportion of the Policy-holders.

Assets in Cash, $15,000,000.

(None of this is in the Notes-of-hand of Policy-holders, as in many other Companies.)

Its Annual Income, $8,000,000

(No portion of this is composed of Promissory-Notes, as in all Note-Companies.)

The Cash Income is constantly increasing with tremendous rapidity, and as a necessary consequence, swelling the enormous cash accumulation which forms the security to Policy-holders.

All Premiums and all Losses Paid in Cash.

No Promissory-Notes to be deducted from the face of the Policy when it matures, as in all Note-Companies.

☞ Does "the whistle" get dryer than usual, like everything else, this droughty weather?

☞ Capt. Sheafe Coffin, of Sagamore Creek, who was thrown from his carriage several weeks ago, was injured so severely that he has been confined to his home ever since.

☞ The Organ exhibition and Concert at the Universalist Church this (Friday) evening, is dog-cheap at a quarter a ticket—and this arrangement will afford those who will really enjoy the entertainment, an opportunity to do so in comfort.

The Organ was all in place and tuned on Thursday. It is sweet, and Dr. Wilcox will display all its beauties and powers. The case is elegant, of black walnut, with gilt and silver pipes—quite unlike anything in the city.

☞ The Cocheco Band, of Dover, Jere. Rothwell leader, were in town on Thursday, with an excursion party from that city. They went to the Shoals in Steamer Favorite, and returned home in the evening.

Br. Libbey, of the Dover Enquirer, was of the party; and the Baud, on their return from the Shoals, favored the printers with some fine music. They play well, and look nice in their dress of dark blue and gilt.

☞ The Rockingham Quarterly Meeting of Freewill Baptists, was held at Kittery Point the 17th and 18th insts. The fourteen Churches included, were fairly represented by delegates. No business of special importance. Opening sermon by Rev. J. Burnham Davis of Great Falls; other sermons by Rev. J. S. Burbank of Danville, Rev. A. Caverno of Candia, and Rev. J. A. Lovell of Newmarket.

☞ A memorial sermon will be delivered on Sunday evening next, in this city, probably at the North Church, under the auspices of the Masonic Fraternity, as a tribute of respect to their late lamented Brother, Admiral D. G. Farragut, U. S. N. Rev. Jas. J. Kane, Chaplain of this naval station, is appointed to conduct the service. Mr. Kane was long intimate with the deceased—having been appointed by his request, and sailed with him during two years of the war.

☞ Senator Patterson is spending a few days at Rye Beach—the Farragut House, &c. He passed the night Wednesday, with Hon. J. H. Bailey, in this city.

S. R. Niles, Esq., and family, of Boston, are at the Sagamore House—and while returning thither from this city, on Wednesday afternoon, with three ladies in his carryall, a passing carriage, by the other horse sheering, ran into, and crushed down one of his hind wheels, throwing Mr. Niles out, but not seriously injuring any of the party; as his horse remained quiet.

☞ We collate from the Boston papers, the best report we can find, of Rev. Dr. Montgomery's remarks at Admiral Farragut's funeral. None of them do justice to the speaker. We thought a verbatim report was made for one of the presses represented, or we should have attempted such for the Chronicle.

Admiral Farragut may well be called Admirable. Himself his only peer—his title, like his quality, dies with him, —the noblest sailor, the humblest hero, the devoutest christian of them all.

The funeral arrangements, as to the hearse, &c., were in charge of Mr. J. F. Adams, undertaker; and it was no fault of his, that the leading pair of the team of four black horses provided (being unused to the position, and not selected by him,) becoming restive and contrary early in the march, had to be detached and removed. We never could see the necessity or desirability of funeral corteges moving at the dying snail's pace usual to them, and it takes horses a good while to learn to submit to it. The hearse, (which is a nice carriage of the sort, and the private property of Mr. Adams) surmounted with black plumes, and drawn by four black horses, with black housings, and plumes in their heads, received the body at the Navy Yard landing, and finally delivered it at the Church. Here the arrangements were in charge of Mr. Robert King, the former experienced and genteel sexton; Mr. Nath'l Cate, the present sexton, attending to the seating of the procession.

The body bearers were twelve jack tars. The vollies at the grave were fired by a section of Marines.

FARRAGUT.—Rev. Dr. Montgomery's Funeral Remarks.—The glorious old Admiral, he said, was dead, and the news of bereavement had flashed to every heart in the Continent, and the nation wept to-day over one not more honored than he was beloved. Soldiers and sailors, and ministers of God, and influential and prominent citizens, and civic bodies, came up this day to tenderly consign to his narrow house, one who was as much distinguished for his purity of character as for his greatness in war.

As the press had spread abroad a faithful account of his life and history, he would not detain them by referring to them, but would allude to one or two salient points in his career. One of the greatest points in the Admiral's character, was his compliance with that beautiful law which regulated Grecian architecture, his obedience and trust in the laws of God. He supposed is would be hard to find within the range of human experience a man of greater impersonation of truth than Admiral Farragut.

He spoke and lived the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

"He never sold the right to serve the hour, Nor paltered with Eternal God for power."

On this characteristic, and in his modesty and freedom from ostentation, history will place him by the side of Washington and Wellington.

His exploit at Mobile in his lofty post of danger, presiding over the battle, is typical of his whole life. And here, said the Doctor, "I wish to state a fact which is not generally known to this congregation and the public: On that occasion, while the Admiral was lashed in the rigging of the Hartford, he offered up a prayer, using the following words: "Oh, God, my Maker, lead me to do this day what is right and best for my country." In answer to the prayer, the Admiral said he heard a voice from Heaven which seemed in tones of thunder to say "Go forward." He obeyed the voice and went forward. He followed the dictates of his own determined soul, and conquered.

In speaking of his tender and sympathetic nature, the Reverend gentlemen said that no man ever united the feminine qualities and the fortitude of woman, and the more robust attributes of the sterner sex, more than he. His life in its lofty elevation reads the lesson to our youth, that he who obeys the high behests of duty, with toil of heart, and head and hand, shall find those hights of duty scaled, close upon the shining table lands of heaven.

"O good gray head which all men know,
O iron nerve to each occasion true—
O fallen at length that tower of strength [blew,"
Which stood four square to all the winds that

One suggestion he wished to make, that the Government and people could do no more noble act than to erect to his memory a pure white column, surmounted with his statue and inscribed with some of the thrilling exploits of his life.

Dr. Montgomery spoke of the Admiral's devout and humble reception of the Holy Communion, some five months ago, in remembrance of our adorable Redeemer, and of the comfort the Admiral derived from some of the beautiful hymns of the prayer book, among them "Jesus, Saviour of my Soul" and the grand hymn, "How firm a foundation, ye Saints of the Lord."

The reverend gentlemen closed with a classic allusion to the distinguished dead, and applied it to the departed hero before them.

THE CENSUS.—The Census Commissioner has made an estimate of the population of the United States. He fixes it at 40,300,000. He says the large cities of the country will fall twenty per cent. below the estimates placed upon their population, for the reason that the estimates are all based upon calculations made of the number who have come into a city, but no note taken of the number who have left. Chicago, according to the census, has a population of only 250,000; she claimed 400,000. Cincinnati has barely 200,000; she claimed over 300,000. It is so in all the Western cities, and, to a greater extent, in the Eastern cities.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.
The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrants us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.
These bonds have 30 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

ALL FOLKS,
WHO ARE WEAK, whose appetite is poor, whose blood needs iron, who are bilious, whose stomach and nerves need to be strengthened, will be benefitted by
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Liver is acted on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the vegetable tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the digestion of Iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.
MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel to act on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect medicine. It purifies the blood and imparts IRON to it. It acts on the Liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is a most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons whose blood is poor, and who need Iron and a strengthening medicine. 2moddwly20

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse." CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of practitioner ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

RICHARDSON'S
LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, is light and durable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocket-handkerchief to a
LARGE BED SPREAD,
without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.
If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.
RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.
Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.
The sale of the LITTLE WASHER is unprecedented, not only in Portsmouth but everywhere else where it has been introduced. All who desire one of these valuable Little Machines will do well to apply early, as the demand is greater than the supply. J. J. HATLINGER, Agent.

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Morning Chronicle.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

PROBABLE BENEFIT OF THE WAR.—The Franco-Prussian War has been discussed to a considerable extent, its author (either Bismarck or Napoleon, as the sympathies of the looker-on may decide,) denounced, and its probable results considered, by quite a number of people outside the two countries employed in the war business; but one probable beneficial result seems to have been entirely overlooked. Yet this particular effect of the struggle, (should it turn out as I anticipate,) is of far more importance to the happiness and well-being of our people, than any alteration of the map of Europe can be.

What does it matter, to us, that France wants to steal a beer-garden from Germany, or that Prussia wants to steal a wine-shop from France? True, Napoleon has but few sympathizers, comparatively, among our native born population; he long ago proved himself a traitor to popular liberty, and his endeavor to establish a Franco-Austrian Empire on this continent, at a time when Columbia had other business than frog-hunting to attend to, will not soon be forgotten. But if France is satisfied with the rule of the Man of the 2nd of December, we needn't growl at it; and we can well afford to forgive Nap for his Mexican performance, since it was such a complete failure. But there is one reason why every good and virtuous man should desire the success of Prussia and the downfall of Napoleon. This reason is the chignon.

To France and Napoleon, through the Empress Eugenie, we are indebted for the deformity of pretty much the whole female sex. Eugenie, not a great while after her marriage, in some freak of fancy adopted hoops; our American ladies took up the fashion, and for a long while it was hard work to get near enough to a woman to speak to her. But they didn't like that, themselves, and so the female armor was soon reduced in circumference. But big hoops were only a nuisance; the chignon is a positive outrage on male humanity.

It may be laid down as an axiom, that there is nothing in this sinful world so pretty to look at as a pretty woman; but what a fearful thing it is, when a man expects to see an angel, for a big-headed creature (unlike anything in the heavens above, the earth beneath, the waters under the earth, or any other place,) to make her terrible appearance to him. I have suffered my share from this cause—hav'n't seen a woman with a well-built head for four years—all deformed. Notwithstanding, this is written more in sorrow than anger; I can still say, with the poet, "Woman, with all your faults (and goodness knows you've got enough of 'em) I like you still." But if the sex could once be freed from the tyranny of the jute bug, my happiness would be greatly increased.

This desirable result cannot be bro't about by either reason or fear. If Eugenie chooses to make a fright of herself, all the women in christendom will follow suit, though death and perdition stand in the way; and the Prussian artillery is our only hope for emancipation from her chignon. Had she remained a mere Spanish countess, no notice would have been taken of her, had she swelled her head to the size of a barrel; and if the Prussians can only knock the Empire to pieces, they will at the same time knock the disfiguring bunches of false hair and buggy jute from the heads of the women, and render them comely to look upon once more. May kind fortune smile on the liberators. JUTE-BUG.

☞ Justin McCarthy's new story is to begin in the September Galaxy. It opens in London, but it is evident that the scene must soon change to this country. The great reputation Mr. McCarthy has made as an essayist, will cause this novel to be regarded with peculiar interest. The title is, "Lady Judith: A Tale of Two Continents."

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.

It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for exterior use is glass and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it.

One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds., 2 coats: while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.

The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.

The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the

MARRIAGE GUIDE,

Being a private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and relations of married life, and the causes and prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents. Address, Dr. WM. YOUNG, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

☞ AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUNATE.—No matter what may be your disease, before you place yourself under any one of the notorious QUACKS—native and foreign—who advertise in this or any other paper, get a copy of Dr. Young's Book and read it carefully. It will be the means of saving you many a dollar, your health and possibly your life. o15oy

Dr. Young can be consulted on any of the diseases mentioned in his publications, at his office, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

CAUTION.

TO FEMALES in Delicate Health. DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, No. 7 Endicott, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other Menstrual Derangements, are all treated on new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accomodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

WEIGH THESE WORDS.

ALL WHO SUFFER from indigestion, billious disorders, nervous affections, constipation or stubborn relaxation of the bowels, are invited to consider these facts, viz: That the curative operation of Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient, in all such cases, is proven by overwhelming testimony; that profound medical practitioners endorse it; that Analytical Chemists pronounce it identical with the water of the great German Spa; that it purifies the blood, regulates the system without weakening it; that it is delightfully refreshing, and that every element it contains is either corrective, alterative, or invigorating. A CARD TO THE LADIES.

DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILL. FOR FEMALES.

Infallible in correcting irregularities, and removing obstructions of the monthly periods. It is over forty years since these now so well known pills were first brought to notice by Dr. Duponco, of Paris, during which time they have been extensively and successfully used by some of the leading physicians, with unparalleled success. Ladies in poor health, either married or single, suffering from any of the Complaints peculiar to Females, will find the Duponco Golden Pills invaluable, viz., General Debility, Headache, Paintness, Loss of Appetite, Mental Depression, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Loins, Bearing-down Pains, Palpitation of the Heart, Retained, Excessive, Irregular or Painful Menstruation, Rush of Blood to Head, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Fatigue on any slight exertion, and particularly that most annoying, weakening ailment, so common among Females, both married and single, the Leucorrhœa or Whites. Females in every period of life will find Duponco's Pills a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. They invigorate the debilitated and delicate, and by regulating and strengthening the system, prepare the youthful constitution for the duties of life, and when taken by those in middle life or old age they prove a perfect blessing. There is nothing in the pills that can do injury to life or health. Safe in their operation, perpetual in their happy influences upon the Nerves, the Mind and the entire organization.

THE CLAMMERS.

A Long Way After Kingsley.

There went three clammers over the flats,
Over the flats as the sun went down,
And they all of them had on sou-wester hats,
And oil-skin suits that had faded brown,
And on their feet there were rubber boots,
The biggest boots there were in town.
For men must work, and women must weep
Though the night is dark and the river deep,
Or there'll be no clams in the morning.

And their shadows stretch a mile before,
A mile before as the sun goes down,
And their wives each sit at her cottage door,
Knitting yarn of the lamb's soft down,
And hearing the waves on the sandy shore,
And each wears a red and yellow gown.
For men must work and women must weep,
While he must dig, she doth vigil keep,
Or there'll be no clams in the morning.

One of the clammers, his name was Jack,
His name was Jack, and his wife was Jane,
By a Bottle Imp was laid on his back,
A spirit distilled from the juice of the cane,
Dead drunk on the flats he lies, alack!
Till the foaming tide comes back again.
For men will drown, and women will weep,
And the bottle kills men as the rot does sheep,
If they swill from it night and morning.

—Newburyport Herald.

A REMINISCENCE.—Among the first settlers in the eastern portion of New Hampshire was an Irishman, who first made his home in what is now the town of Durham. He was a very frugal and industrious man, and possessed of that sterling element incident to success, common sense. He cultivated some acres of land, and during the winter used to busy himself in splitting and shaving shingles. His market was Portsmouth, whither he carried his shingles in a flatboat.

After a time he bought a large tract of land in what is now South Berwick, Me.—This he cleared to a considerable extent, and cultivated. At the same time he managed his smaller farm in Durham, and still continued his trade in shingles. During these years he was not married, and was obliged to shift for himself mostly in all matters of a culinary nature, unless he "changed works" with farmers and boarded with them.

At this time, which was in the early history of our country, ship-masters were accustomed to take men and women from Ireland and sometimes from England, "on tick," or, in other words, they gave them credit for passage, and when they arrived in America, they, the emigrants, allowed themselves to be "set up" at auction for their passage; the person who bid them off paying the passage money and allowing the men and women to work themselves clear of debt on the farm or elsewhere.

A ship load of these poor men and women came into Portsmouth. They, like others, sold their labor at auction, or allowed it to be sold by the Captain. The Captain well knew our Irish hero, having traded with him before. Upon the day of the auction he had sold out all his passengers except one woman. For her there had been no bidders. The Irishman's boat was alongside the Captain's ship, and the latter bantered the former to buy the woman he had on board. The Irishman came on board and took a glance at this piece of personal property, dressed in bonnet and gown, and told the Captain that he would "swop" his load of shingles for the woman. "Done," said the Captain, and the transfer was shortly made.

The sequel is,—the Irishman rowed his lassie home, and after a brief courtship, married her, after the manner of Christian custom. Ten or twelve children were the fruit of the marriage. One of the sons became a General in the Revolutionary army, whose patriotism and exploits are a part of history. So says tradition.—Exeter News Letter.

WILLOW FENCE.—In giving a description of Mr. D. Whitfield's farm near Pontiac, a correspondent of the Michigan Farmer says, the first thing that took my attention was a willow fence. Its beauty and its thriftiness was quite an attraction; and on examination I found it was a living protection against cattle, sheep or hogs. This fence has grown up so rapidly that the shoots were strong enough for stakes. These were put in from two to three feet apart, and the smaller shoots were wattled between them. The stakes all grew, sending out their straight thick shoots, and the larger layers in the wattles followed the example.

There are enough shoots now on this hedge to furnish a great number of farms with sets, and it can be trimmed every year into any shape that suits the owner, supplying sets by the million, and there is now a great demand for them. He has other hedges coming on, and he intends to fence his whole farm as fast as it can be conveniently done. This is the best and most rapid growing fence I have yet seen, and I have no doubt will be a great acquisition to the agricultural community. As the stakes grow in size, the hedge stiffens and grows in strength.—Exch.

H. T. HELMBOLD'S
CONCENTRATED
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
THE GREAT DIURETIC.

The proprietor trusts that his Remedies, from the fact of their being advertised, may not be classed as Patent Medicines.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU is a pharmaceutical preparation. The proper name is given, and it is the most active which can be made. It is endorsed as a cure by all medical works for such diseases as recommended by the proprietor. It is pleasant in its taste and odor, free from all injurious properties, and is taken by adults and children. It is tonic, diuretic, blood-purifying, and invigorating. Enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes will find it far more strengthening than any of the preparations of bark or iron.

See medical properties contained in Dispensatory of the United States, of which the following is a correct copy:—

BUCHU.—Its odor is strong, diffusive, and somewhat aromatic; its taste is bitterish, and analogous to that of mint. It is given chiefly in complaints of the urinary organs, such as gravel, chronic catarrh of the bladder, morbid irritation of the prostate gland, and retention or the incontinence of urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in the evacuation. It has also been recommended in dyspepsia, chronic rheumatism, cutaneous affections, and dropsy.

TESTIMONY.

Cure of Gravel of Five Years Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

SAVANNAH, TENN., May 14, 1869.
Dr. H. T. Helmbold,
DEAR SIR: We introduced your "Fluid Extract Buchu" in this county about eight months ago, and are happy to state that it is meeting with universal favor. We wish to inform you that one instance (among many) where your "Buchu" has worked wonders. A man in our county, named J. B. Redell, had been suffering about five years with gravel.
About six weeks ago he bought of us one bottle of your "Buchu," and before he was through with one bottle he passed a gravel that weighs eight grains, which we now have on exhibition in our drug store. He says that he will never be without the "Buchu" in his house again. Your preparations are gaining favor every day.
Very respectfully yours, &c.,

Cure of Bladder and Kidney Affection of long Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

WESTPORT, CONN., Sept. 9, 1869.
H. T. Helmbold, Esq.,
DEAR SIR: I commenced taking your "Extract of Buchu" about two weeks since for a affection of the bladder and kidneys. I have suffered by spells very much for a few days past. But yesterday relief came through the effect of your "Buchu." A stone passed from my bladder about the size of a large pea, and I now feel perfectly well and entirely free from the pain that I have suffered with so hard. I attribute my cure to your medicine entirely, and would recommend all persons similarly affected to try it. I have great faith in its curative powers.
Yours truly, THOMAS J. BENNETT.

GIRARD, PA., March 31, 1869.
Editor Cosmopolite: I desire, as an unsolicited tribute to the merits of Helmbold's Buchu, and for the benefit of those similarly afflicted as myself, to say that after consulting many eminent physicians, and trying nearly all the best advertised Remedies, in the vain hope of finding relief from agonizing kidney and bladder diseases, from which I have suffered excessively for many years, good fortune finally suggested to me Helmbold's Buchu, which I commenced using with little faith, and no apparent beneficial results for about a month.
At the expiration of that time, however, I thought I commenced to experience slight relief, which encouraged me to persevere in its use, and now, at the expiration of four months, although I am an infirm old man, nearly 78 years of age, and consequently medicines cannot be expected to favorably affect me as they otherwise would, I have found such unspeakable relief and permanent benefit from Mr. Helmbold's valuable discovery, that I feel I ought to publicly record the fact, as an acknowledgment to him, and a valuable suggestion to the public. Yours respectfully,
D. M. LAREN.

DR. KEYSER
is a physician of over thirty years' experience, and a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College, and of the University of Medicine and Surgery of Philadelphia. Hear him:
Mr. H. T. Helmbold.
DEAR SIR: In regard to the question asked me as to my opinion about Buchu, I would say that I have used and sold the article in various forms for the past thirty years. I do not think there is any form or preparation of it in the market, that is known to be used for the various diseases where such medicate agent would be indicated. You are aware, as well as myself, that it has been extensively employed in the various diseases of the bladder and kidneys, and the reputation it has acquired, in my judgment, is warranted by the facts.
I have seen and used, as before stated, every form of Buchu—the powdered leaves—tincture, fluid extracts—and I am not cognizant of any preparation of that plant at all equal to yours. Twelve years' experience ought, I think, to give me the right to judge of its merits; and, without prejudice or partiality, I give yours precedence over all others.
I value your Buchu for its effect on patients. I have cured with it, and seen cured with it, more diseases of the bladder and kidneys than I have ever seen cured with any other Buchu or any other proprietary compound of whatever name.
Respectfully yours, &c.,
GEO. H. KEYSER, M. D.,

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Jan. 28, 1868.
Mr. H. T. Helmbold,
DEAR SIR: Your communication requesting our terms for advertising was duly received, but from a prejudice I had formed against advertising "cures for secret diseases," it was left unanswered. During an accidental conversation in a drug store the other evening, my mind was changed on the character of your Buchu. It was then highly commended for other diseases by two physicians present. Proceed please find our rates to advertising. Yours, T. B. H. STENHOUSE,
Ed'r and Prop'r of Telegraph.

HELMBOLD'S BUCHU.
TESTIMONIALS.

A Permanent Cure of Gravel of twelve Years' Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

BURNSIDE, CONN., Dec. 15, 1869.
Dr. Helmbold,
DEAR SIR: It is with much pleasure that I write you upon facts respecting myself. I do not feel disposed to allow my name to express myself. I have been for the last ten or twelve years the greatest sufferer man could be and live; but more sometimes than others. The complaint was the "Kidneys" and "Bladder." I have been sometimes from twelve to fourteen hours, and wanted to make water every minute, and could not. Have consulted doctors, both in Massachusetts and this State, and taken pills, I may say by the quart, also liquored medicines, but found no relief I had any, and got worse the last six months. I was so that I could scarcely get about. I could not rest night or day.
It would soon have been "all up" with me if I had not seen your advertisement headed "Kidneys." I read it through and thought I would try it. I purchased a bottle, but, mind you, had not much faith in it. My surprise was when I had been trying so many things that cost me so much? Well, I began taking it, and before I had taken the first bottle I felt bad, but I finished it and got another. By the time I took half of the second I still got worse (apparently.) When I walked it seemed as if my right kidney was falling from its place, and I felt sick and bad. Salt so, before I had finished the second, that I had madeup my mind it was of no use trying any more—and all from time the "Buchu" was doing its work, but I did not know it, so I gave it up and went to Hartford on Saturday to one of the best doctors in the city. He said it was the neck of the bladder, and I should have to undergo an operation. He gave me medicine, and I went home quite downhearted.
On Sunday I was unable to go to church. I had not taken any of his medicine, but on my return continued using the "Buchu," and in the afternoon I had a desire to make water, but could not. About one hour after this I tried again with the same result; but the next time I took the vessel it was the same as turning a faucet and stopping it off again. I tried so for three times, and the third time there was something came through the passage and struck against the side of the vessel. I examined it, and it is the ugliest stone or gravel you ever saw, covered over with little pieces which collected together. It looks the color of a nut-meg, and is as hard as flint. So you see the "Buchu" was doing its work, although I was feeling so badly. I procured another bottle, thinking there might be some more behind; but since that I have passed, which is eight weeks ago last Sunday. I have been as well as ever I was in my life. I have the stone securely wrapped, and those who have seen it in this place are surprised.
I cannot tell you all, but this is a true story of my case, and you are welcome to make such use of my name as you think proper. I am pretty well known in Berkshire; also in Connecticut. The advertisement saved me. Why not publish more? If any one wished, I think I could do so. I could write all day, but I think I have said enough this time. so I remain your ever well-wisher, EDWARD L. HOWARD,

N. Y. S. VOL. INSTITUTE,
Corner of 5th av. and 35th st., Central Park,
(Home and School for the Sons of Deceased Soldiers.)
Dr. H. T. Helmbold,
Two bottles only of the package of your valuable Buchu presented to the Institute have been used by the children, and with perfect success. In the case of our little Lieutenant A. J., his pride is no longer mortified, and he is free from the daily morning anathemas of the chamber-maid who has charge of the building.
I feel that a knowledge of the result of our use of your Buchu with the children under our charge may save many a Superintendant and Matron of Boarding Schools and Asylums a great amount of annoyance; and many a poor child suffering more from Weakness than from Will, may be spared punishment, that is (not knowing it as a weakness instead of a bad habit) most unjustly inflicted upon them. Thanking you on behalf of the children, and hoping others may be alike benefitted, I am respectfully yours,
COL. YOUNG, General Sup't and Director.

A Case of Twenty Years Standing.

PHILADELPHIA, PENN., June 25, 1867.
H. T. Helmbold, Druggist.
DEAR SIR: I have been a sufferer for upwards of twenty years with gravel, bladder, and kidney affections, during which time I have used various medicinal preparations, and been under the treatment of the most eminent physicians, experiencing but little relief.
Having seen your preparations extensively advertised, I consulted my family physician in regard to using your Fluid Extract Buchu.
I did this because I had used all kinds of advertised Remedies and had found them worthless, and some quite injurious; in fact, I despaired of ever getting well, and was induced to use Remedies hereafter unless I knew of the ingredients. It was this that prompted me to use your Remedy. As you advertised that it was composed of Buchu, cubebs, and juniper berries, it occurred to me and my physician as an excellent combination; and, with his advice, after a careful examination of the article, and consulting again with the Druggist, I concluded to try it. I commenced to use it about two months ago, at which time I was confined to my room.
From the first bottle I was astonished and gratified at the beneficial effect, and after using it six weeks was able to walk out. I felt much like writing to you a full statement of my case at the time, but thought my improvement might only be temporary, and therefore concluded to delay it, and see if it would effect a perfect cure, knowing that it would be of greater value to you and more satisfactory to me.
I am now able to report that a cure is effected after using the remedy for five months. I have not used any for the last two months, and feel as well in all respects as I ever did.
Your Buchu being devoid of any unpleasant taste and odor, a nice tonic and invigorator of the system, I do not mean to be without it whenever occasion may require its use in such affections.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.—Several accounts of the battle before Metz have been received. They agree in one particular, that the French went back to Metz—whether they were driven back or whether they retreated, our readers may decide for themselves. Marshal Bazaine admits a heavy loss, but claims that the Prussians lost more than the French, and that they were compelled to retreat. The Prussian despatches say that the Prussians withdrew only when the French retired behind the fortifications, and they claim to have captured 2000 prisoners and several cannon. The Prussians asked for an armistice to bury their dead, which Marshal Bazaine refused to grant. It is said that the siege of Strasbourg is very slack; that Metz is completely invested and that the defences of Paris are rapidly strengthening. Paris despatches claim that Marshal Bazaine can get his army round to Chalons without any difficulty, but other trustworthy correspondents say that the Prussian army is the nearer Chalons.

At Metz, the Prussian Generals Doering and Widel were killed, and Gens. Rausch and Grucher were wounded.

There was an obstinate engagement, Tuesday, at Mars La Tour. Travellers report that a vast body of Prussians have been thrown back on the Moselle by the Imperial Guard.

In the battles at Metz, 40,000 French troops were engaged. The Prussian loss is computed at 20,000. The French loss is comparatively small, owing to the aid afforded by the cannon of the adjacent fortress.

Marshal Bazaine telegraphs that the Prussians were repulsed along their whole line.

Gen. Trochu has taken command at Paris.

It is pretty certain that the Prince Royal of Prussia was wounded in one of the battles around Metz.

Ollivier has left France for Italy, and was jeered at by his fellow citizens.

A naval engagement in the Baltic resulted in the withdrawal of the Prussian fleet.

Eugenie and the Prince Imperial are at Paris.

A New York dispatch says the general opinion at the military clubs is that Bazaine and Trochu have outgeneraled the Prussians. At the battles of Tuesday the Brandenburges and Pomeranians, the finest of the Prussian troops, were literally decimated, and of the Prussian Guard not one full regiment remains fit for service.

Russia is assuming a menacing attitude against Prussia.

Gens. Frossard and Bataille were wounded—the latter seriously.

Near Schlettstadt the French peasants attacked a detachment of Prussian dragoons and made them prisoners.

The London Times has a Berlin dispatch which states that part of the French army under Gen. Bazaine has been surrounded near Metz and will have to cut its way out or surrender. Also, that the French army has been cut in two at Mar La Tour.

Nineteen Prussian spies have been shot.

Gen. LeGrand was killed in a brilliant cavalry charge. Prince Albert of Prussia was killed. The Prussians admit a loss of 8000 killed. Four regiments were nearly exterminated by the French mitrailleurs.

A reported fight at Thionville, in which 80,000 Prussians whipped 108,000 Frenchmen, the entire loss on both sides being 40,000, lacks confirmation.

FAIR?—The Exeter News Letter says that for several and satisfactory reasons, among which are the holding the Salisbury Beach Annual gathering and the Strafford Fair, on or about the time fixed for the Fair, the officers of the Rockingham County Agricultural Society have postponed the Fair to Sept. 22d, 23d and 24th, at Kingston. The News Letter also announces the Committees at the Fair, but although there are a hundred members in this city, and many more in all the towns around,—yet not one name from any town in this vicinity, do we notice, nor are the meetings or Fairs ever advertised here.

The Exeter town Agricultural and Horticultural Society will hold its second annual exhibition, Oct. 6th and 7th.

The 75th anniversary of the old Francestown Academy was celebrated on Wednesday. Harry Brickett, a former Principal, was President of the day; Miss Florence Atwood wrote an ode of welcome, which was sung; and Hon. C. L. Woodbury, (whose father was born in Francestown,) delivered an oration.

At a meeting held in the Universalist Church in Dover, it was reported that $3,300 had been raised toward the Murray Fund, for the education of clergyman in the Universalist faith, the proportion of this State toward the $200,000, which is the total of the Fund, being $6,000. A number of societies are yet to be reported. About $9,000 has been raised in the State for general purposes during the present year.

The new town of Harrisville held its maiden town-meeting on the 13th.

The condition of the venerable Dr. Prescott of Concord is extremely critical.

Darius Towle, hotel-keeper at Kingston, has been arrested and tried on two old complaints, for selling liquor; and, in turn, he has arrested the complainant and witnesses for some criminal offence against the peace and dignity of the State.

Mrs. Jere. Carter, a widow in Kingston, was examined for liquor selling, and found guilty of the charge. She appealed, and S. S. Collins, one of the Good Templars Committee for the prosecution, became surety for her appearance at the Fall term of the Supreme Judicial Court.

Darius Towle & Son, of Kingston, purchased at auction, for $1,275, the house, barn and land, at Crawley's Falls, in Brentwood, formerly the property of the late Jonathan Morrill.

The Haverhill Publisher says that the police of that city had a pretty busy time one day lately, "picking up mad men, made so by bad liquor. One howling fellow, belonging to Brentwood, was taken down through Merrimac street in a job wagon, with 'ornaments' on his wrists to prevent his doing harm. He made 'Rome howl,' attracting crowds by his drunken yelping. The devil in him, which could not be cast out in a hurry, was a noisy one."

Rev. John A. Lowell of Newmarket has received and accepted a call from the Free Will Baptist Church of Lawrence, Mass.

☞ During the recent annual visit and inspection of the Eastern Railroad and branches, by the Railroad Commissioners of Massachusetts, with the officers of the Road and invited guests —the party was under the personal supervision of Supt. Prescott.

Soon after arriving at Salem, the special train with its company departed over the branch for Marblehead, where they made a short stop, and then returned to Salem, then proceeded to Gloucester and Rockport, leaving the main line at Beverly. On this branch there was the hopeful circumstance of reaching Paradise without absolute translation; and to the immense satisfaction of the party, Paradise, — into which they had entered, in the flesh,—and a good dinner, were co-relative circumstances. This paradisal dinner on board the train, standing on the track in a beautiful shady grove, was a circumstance to be noted among the pleasurable incidents of the day.

Returning again to the trunk road at Beverly, the company now started on the long stretch to Portsmouth. It was no part of the purpose of this excursion to exhibit specimens of speed, but rather of safety; nevertheless the engineer of the train, — Mr. William Calder,—knowing his "team," put the party along over the Gloucester track at the tolerable rate of thirteen miles in fifteen minutes. * * *

We have spoken above of the speed made on the return from Gloucester, over that branch, which though not remarkable, was good; and we have now to mention that on the road from Salem to Lawrence, Mr. Calder slipped his train along over five miles in four minutes, being at the rate of seventy-five miles an hour.—Bunker Hill Aurora.

SOUTHERN CHIVALRY!—George B. Butler, consul at Alexandria, writes as follows:—"The Americans here are are chiefly ex-confederates, and the sun finds them food to nourish their deep dislike of a "Yankee Consul-General.' They at first gathered around the consulate, got drunk on my wines and liquors, and then wanted to fight me for being Ben Butler's nephew."

STEAMBOAT MURDER.—The steamer Tampico, brings news of a collision of two steamers on July 25th, at the mouth of the river Madura, Brazil, one of the tributaries of the Amazon, in which 160 lives and one steamer, with a cargo valued at $450,000, were lost.

☞ Whittemore of South Carolina has withdrawn from the South Carolina Congressional contest.

☞ Ex-Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey has declined the English mission.

ANIMAL KINDNESS, AND KINDNESS TO ANIMALS.—It is very well to preach kindness to animals, and to practice it when you can; but brute intelligence is sometimes directed against the master or owner, instead of for his interest. For instance, why does every horse, after his mane is combed and brushed smooth, immediately shake it all up into a muss again, like a nasty little young one? And why do all horses enjoy knawing trees and posts, rolling in the dirt when they are cleanest, (like young ones again), and rubbing a nice harness whenever they can?

The most docile and intelligent horse among our acquaintance, will run back, determined to break his tether, when placed in a narrow stall or shed and tied, as soon as any one approaches his head to back him out; but if the stall be wide, or he be not tied, he will stand quiet—and even be he intent on backing out too speedily, a whip held over and behind him, and this alone, will cause him to come out at a proper pace. Words and coaxing will not do it.

But the most provoking case of all, was that of an otherwise valuable horse lately owned for several years by Capt. C. H. Salter of Greenland, but which, after exhausting every effort to overcome his contrary disposition, he has finally been obliged to sell, to go on a stage team. This horse formerly used to run away with his driver, when he felt inclined; but the buckeye bit applied pretty severely on two such occasions, was a complete cure—and now he seems to have made up his mind that his owner should not ride after him; and many a time has the brute utterly refused to budge an inch so long as the Captain was in the carriage, but would go kindly enough so long as he was out, if he led him, or any body else drove; but the instant he got in again, (even if he stealthily climbed in behind, while the team was in motion, as he has many a time,) it was no go again. Bah! talk about the nobility of a horse. Call him useful, valuable, desirable, or what not, but never noble. Why, he will flinch at the first appearance of danger, and desert his master at the moment he is most needed.

Then when hawks clutch your doves, and the doves drive one another; and strange dogs rush in and kill your pet chickens, and the chickens scratch up the lawn and garden; and the cats dig holes in choice flower-pots and beds, or the cats themselves get stolen; or stray cows hook down trees and shrubs—these, and a thousand like occurrences: Can such things be, and not o'ercome us like a summer cloud? If so, then you are fitted for rural felicity,—drought, thievish, drunken neighbors, vandal boys to kill birds and hack trees, and all included. F.

THE HEDDING CAMP MEETING, at Epping, will commence on Monday, August 29, and close on Tuesday, September 6. The committee have decided to extend the time of the meeting by holding it over the Sabbath. The grounds and the grove, in their natural features, are as near perfection as can be. Rev. James Pike, presiding Elder of Dover District, will have charge of the religious services.

THE NAME OF FARRAGUT.—A correspondent of the New York Evening Post says:—"The late Admiral Farragut told me that his name was a corruption of Farrocuto, an old Majorca nobility name. He found a Countess Farrocuto in Paris, who treated him as cousin."

SPECIAL NOTICES.

False Pretenses.

The vast and continually increasing sales of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have provoked the envy of a certain class of dealers in various parts of the country, who are trying to substitute their utterly worthless local nostrums for the most popular proprietary medicine in the world. These impostors hope by their false statements to obtain from the millions who patronize the great American Tonic, a sufficient number of customers to make their speculations upon the health of their neighbors profitable. As the demand for Hostetter's Bitters is now so large and urgent as to tax to their fullest extent the facilities for its manufacture, these petty attempts to wring in the merest trash by false representations, are of little consequence to its proprietors.

They are, however, a serious evil to the victimized. If, for example, at this warm season, when a real invigorant is greatly needed, the sufferer from general debility, indigestion, biliousness or nervous weakness, is coaxed into using a wishy-washy compound without any medicinal virtue, instead of the sovereign specific in which the rarest tonic and alterative vegetable elements are scientifically combined, it is obvious that he will rue the day when he allowed himself to be thus deluded. It is in the interest of parties who have been or may be influenced by the persuasion of plausible charlatans, that this article is published. With the light of twenty years experience to guide him, why should the invalid take a leap in the dark? au20dawlw

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Admiral's Flag Abroad—Foster Shores & Co.
Varieties—Dauchy & Co., N. Y.
Notice—Piscataqua Lodge, I. O. O. F.

☞ Admiral Farragut made no request to be buried at Annapolis, as has been stated.

☞ Steamer Appledore will excursionize to Wells Beach on Sunday. See advertisement. The management is in good hands and strict order will be maintained.

☞ ACCIDENT.—A young son of Mr. F. O. Prince of Boston, about ten years of age, fell from an apple tree at the Saloon of G. H. Jenness, at Rye, on Thursday afternoon, and broke his left wrist.

☞ Mr. James Wingate of this city swam from the Portsmouth Bridge to the stone beacon, a distance of one mile and a quarter, on Thursday evening, in the incredible short time of 35 minutes. It was slack water at the time, and he had no advantage in the tide.

☞ We were somewhat surprised in not seeing in the funeral procession of Admiral Farragut, more distinguished persons from the neighboring state of Maine. The only prominent persons we noticed were Gen. M. F. Wentworth and Francis Bacon, Esq., of Kittery.

☞ Delehanty, Hengler & Bloodgood's Minstrels are to give an entertainment here on the 1st of September. The three above mentioned individuals can't be beaten in their forte—which forte is comic dancing; and a crowded house will greet their first joint appearance.

☞ Rev. Dr. Lamson will preach at the Middle St. Baptist Church to-morrow; Rev. Dr. Peabody, at the Unitarian Church, Rev. Mr. Adams, the pastor, at the North Church—and Chaplain Kane of the Navy, will deliver a memorial address there, in the evening, on Admiral Farragut.

☞ At Gilbert's Fruit Store, on Daniel Street, at last, we find some peaches worth eating. They come from Delaware, and are really nice and sweet; and with Water Melons from Jersey, help out a meal on a hot day very finely. Gilbert has all the fruits and berries in their season, at wholesale or retail,—at the lowest prices always.

BASE BALL GOSSIP.—The "Horn Brothers," who recently played with the Sawyer Club of Dover, N. H., against the Granite State Club of Portsmouth, N. H., turn out to have been Messrs. Whitney and Conway of the Clipper Club of Lowell, who were hired to play in the match game against the Portsmouth club. The Dover club have gained an unenviable reputation by the transaction; and if there was a Base Ball Association in New Hampshire, and these two clubs members thereof, the game would be given to the Granite State Club by a score of 9 to 0—as it most certainly should be. In a fair and square match, we judge that the Granite State Club can "walk all around" the Dover boys.—Boston Daily Times.

There remains but one part of the story untold. The captain of the "Sawyers" paid the "Clipper" players $28, and the Sawyers didn't reimburse him! Honorable people, those Sawyers?

THE ALDERMEN, Thursday evening, voted to pave the gutters adjoining the sidewalks, in front of Exchange Block and S. W. Moses' store on Pleasant St., and Carr's and Nowell's Blocks on State St.

A letter to the Mayor, from T. J. Flanders of Lynn, complaining that he struck his foot and fell and injured himself, on account of a defect in the sidewalk near corner of Market and Russell Sts., in April last, while visiting his son,—was lain on the table. Mr. F. states that he has found four others who have been hurt there, that he has been unable to work since, and that he shall not be satisfied he can get no further damages until twelve men say so.

Frank Jones, by his Atty., notified the City that any damage or expense he may suffer by defect in the culvert under the railroads, he shall claim from the City. It is said that the drain there was laid by the Railroad, on a base or flooring of plank, eight inches thick, and that thus there is a stagnant deposit of dead water or sediment kept back to this depth, inside the Railroads. The matter was referred to the Mayor and Com. on Sts.

The Mayor was authorized to have the city dials on the North Church spire painted.

The hearing on the petition to widen Fleet St., is fixed for Sept. 1st.

—The acrobats of every household—The picher and tumbler.

—What Spain is suffering from—an a-King void.

—Boston's favorite—Jamaica plain.

THE MUFFIN EXCURSION to Rye Beach came off on Thursday afternoon, and every one who took part in it enjoyed himself hugely. The former base ball match was won by the Foul Batters by a score of 36 to 31; but this time the Heavy Muffers were too many guns for the Foul Batters and won the game, 58 to 42. The batting throughout the whole game was heavy, but no home runs were recorded, as the heavies couldn't run fast over the slippery grass. It was a scene to remember for a long time. Some of the players became so tired of running that in attempting to catch the ball there would be a general capsize amid enthusiastic cheers. The strenuous exertions of the two-hundred-pounders to hit the ball and make their bases, were ludicrous to behold, and the gentle whispers of the players as they exchanged advice could be heard less than a mile off.

The score book was 36 inches long by 7 inches wide, and was edged in red and gold. The constructing artist was engaged for hours on it before it was pronounced well and good.

After the close of the game about twenty-five muffers and friends sat down to a nice chowder prepared by Mr. G. H. Jenness, and showed their appreciation of it by the enthusiasm with which it was received. Having orgagized by the choice of Mr. Wm. P. Kennedy as Chairman, Mr. M. M. Miller, Poet of the occasion, read some verses in which some of the players were happily mentioned. A grand bowling match wound up the festivities of the day, and lo, Dan. Leavitt's score led all the rest. The party started for home after one of the merriest of "times" it has been our fortune to witness, serenading everybody on the route.

The thanks of the Muffers are due to Mr. G. H. Jenness and his estimable wife for favors extended, and especially for that refreshing lemonade served on the field of battle.

As each nine has won a game, a third game is necessary and it is proposed to play it at the Plains in about four weeks, leaving ample time for the wearied Muffers to recover their usual elasticity of limb.

HOW TO BE NOBODY.—It is easy to be nobody, and we can tell you how to do it. Go to the drinking saloon to spend your leisure time. You need not drink much now; just a little beer or some other drink. If you read, read the dime novels of the day. Thus go on keeping your stomach full, and your head empty, and yourself playing time-killing games, and in a few years you'll be nobody, unless, as is quite likely, you should turn out a drunkard or a professional gambler, either of which is worse than nobody.—Exchange.

☞ Thornton B. Hoyt, of Exeter, a hotel-keeper we believe, has been appointed a Dep. Sheriff for this County. Thorn is a good fellow enough, but we presume it will hardly be expected that he should prove much of a substitute for a State Constable, on the liquor question.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to enhance them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. RICHARDSON'S

LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocket handkerchief to a

LARGE BED SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

The sale of the LITTLE WASHER is unprecedented, not only in Portsmouth but everywhere else where it has been introduced. All who desire one of these valuable Little Machines will do well to apply early, as the demand is greater than the supply. J. J. HATLINGER, Agent.

AYER'S

HAIR VIGOR,

For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is then restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.

Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a gummy compound, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.

If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a graceful perfume.

"The groves were God's first Temples—the resounding wood,
All vocal beings hymned their equal God."

CAMP MEETINGS. — Early religious teaching was in the open air. Moses and the prophets usually gave instruction to the people and delivered their prophecies in out-of-door places. The Great Teacher, when on earth, sometimes spake in the Temple and in Jewish synagogues, but more frequently in the mountains, by the seaside, and in other places where the people convened in the open air.

Whitefield, Wesley and others had out-of-door meetings, chiefly because such crowds attended as could not get into places of worship.

In earlier times in our own country, for the lack of meeting houses, or such as would contain large numbers, fields or groves would be occupied.

From causes similar to these, Camp Meetings had their origin. They have been peculiar to the Methodists, but some other denominations in the West, and perhaps in the South, have had them.

The first we have an account of in Rockingham County, was in Sandown. One was held there in 1823. We were young, but were in attendance that year or the next, (for it was held there two successive years,) and recollect John N. Maffit, with his nervous—almost theatrical—and impressive way of speaking.

Then liquors were sold near the ground. Rowdyism was the consequence. And in a sermon by Rev. John Broadhead of Newmarket, we recollect his alluding to certain "lewd fellows of the baser sort," whom he had seen near the encampment the evening before; and he said they were so vile that if Satan finally got them in the infernal regions, he would hardly thank them for having been so bad, or wish them in his presence.

A camp meeting then was a small affair, compared to what camp meetings are now. The tents were small, perhaps 15 or at most 20 in number, in a small circle, enclosing a space where twelve or fifteen hundred persons could be seated.

There was then more noise, enthusiasm and excitement than now. Special efforts were made to enclose in the gospel net as many as possible. But as the Son of the Most High taught in a parable, the net took in good and bad. One day, at this meeting, "Nal" was found with evidently much feeling. He was a notorious tippler, and liquor was the spirit he felt then, but those who talked with him did not know that was what moved him. He was invited forward for prayers. He knelt; prayers were loud and earnest, but with his perverted sensibilities they were not enjoyable. He arose and hastened away, exclaiming, "I cannot stand such a confounded noise."

The supporters of these meetings had full confidence in their utility, but some years passed without any other being held in this County. Some time later one was held near the borders of Newington or in Greenland, if we recollect rightly. For two years one was held in Chester. Here, after one discourse, a large prayer meeting was held inside of a large circle of people, who stood around. Ministers and others went through the crowd, to invite those who seemed serious to go forward for prayers. The worthy pastor of a Congregational church in a town near by, wore a very sober look; and he was asked by a stranger to go inside, for prayers in his behalf. He mildly replied that he had some good hopes of saving grace. Another day he was with the preachers on the stand.

We cannot give the years, but a camp meeting was held in the part of Chester now called Auburn; one at Derry, two or three years. After this, a place in East Kingston, on the Boston & Maine Railroad, was fixed upon, and one was held there a number of years. But one summer the Second Adventists, under the lead of Wm. Miller and J. A. Himes, occupied the place for a camp meeting. It was advocated that time would end in 1843. There was a very unsound interpretation of the Scriptures, and many things wild and discordant. To many of the Methodists the associations of the place were afterwards not agreeable nor devotional, and in process of time a place was located between Exeter and Newmarket. The Adventists had a meeting there also. In 1846-47 one was held at Epping. Then perhaps ten or twelve years ago, it was fixed at Newmarket Junction, and held annually for some years. It became a very great meeting, but on two great railroads large numbers of the bad assembled, and caused much rowdyism; and it was much work to preserve order. On one occasion the Presiding Elder, Rev. J. Thurston, received a blow on his head in the night, which laid him aside for several days.

Finally an Association was formed, land purchased in Epping, and for four or five years it has been held there. This year it is to commence on Monday, August 29. We may give some account of the place, and some report of the meeting as it shall be in progress.

EXCITING ENCOUNTER WITH A HORSE. The Montgomery (Mo.) Standard says: One of the most exciting scenes and terrific encounters that it has been our privilege to record, occurred at the ford near L'Outre Lick last week. The facts, as we received them from an eye witness, are these:

On Saturday evening Mr. Thompson Moore and a gentleman by the name of Thompson, residing in lower L'Outre township, were returning home from Dunville, and stopping at the ford of L'Outre, proposed to take a bath and water their horses. Mr. Moore was riding a very fractious mustang pony. He started into the water with her, and when he had ridden in to where the water was deep enough to swim her, the pony commenced rearing and plunging, and finally succeeded in throwing Mr. Moore.

In the fall, Mr. Moore received an ugly wound on his right ankle and foot, from a stroke of the forefoot of the pony, which somewhat disabled him for a while. The pony reared up with her forefeet entirely out of the water, made a dart at Moore, which would have ended the fight then and there, had not Moore, quick as thought, darted under her body, came out in her rear, and made for the shore as fast as his hands and legs could carry him. The pony saw him, and with blood running from her nostrils, in her fury and excitement, and the devil in her eye, she wheeled and made another plunge at him, which was avoided by Moore diving under the water and swimming some distance under water.

This time Moore reached the bank in safety, but had no time to allow the grass to grow under his feet. The pony was after him immediately, and an exciting race took place on the bank for the distance of about fifty yards, when Moore was compelled to take to the water again to save his bacon. He seized a stout club and jumped off the bank into the deep water, the pony following. He swam rapidly to a log lying about midway in the creek, and mounting it, he gave the pony a severe blow as she came up in hot pursuit. This seemed to cool her excited feelings, and she started back for the shore.

Now the pursued became pursuer, and Moore soon overtaking the pony, mounted, and after administering several severe blows on the head of the pony, with his club, succeeded in conquering her. The battle was short but severe. Moore says his pony may go dirty hereafter; he does not intend to wash her again by swimming.

FLIES ON HORSES.—The Ploughman says:—"Carbolic Acid Soap seems to be a most valuable remedy for many of the troubles and annoyances to which farm stock is subject. As a sheep dip, as an exterminator of vermin, as a plant wash, as an ointment for galls and sores, in fact, as a remedy for almost every farm trouble, it has proved successful. A friend of ours, a few days since, being obliged to drive a valuable horse twenty or more miles, and knowing that flies would prove troublesome, conceived the idea that a wash of carbolic acid soap suds over the entire coat of the horse would protect it from flies. The wash was applied, and through the day, although myriads of flies swarmed about the horse, and even alighted on it, not one made an effort to draw blood.

Now, with a remedy against these pests so easily available, (a large piece of the soap costing only a few cents, and procurable at almost any druggist's store,) there is no excuse for neglecting to provide it. Let a pailful be made, and keep it standing in the stable. Whenever a horse is to be taken out, either for the road, field, or pasture, dip a sponge into the suds, and moisten the animal's coat with it. The time required would not be a minute, and the cost not a cent, but the benefit rendered to the animal would be very great."

BORROWING.—If one were to walk up any of our thronged streets, and ask every stranger he met, "Would you like to borrow ten thousand dollars?" it is probable that, if the inquiry were presumed to be made in good faith, nine tenths or more of them would eagerly answer "Yes." Ours are a sanguine and an enterprising people, most of whom believe that they need but Capital to enable them to achieve great results. And yet it is not probable that one-fourth of those who so borrowed $10,000 would ever be able to repay it. The capacity profitably and safely to employ and invest so large a sum is even rarer than its possession. Few learn how to use means much faster than they, by industry and management, acquire and retain them; and those most eager to borrow are generally the slowest to pay. Of young men who have as yet earned little or nothing, I doubt that even so many as one in ten would be benefitted by a considerable loan, at least until they had laboriously earned and honestly saved a like amount.—H. Greeley.

WHEN TO PRUNE APPLE TREES.—A correspondent of the Times, Watertown, N. Y., gives the following result of his experience in pruning apple trees:—"It has long been a practice among farmers to begin pruning apple trees in February, mainly, I suppose, because there is leisure time. There are reasons why this should not be done. There will not be sufficient action in the tree to harden the surface where a limb has been taken off before the sap ascends in the spring. When this action does take place, the sap flows out and spreads over the surrounding bark, and by chemical action is changed to a poisonous fluid, which greatly injures the tree. Trim your fruit trees in August, and I guarantee you will have no black hearted trees." Boston Cultivator.

ADMIRAL FARRAGUT was a good man, as well as a brave one. On the night before the attack on Fort Morgan, in Mobile Bay, the men of his vessel asked for grog before going into action next morning. "I have no particular objection to your having a little grog," he said, "if there is any on board; but I have been to sea a good many years, and have seen some fighting, but I have never seen the time when I needed rum to help me do my duty."

—One afternoon recently, a severe fight came off near the corner of Main and Foss streets, Biddeford, between one Lee and a Frenchmen, to whom the the former was indebted for board. A quarrel about the bill caused several lively fistic and pedal motions, which resulted in the Frenchman being left hors du combat. He was removed to a shop of which he is the proprietor.

— The Rondout Courier gets this story from an operator in that village: A member of the Masonic order telegraphed to a companion down the river somewhere, "Make room for ten Royal Arch Masons. Coming to day." When the companions arrived they found a pen had been built for their accommodation, the telegram at its destination reading, "Make room for ten R A Ms. Coming to-day."

—"There are people," said a gentleman, to a friend, "who never see an afflicted person but they pray to Heaven to be delivered from such a terror. Now, I never see a blind man, but what I pray to be deaf." "Why?" "Because I am conscious that he is going to play a clarionet or a hand-organ at me."

—The annual meeting of the Maine Dental Association assembled in the Council Room, City Hall, Biddeford, Aug. 16. A very respectable number were in attendance.

H. T. HELMBOLD'S
CONCENTRATED
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
THE GREAT DIURETIC.

The proprietor trusts that his Remedies, from the fact of their being advertised, may not be classed as Patent Medicines.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU is a pharmaceutical preparation. The proper name is given, and it is the most active which can be made. It is endorsed as a cure by all medical works for such diseases as recommended by the proprietor. It is pleasant in its taste and odor, free from all injurious properties, and is taken by adults and children. It is tonic, diuretic, blood-purifying, and invigorating. Enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes will find it far more strengthening than any of the preparations of bark or iron.

See medical properties contained in Dispensatory of the United States, of which the following is a correct copy:—

BUCHU.—Its odor is strong, diffusive, and somewhat aromatic; its taste is bitterish, and analogous to that of mint. It is given chiefly in complaints of the urinary organs, such as gravel, chronic catarrh of the bladder, morbid irritation of the prostate gland, and retention or the incontinence of urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. It has also been recommended in dyspepsia, chronic rheumatism, cutaneous affections, and dropsy.

Cure of Gravel of Five Years Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

SAVANNAH, TENN., May 14, 1869.

Dr. H. T. Helmbold,

DEAR SIR: We introduced your "Fluid Extract Buchu" in this county about eight months ago, and are happy to state that it is meeting with universal favor. We wish to inform you of one instance (among many) where your "Buchu" has worked wonders. A man in our county, named J. B. Estell, had been suffering about five years with gravel.

About six weeks ago he bought of us one bottle of your "Buchu," and before he was through with one bottle he passed a gravel that weight eight grains, which we now have on exhibition in our drug store. He says that he will never be without the "Buchu" in his house again. Your preparations are gaining favor every day.

Very respectfully yours, &c.,
ECCLES & HINKLE, Druggists.

Cure of Bladder and Kidney Affection of long Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

WESTPORT, CONN., Sept. 9, 1869.

H. T. Helmbold, Esq.

DEAR SIR: I commenced taking your "Extract of Buchu" about two weeks since for an affection of the bladder and kidneys. I have suffered by spells very much for a few days past. But yesterday relief came through the effect of your "Buchu." A stone passed from my bladder about the size of a large pea, and I now feel perfectly well and entirely free from the pain that have suffered with "so hard." I attribute my cure to your medicine entirely, and would recommend all persons similarly affected to try it. I have great faith in its curative powers.

Yours truly,
THOMAS J. BENNETT.

Cure of Kidney and Bladder Affection of a Patient Seventy-eight years of Age. Thanks to Mr. Helmbold.

GIRARD, PA., March 31, 1869.

Editor Cosmopolite: I desire, as an unsolicited tribute to the merits of Helmbold's Buchu, and for the benefit of those similarly afflicted as myself, to say that after consulting many eminent physicians, and trying nearly all the best advertised Remedies, in the vain hope of finding relief from aggravated kidney and bladder diseases, from which I have suffered excessively for many years, good fortune finally suggested to me Helmbold's Buchu, which I commenced using with little faith, and no apparent beneficial results for about a month.

At the expiration of that time, however, I thought I compared to experience a little relief, which encouraged me to persevere in its use, and now, at the expiration of four months, although I am an infirm old man, nearly 78 years of age, and consequently medicines cannot be expected to favorably affect me as they otherwise would, I have found such unspeakable relief and permanent benefit from Mr. Helmbold's valuable discovery, that I feel I ought to publicly record the fact, as an acknowledgment to him, and for public suggestion to the public. Yours respectfully,
D. M. LAREN.

DR. KEYSER
is a physician of over thirty years' experience, and a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College, and of the University of Medicine and Surgery of Philadelphia. Hear him:

Mr. H. T. Helmbold.

DEAR SIR: In regard to the question asked me as to my opinion about Buchu, I would say that I have used and sold the article in this city for the past thirty years. I do not think there is any form or preparation of it I have not used, or known to be used, in the various diseases where such medicate agent would be indicated. You are aware, as well as myself, that it has been extensively employed in the various diseases of the bladder and kidneys, and the reputation it has acquired, in my judgment, is warranted by the facts.

I have seen and used, as before stated, every form of Buchu—the powdered leaves—tincture, fluid extracts—and I am not cognizant of any preparation of that plant at all equal to yours. Twelve years' experience ought, I think, to give me the right to judge of its merits; and, without prejudice or partiality, I give yours precedence over all others.

I value your Buchu for its effect on patients. I have cured with it, and seen cured by it, more diseases of the bladder and kidneys than I have ever seen cured with any other Buchu or any other proprietary compound of whatever name.

Respectfully yours, &c.,
GEO. H. KEYSER, M. D.,
140 Wood Street, Pittsburgh, Penn.
August 11, 1865.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Jan. 28, 1868;

Mr. H. T. Helmbold,

DEAR SIR: Your communication requesting our terms for advertising was duly received, but from a prejudice I had formed against advertising "cures for secret diseases," it was left unanswered. During an accidental conversation in a drug store the other evening, my mind was changed on the character of your Buchu. It was then highly commended for other diseases by two physicians present. Incosed please find our rates for advertising. Yours, T. B. H. STENHOUSE,
Ed'r and Prop'r of Telegraph.

HELMBOLD'S BUCHU.
TESTIMONIALS.

A Permanent Cure of Gravel of twelve Years' Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

BURNSIDE, CONN., Dec. 15, 1869.

Dr. Helmbold:

DEAR SIR: It is with much pleasure that I write you upon facts respecting myself. I do not know hardly how to express myself. I have been for the last ten or twelve years the greatest sufferer man could be and live; but more sometimes than others. The complaint was the "Kidneys" and "Bladder." I have been sometimes from twelve to fourteen hours, and wanted to make water every minute, but could not. Have consulted doctors, both in Massachusetts and this State, and taken pills, I may say by the quart, also liquored medicines, but found no relief from any, and got worse the last six months. I was so that I could scarcely get about, I could not rest night or day.

It would soon have been "all up" with me if I had not seen your advertisement headed "Kidneys." I read it through and thought I would try it. I purchased a bottle, but, mind you, had not much faith in it. Why should I, when I had tried so many things that could not cure me? Well, I began taking it, and before I had taken the first bottle I felt bad; but I finished it and got another. By the time I took half of the second I still got worse (apparently.) When I walked it seemed as if my right kidney was falling from its place, and I felt really bad. I failed, before I finished the second, that I had maddened my mind It was of no use trying any more—and all this time the "Buchu" was doing its work, but I did not know it, so I gave it up and went to Hartford on Saturday to one of the best doctors in the city. He said it was the neck of the bladder, and I should have to undergo an operation. He gave me medicine, and I went home quite downhearted.

On Sunday I was unable to go to church. I had not taken any of his medicine, but on my return continued using the "Buchu," and in the afternoon I had a desire to make water, but could not. About one hour after this I tried again, with the same result; but the next time I took the vessel it was the same as turning a faucet and stopping it off again. It was so for three times, and the third time there was something came through the passage and struck against the side of the vessel. I examined it, and it is the ugliest piece of gravel you ever saw, covered over with little pieces which collected together. It looks the color of a mud turtle, and is as hard as flint. So you see the "Buchu" was doing its work, although I was feeling so badly. I procured another bottle, thinking there might be some more behind; but since that time I have passed, which is eight weeks ago last Sunday, I have been as well as ever I was in my life. I have the stone securely wrapped, and those who have seen it in this place are surprised.

I cannot tell you all, but this is a true story of my case, and you are welcome to make such use of my name as you think proper. I am pretty well known in Berkshire and in Connecticut. The advertisement saved me. Why not publish more? If any one wishes to see this wonder, they can do so. I could write all day, but I think I have said enough this time, so I remain your ever well-wisher, EDWARD L. HOWARD,

Dr. H. T. Helmbold,

Two bottles only of the package of your valuable Buchu procured for this Institute have been used by the children, and with perfect success. In the case of our little Lieutenant A. J., his pride is no longer mortified, and he is free from the daily morning anathemas of the chamber-maid who has charge of his bedding.

I feel that a knowledge of the result of our use of your Buchu with the children under our charge may save many a Superintendent and Matron of Boarding Schools and Asylums a great amount of annoyance; and many a poor child suffering more from Weakness than from habit, may be relieved from unjustly merited punishment, for a weakness instead of a bad habit) most unjustly inflicted upon them. Thanking you on behalf of the children, and of the singing masters may be allke benefitted. I am respectfully yours,

COL. YOUNG, General Sup't and Director.

A Case of Twenty Years Standing.

PHILADELPHIA, PENN., June 25, 1867.

H. T. Helmbold, Druggist.

DEAR SIR: I have been a sufferer for upwards of twenty years with gravel, bladder, and kidney affections, during which time I have used various medicinal preparations, and been under the treatment of the most eminent physicians, experiencing but little relief.

Having seen your preparations extensively advertised, I consulted my family physician in regard to using your Extract Buchu.

I did this because I knew that all kinds of advertised Remedies and had found them worthless, and some quite injurious; in fact, I despaired of ever getting well, and determined to use no Remedies hereafter unless I knew of the Physician. It was this that prompted me to use your Remedy. As you advertised that it was composed of Buchu, Juniper, and Uva Ursi, I thought it occurred to me and my physician as an excellent combination; and, with his advice, after an examination of the article, and consulting the Druggist, I concluded to try it. I commenced to use it about eight months ago, at which time I was confined to my room.

From the first bottle I was astonished and gratified at the beneficial effect, and after using it three weeks was able to walk out. I felt much like trying to do a full business, but for one of the time, but thought my improvement might only be temporary, and therefore concluded to defer, and see if it would effect a perfect cure, knowing that it would be of greater value to you and more satisfactory to me.

I am now able to report that a cure is effected after using the remedy for five months. I have not used any now for three months, and feel as well in all respects as I ever did.

Your Buchu being devoid of any unpleasant taste and odor, a nice tonic and invigorator of the system, I do not mean to be without it whenever occasion may require its use in such affections.

M. McCORMICK.

Should any doubt Mr. McCormick's statement he refers to the following gentlemen:
Hon. Wm. Bigler, ex-Governor of Penn.
Hon. Thomas B. Florence, Philadelphia.
Hon. J. C. Knox, Philadelphia.
Hon. J. S. Black, Philadelphia.

Portsmouth, N. H.

MONDAY, AUGUST 22, 1870.

WAR NEWS.—A French dispatch says the Emperor left Metz with the advance guard, on Sunday week, for Verdun. On that day there was a bloody and protracted engagement. The Prussian army was repulsed and lost from 16,000 to 18,000 men. Nearly all their cannon were captured.

The Prince and Princess of Wales are unusually harmonious in their almost open sympathy with the French. The Prince's feeling is believed to rest on a great dislike of his brother-in-law, the Crown Prince of Prussia.

The native chiefs of Algeria are raising a force of 20,000 cavalry for the French army, which will soon be ready to start at a moment's notice. Over 30,000 Algerian volunteers have also demanded leave to serve with the armies of France.

Paris is now a stronghold, and the armed force is very great. The admiralty has equipped the forts, which have been armed completely. Enormous quantities of provisions have been stored in the city, and much more is arriving daily. Mills have lately been erected there, capable of furnishing more flour than the resident population could use. Some of the heaviest dealers in grain have engaged to furnish all that is needed without any reference to the price, leaving that matter altogether to the discretion of the government.

La Liberte publishes a leader urging reprisals. It says that the Prussians, without pity, shoot peasants and tax heavily the population. They war like savages. Let us do what the laws of war permit—tax the population of the Prussian coast. Let our ships at Bremen, Hamburg, Lubec, Dantzig, Konigsberg, and along the whole coast, make requisitions of all kinds. Let no time be lost. We must treat the enemy as we are treated.

The French Army was defeated, west of Metz, on Thursday, after a 9 hour's fight. Their communication with Paris was intercepted and they were forced back on Metz.

The losses on both sides on Tuesday and Wednesday were 50,000 killed and wounded. The Prussians have lost 100,000 men since they entered France. The French army is 400,000 strong.

England is becoming alarmed because there are not breech-loaders in that country sufficient to arm 50,000 men.

The serious illandness sudden death of Emperor Napoleon are reported.

Prince Albert, nephew of the King of Prussia, was killed at the head of his regiment on Tuesday.

The bombardment of Strasbourg has commenced.

The French have succeeded in victualling Strasbourg. It is admitted that the corps of Prince Frederick Charles has suffered severely.

The French seem to be slowly retreating, inflicting immense losses as they retire. A defeat of the Prussian army in the interior of France means its total destruction.

A Sunday dispatch says Marshal Bazaine's force made an attempt to cut through the Prussian army at daybreak of Saturday, but was repulsed with great loss after three hours' fighting. Bazaine's communication with Paris is cut off. A battle at Chalons is reported.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

THE LADIES' FAIR AT GOSPORT, Isles of Shoals, for the benefit of the Day School, was very successful. The proceeds from the sale of the many beautiful articles furnished by the ladies, with refreshments, &c., amount to $140.79, with a surplus of twenty or thirty dollars, worth left on hand, which will be sold at cost.

The ladies present their thanks to the visitors from Portsmouth and other towns, for their kind attentions and purchases; and also to the visitors from Appledore, who have very generously and kindly contributed so much to the success. H.

THE ARMY.—The regular weekly list of officers resigning and mustered out of the service is larger than at any time since the re-organization of the army at the close of the war. The reduction contemplated, as the effect of the last army bill, is going forward more rapidly than was expected.

The Department has already refused to accept the resignation of second lieutenants, since there are no longer any superfluous officers in that grade.

☞ The National Labor Congress, in session last week at Cincinnati, passed a resolution denouncing repudiation, 45 o 15.

☞ The Organ Concert at the Universalist Church on Friday evening, was a most enjoyable occasion of the sort. Dr. Wilcox entertained his appreciative but not large audience, as well as it was possible for one man to do, and exhibited thoroughly all the graces and powers of the new organ. His own improvisation especially, showed the great variety of pipes and combinations, while the thunder storm called out all the volume.

Comparisons are odious, therefore we shall not make any; but we think there is no superior instrument in the city for church use. The tone throughout is sweet and rich, and the lack of the extra sub-bass pipes which several others have, we regard as no loss. The show front of the instrument, consists mostly of pipes; and it would appear rather better were there greater height of space; as the floor of the organ loft was sunk a foot to receive it, and the top reaches close to the ceiling.

We congratulate this enterprising Society on the possession of so grand and beautiful an instrument, and trust that it may aid them still more to enjoy and improve their worship. Mrs. J. A. Sanborn we believe will continue their organist.

The maker was Johnson, of Westfield, Mass., and the work reflects great credit upon his establishment. There are several new improvements in the action, coupling of stops, &c., and everything is arranged and adjointed to operate in the easiest and most convenient manner possible. The action is astonishingly easy and prompt; and the stops being set quartering, so as to face half round to the player instead of directly square in front, as usual, is a great convenience.

☞ The Journal's brilliant "condenser" needs a change of diet and we recommend the following for his next week's meal:—

Buy a bean, bathe it well, put in 12 quarts of Piscataqua river water, boil it six hours, by an avoirdupois clock, take it out and wipe it thoroughly dry with a soft towel, lay it on its northwest side, about two degrees sou-sou-westerly; bore a hole gently in each end, abstract the "inwards" very quietly without mussing it very much; then stuff one end with soft boiled rice and the other end with rice boiled soft. The end that points North should, in all instances, except in cases of extreme hæmorrhage, be stuffed first; then take the south side of the shell off gently; then the east carefully, then sweeten with salt, and it will taste so much like rice you'd never dream that it was a bean.

BASE BALL.—It is proposed to play the third mufflin match on Thursday of this week. A meeting to decide the matter will be held at 7 o'clock this evening at the store of M. T. Betton & Co.

☞ The voters living within smell of the Creek cess pool, throwing party aside, are seriously considering the subject of nominating candidates for city officers pledged to abate the nuisance. G.

THE HEAD GUARDS, Capt. Urch, returned to Manchester, Saturday evening, after camping out a week at New Castle. We "rather think" they have enjoyed themselves, hereabouts.

☞ A fire has been raging in the woods on and about Mount Agamenticus, York, for several days. On Thursday, 200 cords of cut wood was burned.

☞ The meeting of the Mechanics' Association, to consider having a Celebration this Fall, stands adjourned to Tuesday evening, at their rooms.

☞ George Martin, the missing shoemaker, was at Baltimore at last accounts and had not suicided.

☞ There was a brilliant auroral display in the North and East, Friday night.

A COMPARISON.—A statement has been prepared at the Treasury Department, giving a comparison between the expense of the government under Buchanan and under Grant. It shows that during the last fiscal year of Buchanan's administration the expenses per capita were two dollars and one cent. Estimating the present population at forty millions, and deducting from the present expenses, such as arise directly from the war, so as to compare such items as were usual, the expenses of the government for the fiscal year of 1869 and the per capita expense is one dollar and sixty-four cents. This last amount is made on a gold basis at the average of the year, which was at twenty-three per cent.

☞ Ottawa, Canada, has had no rain for more than two months. A terrific gale occurred there and at Quebec, Thursday night. The destruction of life and property was great.

☞ Admiral Farragut's portrait will adorn the new government bonds.

☞ Gold, Saturday, 115 5-8.

THE LAST HONORS.—No name stands out more gloriously in the record of our country's last revolution, and indeed all through his life, than that of Farragut. Few indeed of modern times stand equal to it—perhaps none save Grant, Stanton, Lincoln. And in view of this,—that the President himself should fail to be here at the Admiral's funeral, and especially that the present Administration should utterly lack a representative on the sad yet glorious occasion, while Ex-Secretary Welles did not forget that he was one of Johnson's Cabinet—is, we think, a matter to be regretted.

To be sure, the funeral occurring so soon after death, (rather less than three days—as desired by the widow,) may have prevented the attendance of many; but what were a little hurry or inconvenience—what even a special train from Chicago hither,—to pay the last respect to so glorious a memory? If it be true, as stated, that Adm. Porter was rusticating somewhere near Boston, and Secretary Boutwell at Rye Beach—we think they would have honored themselves as much as the deceased, by sparing no effort to be present—as Gov. Stearns, and Senators Cragin and Patterson made haste to do, altho' the latter was at the extreme North of the State. The weather was intensely hot, we know, and various circumstances of sickness or other things, may excuse the non-attendance of officials; but it must be a very unfortunate concatenation of events which forbade any of them to come. On this point, the Boston Post,—an Opposition paper, to be sure,—says, rather bitterly, we think:

The Administration as an individual had neither leisure nor inclination to contribute its official presence to the last sad tribute to the worth and honors of the lamented Farragut. The old hero's companion in arms, a few Congressmen, and his contemporaries in the navy, mournfully assembled at Portsmouth, and stood with uncovered heads at the bier; but among them appeared no member of the Government in whose service the gallant life had been exhausted. The usual etiquette was disregarded by those whose position and association with the deceased rendered its observance, if not imperative, a matter of ordinary decency. The grief of the people, however, loses none of its intensity by the boorish absence of the President and Cabinet. Such gross neglect is but a brief incident; the Admiral's memory is illustrious forever.

The above article reflects the thoughts and opinions of people hereabouts. The gallant old Admiral loses nothing by any want of respect from any living man. His life speaks eloquently for him, and no living American can claim more honor than the dead Admiral, whom the people so fondly loved and to whom they were proud to show their great respect. Had President Grant been the dead patriot, and Admiral Farragut alive, no one doubts that the Admiral would have hastened to pay respect to the dead, even were it necessary to travel night and day to do so.

☞ The officers of the New England Agricultural Society have made arrangements with the Railroad Companies to transport over their respective roads without charge, both to and from Manchester, all horses, cattle and other animals, and also articles which are intended for the great Fair in Manchester, which commences Sept. 6th. We are informed by Col. Riddle, the Treasurer and chief manager, that the entries of cattle for the exhibition are very large and already number 300 in all. The entries for the purses for the best trotting horses are also coming in rapidly. Entries close Aug. 25th.

CUBA.—The Spanish troops, according to correspondence from Trinidad, the 30th of July, burned 800 houses, and killed and captured 200 persons. The insurrection in that part of the island is pretty much as it was a year ago. The cholera is raging at Sagua and Remedios, and a great many negroes and Chinamen have been carried off.

—The Red Stockings and Atlantics meet again on the base-ball field at Cincinnati on the 27th instant.

The Balsam is a pleasant remedy; it is a safe remedy; it is a powerful remedy; it is a speedy remedy; it is a remedy that cures.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

False Pretences.

The vast and continually increasing sales of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have provoked the envy of a certain class of dealers in various parts of the country, who are trying to substitute their utterly worthless local nostrums for the most popular proprietary medicine in the world. These impostors hope by their false statements to obtain from the millions who patronize the great American Tonic, a sufficient number of customers to make their speculations upon the health of their neighbors profitable. As the demand for Hostetter's Bitters is now so large and urgent as to tax to their fullest extent the facilities for its manufacture, these petty attempts to wring in the merest trash by false representations, are of little consequence to its proprietors.

They are, however, a serious evil to the victimized. If, for example, at this warm season, when a real invigorant is greatly needed, the sufferer from general debility, indigestion, biliousness or nervous weakness, is coaxed into using a wishy-washy compound without any medicinal virtue, instead of the sovereign specific in which the purest tonic and alterative vegetable elements are scientifically combined, it is obvious that he will rue the day when he allowed himself to be thus deluded. It is in the interest of parties who have been or may be influenced by the persuasion of plausible charlatans, that this article is published. With the light of twenty years experience to guide him, why should the invalid take a leap in the dark? au20dawlw

STILL HIGHER. — We noticed Mr. James Williams, the painter of the North Church spire, coolly swinging on the vane, Saturday forenoon, while groups of citizens on terra firma gazed and shuddered. Mrs. Partington came in shortly afterwards, and remarked that it was vain to aspire so.

THE CESS POOL.—We are informed by the prosecuting attorney, that Judge Bellows did grant an injunction forbidding any malt, hops or yeast to be deposited in the cess pool from Jones' brewery, and that Mr. Jones' offer to put in a new strainer was not accepted.

The Mayor, Board of Health and Committee on Streets of the Board of Aldermen, inspected the cess-pool on Saturday, and found the rotten filth to be about three feet deep. At a session of the Board of Health, it was determined to notify Mr. Heman Eldredge, owner of the land contiguous to the cess-pool, that unless he commences to abate the nuisance in five days, they would do so and collect costs of him.

THE ADMIRAL'S FUNERAL.—We copy the following items from the Journal:

From early morning until the close of the day, the government steamer Emerald made thirty-six trips across the river, to and from this city, in conveying officers, etc.

"The Sea View House at Rye Beach was elegantly draped in mourning, while the Farragut House flag was at half-mast throughout the day. Fully five hundred guests from the beach were in this city during the funeral march.

By careful count 1663 persons, we are told, marched in the procession, and this not including those in the carriages.

The 2d Lieut. of the 5th U. S. Artillery, which took part in the procession, is Loyal Farragut, son of the deceased. The company is now stationed in Portland harbor.

2d Lieut. Loyal Farragut has had his leave of absence extended ten days. The widow of the deceased Admiral will remain at the residence of Commodore Pennock, at the Yard, for several days.

Communication.

Editors Daily Chronicle:—Gentlemen: Many of your readers are very anxious to have a full and correct copy of the very eloquent and touching address delivered by Rev. Dr. Montgomery of New York, upon the occasion of the funeral obsequies of the Great Admiral, on Wednesday last. Such a beautiful tribute—at once chaste, elegant and deserved—and intensified by an earnest and graceful delivery—should be preserved in every family; and we request you with others, will act as a Committee to request a copy for immediate publication. Very truly yours,

A READER.

[We shall be very glad to publish a verbatim copy, if it can be procured; but as we understand that the clergyman did not write it at all, but that it was mainly delivered extempore, we hardly see how we can procure it. Perhaps our unknown correspondent can assist us.—Eds. Chron.]

Communication.

OUR BAND. — Messrs. Editors: I would like to say a few words, through the columns of your paper, in regard to the excellence of the music by the Portsmouth Cornet Band, at the Farragut obsequies on Wednesday. It is to the credit of the Band and their talented leader, that they played very finely, both in the performance of the dirges and quicksteps. The music of the Marine Brass Band was, as usual, very fine. This item is not written by any member of the Band, nor by any one connected with it, but by one of your subscribers, and

A LOVER OF GOOD MUSIC.

[We are very glad to have our attention called to the matter. We thought, as the Portsmouth Cornet Band passed, that they had never played stronger or better; and it was only our being exceedingly busy, that caused us to omit to allude to them. Harlow's Band also, did their best; and that, as all know, is not bad.

We also intended to say, that the sprinkling of the streets for that occasion, was the voluntary contribution of Mr. William Plaisted, and added much to the comfort of the march, though it made a hard day's work for the teams and drivers.

We should also have acknowledged our obligations to Comdr. Crosman, Lt. Comdr. Yates, Maj. Montgomery, Lt. Webster, and others, for courtesies and information on that day. And we will close by saying that, from the Commandant and Executive Officers down, we think we never had a more genial, popular and efficient board of officers at this Station than the present. Eds. Chronicle.]

THE SNIFFERS.

Some More After Kingsley.

There went three sniffers up for a sniff,
Up for a sniff of the Creek cess pool,
And they all of them had no chance for a sniff—
They didn't live near such a school;
And on their feet were stockings and shoes,
The smallest or biggest there were in town.
For men must suffer and women grow sick,
When the night is calm, up town, at the Creek,
Or there's no doctors' work in the morning.

And their shadows were short—as short as their stay,
As they gazed and sniffed to their heart's content,
Then turned and started for home away,
As if on particular business bent;
Thinking of nothing under the sun
But of getting successfully back into town.
For men must choke and women grow sick
With the nauseous smell at the so-called Creek,
Or there's no doctors' work in the morning.

One of the sniffers, his name was Jack,
His name was Jack—his wife's wasn't Jane,
Was found next morning quite flat on his back,
Sick unto death from his feet to his mane,
With fever and poison in lung and brain—
Which furnished most timely warning.
For men will sicken and women will die,
And the cesspool kill men as effectually,
If they breathe from it night and morning.

G.

THE AVENUE.—The following article, from the Journal,—which doubtless is from the pen of one who speaks by the book,—shows that the money is left to be spent directly, after all. Well, if it is no question of interest, we hope the delay does not indicate any lack of it; but many citizens would really enjoy travelling the improved road, (even if it does lead but to the grave,) before they are carried that way.

MRS. CUTTS' BEQUEST.—In "setting history right," for the benefit of a correspondent who is impatient to see the improvements made on Richards Avenue, the Chronicle says:—

"The $20,000 was left for a perpetual fund, the interest (when it shall accmulate sufficiently) to be applied, first in erecting a monument to the deceased lady donor, and fence for her cemetery lot; and then to improving the Avenue."

As the published will reads, the only suggestion of using the interest of the money bequeathed is, that the Executors shall "leave a fund with the Trustees of said Cemetery in Portsmouth, of sufficient amount to pay for a guaranty agreement that said lot, fence and monuments shall be kept in perpetual repair."

The money for fencing and repairing the lot in the cemetery and erecting monuments, and also for improving Richards Avenue, is given outright, and the will implies that the principal shall be used.

But "said purchase and improvements shall be effected by her Executors at such time and in such manner as they may deem advisable."

The public are so much interested in the improvement of the thoroughfare that it is to be hoped the Executors will make as little delay in the matter as possible.

☞ The new Primary School house on Creek Street is about completed, and is a neat, comfortable and substantial building. It is of wood, one story, surmounted with a neat square cupola, and all painted white. It is an ornament and improvement to that locality. The City has graded the grounds neatly, and we hope some of the residents in that vicinity will see to it that shade trees are set and maintained there.

Through the exertions of Mr. T. H. Odion, of the School Committee, great improvements have also been made in the Haven School, on South Street. The recitation rooms, overhead, have been changed, greatly for the better; and the removal of the homely old box of a cupola, it is thought will allow the chimnies to draw, and render it possible to keep the roof tight; while the new balustrade on the roof, will be rather ornamental than otherwise to the crop-eared structure, which ought to be placed beside the Jefferson Market, and both put out of sight.

HERE'S RICHNESS.—On a train from Boston, recently, a Portsmouth lady sat in front of two lady strangers, who were so gifted in dictionary words and spoke so loudly that she was obliged to hear their conversation, which at times bordered on the ridiculous, their language was so "high flown." They were going to the Shoals and had been complaining of the heated term, when, arriving near the Creek bridge, one of them detected a marked change of air—the smell of the cess pool—and exclaimed, "How refreshing this seabreeze is."

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 10 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twicer rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

RICHARDSON'S

LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocket-handkerchief to a

LARGE BED SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

The sale of the LITTLE WASHER is unprecedented, not only in Portsmouth but everywhere else where it has been introduced. All who desire one of these valuable Little Machines will do well to apply early, as the demand is greater than the supply. J. J. HATLINGER, Agent.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.

Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.

If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Morning Chronicle.

LIGHT FINES.—ANOTHER HISTORICAL ILLUSTRATION.—The late Judge Story was an enthusiast about seamen. He loved to discourse of their many noble qualities, in offset to their waywardness, and delighted in recognizing them as, in his own words, "wards of the admiralty." Was there a shipmaster brought before him charged with cruelty to his crew, if in the wrong, he was sure to be convicted. And then the learned judge was eloquent and impressive in his comments on the iniquity of abusing seamen, until the uninitiated would naturally fear that the judge was about to consign the culprit to the gibbet for with.

But the judge was one of the kindest-hearted of men. Having once got the offending shipmaster in his power, he was disposed to be very merciful. He had, besides, a theory that it was the certainty, and not the severity of the punishment, that deterred men from crime. Hence, for the most outrageous and long-continued abuse of Jack, the master would get a sentence to pay a fine of from ten to twenty dollars; or, where the assault was with a dangerous weapon, he would sometimes get ten days in the common jail, the offender having the choice of jails.

The Judge was high authority, and his successors in office and the Admiralty Judges in his circuit have implicitly followed his example. The courts in New York followed in the same track. American seamen soon learned that there was no home for them on the great deep. American parents have had no fear of their sons running away to become sailors, for a long time. Foreign seamen alone have manned our ships. The latter at last learned to take the law into their own hands.

The late Mr. Hallet once told me that while he was United States Attorney, he had occasion to prosecute a shipmaster for atrocious cruelty to his crew on a long voyage. He was convicted of such cruelty to ten men. The court commented with great severity on his conduct, and ended by fining him fifteen dollars in each case, without costs. The captain called, paid his bill, thanked the attorney for his civility and kindness—said it was cheap enough—and he should do just so the next voyage. He did just so the next voyage, and his vessel was burnt from under him by his crew in mid-ocean. Now the average of officers maimed and murdered at sea is about as great as that of the crew. The redress of grievances is now principally adjusted on board. Where we now ought to have two hundred thousand American citizens in our sea service, we have scarcely five thousand.

In the mean time our finest ships have been going out of ports fully manned with foreigners, many of whom are ignorant even of the language in which the orders on board are given. That state of things has increased the risks, enhanced insurance, helped transfer freights to foreign bottoms, reduced our tonnage, and deprived our country of one great field for American labor that ought to be the support of one million of American souls on land and sea. Graduate your scale of punishments low enough, and you can nurse into life any style of life you want.

Three dollars and costs for a simple drunken spree on the street, has given our municipal judges a standing attendance at their levee for drunkards every Monday morning, of from fifty to a hundred. Undoubtedly, if they would make the terms more reasonable, they could secure more. If we could only abolish capital punishment and imprisonment, and bring everything down to a greenback standard, and that very reasonable, we could have news as exciting and tragic here as in New York every morning, and our streets could be made to resound with the cries of news-boys, spicy, tragic and terrible enough to make our city notorious, if not famous.—Boston Transcript.

Appropos of Mrs. Partington and the Captain, we take the following from among Shillaber's good things in the American Union :—

"My Brother Bob" says more things worth remembering than his brother ever did. He is one of those queer fellows who take no particular pains to say witty things, but to whom they come spontaneously and pop out almost without their knowing it. Like Hudibras, who ——"could not open

His mouth but out there flew a trope,"

Bob talks in epigrams, with a snap to them sometimes suggestive of saltpetre; but he need not be feared, except by some one who has offended him, who had better go beyond the reach of his tongue. Like Sherman's worm lozenges, children cry for him, and he rarely gets out his old wagon that it is not a signal for every boy in the neighborhood to rally for a ride, unhindered by the query, "Are there any more of ye?" We met Bob a few days since, in the heated term, from which he was suffering somewhat, and he made the hot weather the theme of remark. "Why," said he, "John came to me, and wanted me to tackle up, and go and get a barrel of coal for him. I told him I'd see him froze to death before I'd go to hauling coal as hot a day as it was yesterday!" That has body enough in it for a dozen ordinary efforts. It is classical. Bob has charge of the court-house in the town where he resides, and recently two courts held their session at the same time. One of these was the probate, the judge of which wished his attendance. "Can't do it," said Bob, "but here are the keys, and after you get through please leave them at my house. No matter about sweeping out." He is as independent as a Fourth of July.

—A man in Central New York is so unreasonable as to ask for a divorce merely because, when he refused his wife money to set up as a physician, she knocked a man down with a steel trap, threw all the dinner, dishes and knives at her husband, chased a farmer with an axe, and chopped off a young man's fingers.

—On Sunday night Mr. Abram Haines of Saco arose from his bed and walked to his head of the chamber stairs, when he fell to the bottom, breaking his shoulder plate, and otherwise injuring him. It is supposed he was in a state of somnambulism.

A CAPE MAY INCIDENT.—Not many days ago there was a rather "loud" woman down here, says the Cape May Wave, rich and vulgar, swooping around with her daughter and putting on more airs than you could grind out of a hand organ. One man, who was disgusted at the aristocratic pretensions of the couple, thought he would have a little fun at their expense. So one day he pointed out a good looking fellow who was passing the hotel, and mentioned to the woman, in a sort of a careless, off-hand way, that the good looking fellow was a lord, who had just arrived in the country, and was stopping for a while at Cape May. This woman, you understand, wanted an introduction, so that she could set her daughter at work to rope-in this scion of a noble house. The stranger was presented the next evening in the parlor; and this designing being of a mamma began to gush right over him.

She kept on exclaiming how much she had always admired the English nobility, and how much she longed to see them in their own beautiful homes; and then she asked this man if he did not sometimes long for his island home, and hate the society of the vulgar Americans, and sigh for his high-born companions! At last the man turned around and said she must have made a mistake; he didn't care a red cent for aristocracy; he had no island home, for he came from Germany; and he had no high-born companions, unless some of his friends were born in a garret. So this woman rose right up and pranced out to the fellow who introduced her to the aristocrat, and she said:

"See here! I thought you said that man was a lord?"

"So he is," was the reply; "he is the land-lord of the Dutch hotel round the corner there. Nice man, isn't he?"

Perhaps that woman won't souse that man under and hold him there, the next time she catches him bathing in the surf. It wouldn't surprise us to learn at any time that he had been jammed full of red hot hairpins by a savage female, who crowned her performance by executing a Kickapoo war dance on his inanimate remains.

☞ The Biddeford Journal says that Messrs. Woodman & Hill of Saco, have contracted to build a house for Mr. Wm. H. Sanborn of the Navy Yard, on Seavey's Island. They are about ready to commence its erection, the frame having been got out, and in fact the house built there. They will carry with them every inch of material except the lime and sand.—Also that Joshua Littlefield, 7th, while driving from Portsmouth to Wells Beach, a few days ago, with a load of goods, had a cask of ale stolen from the wagon by two unknown men who drove up behind. The ale and men were missed about the same time.

☞ In the race of twenty miles to windward and return, at Newport, between the yachts Cambria and Idler, for a cup valued at fifty guineas, the Cambria came in thirteen minutes ahead, beating the Idler, with allowance of nine and a half minutes.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CARD TO THE LADIES.

DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILL. FOR FEMALES.

Infallible in correcting irregularities, and removing obstructions of the monthly periods. It is over forty years since these now so well known pills were first brought to notice by Dr. Duponco, of Paris, during which time they have been extensively and successfully used by some of the leading physicians, with unparalleled success. Ladies in poor health, either married or single, suffering from any of the Complaints peculiar to Females, will find the Duponco Golden Pills invaluable, viz., General Debility, Headache, Faintness, Loss of Appetite, Mental Depression, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Loins, Bearing-down Pains, Palpitation of the Heart, Retained, Excessive, Irregular or Painful Menstruation, Rush of Blood to Head, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Fatigue on any slight exertion, and particularly that most distressing, weakening ailment, so common among Females, both married and single, the Leucorrhœa or Whites. Females in every period of life will find Duponco's Pills a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. They invigorate the debilitated and delicate, and by regulating and strengthening the system, prepare the youthful constitution for the duties of life, and when taken by those in middle life or old age they prove a perfect blessing There is nothing in the pills that can do injury to life or health. Safe in their operation, perpetual in their happy influence upon the Nerves, the Mind and the entire organization.

S. D. HOWE, Proprietor, N. Y. ALVAN LITTLEFIELD, Boston, Agent, N. E. States.

Ladies by enclosing $1 by mail will have the Pills sent confidentially to any address.

THE HUMBUGGED HUSBAND.

She's not what fancy painted her—
I'm sadly taken in;
If some one else had won her,
I shouldn't have cared a pin—
I thought she was as mild and good
As maiden e'er could be;
I wonder how she ever could
Have so much humbugged me.

They cluster round and shake my hand,
They tell me I am blest—
My case they do not understand,
I think that I know best,
They call her "fairest of the fair,"
They drive me mad and madder,
What do they mean by it?—I swear
I only wish they had her.

'Tis true that she has lovely locks,
That on her shoulders fall—
What would they say to see the box
In which she keeps them all?
Her taper fingers, it is true,
Are difficult to match—
What would they say if they but knew
How terribly they scratch?

Newport, N. H. A. J. M.

FLIZE,

BY JOSH BILLINGS.

I hate a fli.
A fli is got no manners.
He aint no gentleman.
He's an introoder, don't send in no kard, nor ax an interduckshun, nor don't knok at the front door, and nuver, nuver thinx uv takin of his hat.
Fust you kno he is in bed with you and up yore nose—tho what he wants thar, is a mistry—and he invites hisself to breakfast and sets doun in yore butter thout brushin his pants.
He helps hisself to sugar, and meat, and merlassis, and bred, and presurves, and vinegy—enuything, and don't wait for no invitation. He's got a good appytite, and jist as sun eat one thing as anuther.
Paint no use to challenge him for takin liberties; he keeps up a hostile korrispondence with you, whether or not and shoots hisself at you like a bullit, and he nuver misses, nuver.
He'll kiss yore wife 20 times a day, and zizz zoo, and ridikule you if you say a word, and he'd ruther you'd slap at him than not box, he's a dodger uv the dodgirinist kine. Every time you slap, you don't slap him, but slap yoreself, and he zizzes and pints the hine leg of skorn at you, till he aggravates you to distracksbin.
He glories in a lightin every pop on the ixackt spot whar you druv him from, wich pruves the intention to teeze you. Don't tell me he ain't got no mind; he knows what he is after. He's got sense and to much ov it, tho he never went to skool a day in his life ixcept in a supe dish.
He's a mean, milignant, owdashus, premedditated cuss.
His mother nuver paddled him with a slipper in her face. His morrals wuz nigleckti, and he lacks a good deal ov humility mitely. He aint bashful a bit, and I doubt ef he blushes ofting.
In fack, he wuz nuver fetched up a tall.
He was born full-grown, he don't git old—uther things git old, but he nuver gits old—and he is imperdent and mischevous to the day uv his death.
He droopz in cold weather, and you kin mash him on a window pain, and you've jest put yore finger in it. He comes agin next yeer, and a heep more with him. Taint no use.
One fli to a family might do fur amusement but the good ov so menny flize I be dogon ef I kin see, kin you?
I has thort much about flize, and I has notist how ofting they stop in thar devilry to comb thar heads and skratch thar nose with thar fourlegs, and gouge thar arm-pits under thar wings, and the tops ov thar wings with thar legs.
And my kandid opynium ar, that flize is lowsy, they eeches all the time, is miserbul, and that makes 'em badtempered, and want to make uther peepil miserbul too.
Ef that aint the flossfy ov flize, I give it up.
Altho a fli don't send in his kard, he always leaves one, and I don't like it. Taint pritty ef 'tis round. He kan't make a cross-mark, only a dot, and he is always a dotting whar thar aint no i's. Thars no end to his periods, but he nuver cums to a full stop. Sich handritin is dizagreabli.
He's an artiss, but his fresco and his wall paperin I don't admier. Thar's too much sameness in his patterns. His specs is the only specs that don't help the eyes. You kan't see throu um, and you don't want too.
I hate a fli.
Darn a fli.

☞ On the day preceding Admiral Farragut's departure from London, when her Grace the Duchess of Somerset was earnestly entreating him to dine with her, for the fourth time, on the morrow, gratified with her empressement of manner, he grasped her hand with both of his and exclaimed: "But, my dear fellow, it is impossible!" The Duchess was delighted with the term of endearment, claims it as a legacy from Admiral Farragut, and relates it with the liveliest pleasure.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.
It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.
One Gallon of Mixed Land Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds, 2 coats; while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats,—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.
The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.
The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINTS,
which are for sale at the
GROCERY AND PROVISION STORE,
No. 16 and 18 Cabot Street, where are kept the best of Meats and Groceries, as low as can be bought in the city.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them here. Suffice it that all conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it often affords an advantageous use on various occasions occurs. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawje21cod4m

OLD FOLKS,
YOUNG FOLKS,
ALL FOLKS,
WHO ARE WEAK, whose appetite is poor, whose blood needs iron, who are bilious, whose stomach and nerves need to be strengthened, will be benefitted by
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Iron is acted on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the most palate tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the digestion of Iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.
MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel to act on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect medicine. It purifies the blood and imparts IRON to it. It stimulates the Liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is a most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons whose blood is poor, and who need Iron and a strengthening medicine. 2meodawjy25

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 23, 1870.

WAR.—A correspondent of the New York World says of Friday's battle before Metz:—

"I witnessed the battle. The Prussians won at a fearful loss, the Mitrailleuses doing terrible work. Four villages and the battlefield are still strewn with the dead. Metz is surrounded, and it looks as if preparations was being made by the Prussians for a siege. General Sheridan, from the King's headquarters, witnessed the battle. The French General, Latour, was wounded and taken prisoner in the last battle while passing through Port-a-Mousson. The citizens crowded around him with tears in their eyes, and kissed his hands."

A Prussian dispatch says the loss of the French during the week cannot be less than 50,000 in killed, wounded and taken prisoners, at Courcelles, Vionville and Gravellotte; they are known to have lost 15,600 in each battle, including at the latter place 4000 prisoners.

The statement of Count Palikao that the French won a victory on the 18th and drove the Prussians into the quarries of Gaumont, is repeated from other sources. Gaumont is between Metz and Thionville.

Large bodies of troops, in fine order, pass through Paris day and night for the front.

Emperor Napoleon barely escaped capture on Tuesday.

There has been no naval engagement in the North Sea or the Baltic.

The New York World's dispatch of Monday says the battle of Rezionville was without a decisive result. It was claimed by the Prussians and the French fell back, in good order, without pursuit, to Metz, their ammunition having given out. The losses of the Prussians greatly exceeded the French, the former losing 40,000 on Thursday alone, Steinmetz's whole corps being literally cut to pieces and his magnificent cavalry no longer exists.

Paris is defiant, and the people are enlisting by thousands.

It is said that the Alsatian peasantry have commenced a guerrilla warfare in the Prussian rear.

One hundred and sixty thousand men have passed through Paris to the front since Friday morning.

It is said that there are now nearly 300,000 good troops at and near Paris.

Murat Halsted telegraphs to the Cincinnati Commercial, from Luxembourg, Sunday:

"I was present a the battle of Gravelotte on Thursday. King William, Bismarck and General Sheridan were on the field. The French were outnumbered and driven back to the walls of Metz. The slaughter on both sides was horrible. I walked seven miles over a field strewn thick with dead men and horses.

The Parisians are confident that the French Generals are leading the Prussians on to destruction.

The army of the Crown Prince of Prussia is near St. Dizier, apparently intending to march upon Paris by the valley of the Aube river, striking Paris at the South. The Crown Prince's army is reported to be 150,000 strong.

Marshal McMahon is moving strategically, so that he may support Bazaine at the proper moment.

THE RAILROAD CASE. — Testimony was taken last week, to be laid before the Courts on Monday next, relative to the good faith in the lease of the Concord to the Northern Railroad by the old Board of the Concord corporation. The evidence on this point will doubtless satisfy the Court of the propriety of the transaction. The "ring" cease to boast that they are sure of a decision in their favor, they even give up the "two judges they were sure were on their side;" and the question now arises, "what will he do with it?"

It is awkward to place in the hands of a receiver, the Manchester & Lawrence Railroad, which is not in Court, concerning which, there appears to be nothing in dispute; and the prospect is that Gov. Stearns, not having the power, after the recent dicta of the Court, to adjust anything with these irresponsible parties, (who at the time of the contract, as the proof shows, were simply a minority clique of the stockholders,) can only proceed under the contract to operate the Roads, until the final decision of the case.

In the meantime, the ring are getting farther and farther from the coveted possession, notes are becoming due, candidates for the presidency multiply, and troubles increase on every side. Verily, the way of the transgressor is hard. It would have been better to have unloaded with the one hundred thousand profit, than to expect that the people can be made to bear that extra load, and by a legal tribunal, be bompelled to extricate the ring from the dilemna in which their ill-advised combination is involved them.

—The Lake Village Times says that Mr. Andrew Pickering of that village was born on the first day of the week, month, year, and the first day of the century,—January 1, 1800.

Not so fast, Mr. Times—January 1, 1800, lacks just one year of the commencement of a century; as you must readily see that 1799 years, only, had passed, on Jan. 1, 1800, and it wants that year complete, and then begins the century with 1801.—Rochester Courier.

Isn't it astonishing, that anybody should make the mistake that our Bro. of the Courier, does, above? And yet, every even century and half century, there is an interminable and non-ceasing discussion of the above question,—which really amounts to this: do 99, or 100, or 101 years make a century? And the whole dispute arises on the misconception, that years are counted like hours, whereas the year is numbered when it begins, and the hour not until it has fully passed.

If the Courier can show itself right, as above; will it please tell us what became of the first year 1, and whether a child that has lived twelve months, is one year old, or nothing? P.

☞ Otto Baumgarten, a German, 27 years old, shot his wife and infant boy Saturday evening, at New Haven, and then placed the pistol to his own head and shot himself. The child lived until 2 o'clock on Sunday morning, when it died. Hopes are entertained of the mother's recovery. It was the culmination of a long standing family difficulty.

☞ A new and substantial depot has been erected at Stratham on the line of the Concord & Portsmouth Railroad. It has a dwelling house connected, and will be occupied by the Stratham Agent, and the spot will hereafter be a great contrast with its former appearance.

☞ A man named Watkins, while engaged in a dispute with one William Foster, at New Albany, Ind., struck, the latter on the shoulder with an axe nearly severing it from the body, and a second time on the left side, cutting the heart in twain.

☞ The race of the New York yachts, from New Bedford to Holmes' Hole, 25 miles, was won by the Sappho, beating the Dauntless, Phantom, Cambria and Madgie, in the order named. This was a scrub affair, without prizes or time allowances.

FOR THE LADIES.—The chignons to be worn this fall will be high up and low down. The report about insects in jute switches has created quite a panic among the wearers, and many ladies now look as if they had gone back on their back hair.

USEFUL.—One of the amusements at Long Branch is to watch the New Jersey mosquitoes open clams with their bills on the shore. Several of these useful insects are being domesticated and taught to punch rivet holes in steam boilers.

☞ The special war correspondence of the English press is a sad failure. The telegraph is not available for correspondents, and their letters are few, stale and stupid.

☞ A dreadful explosion occurred a day or two ago, in Lancashire, England. Over 50 persons were killed and many injured.

New Publications Received.

The Ladies' Friend for September. Always friendly to the dear creatures.

Godey's Lady's Book for September, beautiful and attractive always — is high up in its specialties—women's literature, fashions and follies; the latter of which it is not slow to censure, in some directions. We think the veteran editor might well have another b in his name, for a title.

The August Monthly Part of Oliver Optic's Magazine is full of entertaining and instructive matter, illustrations, &c. Published in weekly and monthly editions, by Lee & Shepard, 149 Washington St., Boston, at $2.50 a year.

The Nursery for September is good as ever—and we should like to know what is, what could be, better? John L. Shorey, Publisher, Boston; $1.50 a year.

Peterson's Magazine for September. One of the most valuable articles is "Every-Day Dresses," illustrated with engravings, showing how stylish and fashionable drasses may be made at home, and economically. Terms $2 a year. Published by Chas J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

The Edinburgh Review and the London Quarterly Review, for July; American edition, from the Leonard Scott Pub. Co., New York.

The Typographic Messenger; and the Mirror of Typography,—two beautiful specimens of the printer's art, both ably edited, and doing a good work for the craft, and literature and mechanics generally. The principal feature of the Mirror is the colored plate of "The Barefoot Boy," after Prang's popular chromo of that name. The printing of this exquisite specimen of presswork was accomplished on a Campbell cylinder press. There are thirteen impressions on the picture.

American Odd Fellow, for July.

The Manufacturer and Builder, for August. An elegant and very valuable publication; Webstern and Co. publishers, New York.

The Galaxy for September is on hand; and, as usual, it is a handful, too. Among the contents, are articles on Milk, Histrionic Doubts concerning Patrick Henry, Memoranda by Mark Twain, &c.

FLORAL.—We think Vick, the great florist, of Rochester, N. Y., is decidedly the victor in the contest of roses and posies, and deserves the laurel crown. It is said that he expends (or invests) $20,000 a year in advertising, in one shape or other. We have just received his annual illustrated Fall Catalogue of hardy Bulbs, and Floral Guide. His great Catalogue of Flowers and Seeds will be sent out Dec. 15th.

FAMINE.—During the period between the beginning of June and the end of October, 1869, 92,980 persons are believed to have died of want and its attendant ills in the Gwalior State, India. During the same period nearly 400,000 animals perished.

☞ On Tuesday last, Mr. Brantly, Mayor of Winona, Miss., while attending a public concert, and sitting in an open window, was shot and instantly killed, five buckshot passing through his head.

NEW YORK CITY.—One hundred and ninety-one of the 320 census districts in the city give the population at 498,397. The arrivals of immigrants last week numbered 3050.

☞ Miss Louisa Meyers has quit the stage, and teaches vocal and instrumental music—Louisa does.

☞ California has 600,000 population.

More than 500,000 people bear testimony to the wonderful curative effects of Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery. It cures Bronchitis, and the worst lingering coughs. As an anti-Bilious medicine for Liver Complaint it has no equal. It permanently cures constipation of the bowels, cleanses and purifies the blood and thereby cures Scrofulous and Syphilitic taints, and all diseases of the skin, as pimples, Blotches, Boils, Rashes and Eruptions. Sold by druggists.

THE ORDER OF THE DAY.—A general order for SOZODONT. In the TEETH OF ALL OPPOSITION it has become the supreme dentifrice of the age.

No impurity can infest the teeth cleaned daily with SOZODONT. QUILLAY, the bark of the Chilian Soap Tree, an article which possesses cleansing properties superior to those of any other known substance, is one of the ingredients of this peerless compound. SOZODONT is the only dentifrice in existence in which this salubrious botanical product is incorporated.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," handy about the house, mends everything.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

False Pretences.

The vast and continually increasing sales of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have provoked the envy of a certain class of dealers in various parts of the country, who are trying to substitute their utterly worthless local nostrums for the most popular proprietary medicine in the world. These impostors hope by their false statements to obtain from the millions who patronize the great American Tonic, a sufficient number of customers to make their speculations upon the health of their neighbors profitable. As the demand for Hostetter's Bitters is now so large and urgent as to tax to their fullest extent the facilities for its manufacture, these petty attempts to wring in the merest trash by false representations, are of little consequence to its proprietors.

They are, however, a serious evil to the victimized. If, for example, at this warm season, when a real invigorant is greatly needed, the sufferer from general debility, indigestion, biliousness or nervous weakness, is coaxed into using a wishy-washy compound without any medicinal virtue, instead of the sovereign specific in which the rarest tonic and alterative vegetable elements are scientifically combined, it is obvious that he will rue the day when he allowed himself to be thus deluded. It is in the interest of parties who have been or may be influenced by the persuasion of plausible charlatans, that this article is published. With the light of twenty years experience to guide him, why should the invalid take a leap in the dark? au20dawiw

Lost—Portmonnale.

☞ Three Carriages in one day, sold to different Boston gentlemen who happened into their depository here, will do very well for Came Brothers, we think. One of these was a nice top buggy, ordered for J. F. Paul, Esq., the noted proprietor of the extensive Bay State Wood Working Mills in Boston, who is a York man, and still owns property and a home interest there. His first business was peddling farm produce in Portsmouth.

Messrs. Came sold upwards of seventy carriages last year; and by their enterprise and energy, added to faithful and fair dealing, during the brief time they have been doing business on their own account, have won a name and fame, both at home and abroad, which many an older house might well wish to enjoy.

Messrs. Came Brothers have an elegant three-spring top buggy in course of manufacture, for exhibition at the State and N. E. Fair—for which they have already received several applications for purchase. They will also exhibit one of their lightest wagons, which has been run, and run hard, for several months,—which is the real test of the trade. The extension of their works is now in progress, which will give them more forge and painting room, and thus greatly increase their facilities. They employ nearly twenty hands, and their pay-roll amounts to about $300 a week,—and it is just such private enterprises as this that Portsmouth needs more of.

☞ Quite an inquiry has been made as to what the hydrant-looking box, in front of Francis W. Ham's Jewelry Store is intended for. It is the "Patent Watchmaker's Transit," patented October 13, 1868—a new instrument of simple and thorough construction, for determining on a new principle, the instant the sun crosses the meridian, and is designed to meet a want long felt by watchmakers and others requiring standard time. Its operations are so precise and accurate, that when once in position, the slightest variation in a time-piece can be detected. By this method only one observation is necessary, and no mathematical calculations are required, to give the time with certainty, within a second. The Patentee is Edward Prevear of Leominister, Mass.

☞ Capt. Chas. E. Becker of Newcastle reports that the auroral display of Friday night, 75 miles off Boston Light, was the most vivid and brilliant he ever witnessed at sea. At 11 o'clock, a ball of light traversed the Heavens from north to south, and although it had been a dark night, he could see as plainly as in the day time the nails in his boat. As the ball passed beyond the horizon, the water in its line of travel reflected sparks of gorgeous colors and tints.

☞ Collector Bailey has received authority from President Grant to admit free of duty all animals from Canada intended for exhibition at the New England and New Hampshire Agricultural Fairs to be held on the 7th of next month, and continue four days. The Secretary has been informed that President Grant will honor the exhibition with his attendance on one of the days.

A Waif.—Capt. Henry Becker of Newcastle picked up about 75 miles off Boston Light, July 24th, a bottle in which was enclosed a card, with the following inscription:

Steam Yacht Young America.
Fishing excursion, off Boston Light—good luck and a good time, 1-2 past 6 P. M., Tuesday, July 12th, 1870.

Base Ball. — An exciting game came off at the Plains, on Monday, between two nines from Rye Beach. The Oceans won by a score of 35 to 34 for the Sea Views.

A match between the Granite State nine and the Muffer eighteen is on for Thursday.

☞ Chaplain Kane, U. S. N., of this city, delivered a memorial address on Adm. Farragut, at the North Church Sunday evening. The speaker evinced his admiration and respect for the old hero. The attendance was very large.

☞ A laborer on the Flushing Railroad was killed Saturday by the crank of a hand car at speed, striking him on the stomach, cutting a gash from which the bowels protruded.

☞ The frame of the new Orthodox Vestry on Middle and Warren Streets, is nearly up, and shows that it is to be quite a church.

☞ Hon. Horton D. Walker of this city seems to be most prominently named as the Republican candidate for Governor.

THE PISCATAQUA.

BY B. P. SHILLABER.

Let other streams of grandeur fame
Their proudest charms display;
There's none a loftier grace can claim
Than thine, Piscataqua.

I stand upon thy banks again,
As in the days of yore,
And listen to the sweet refrain
That fills thy sounding shore.

The old pines whisper overhead,
As if in tender love;
And odors sweet, like blessings, shed
Upon me from above.

There, flashing in the sun's bright beam,
Thy rippling eddies dart,
And in my dreamy fancy seem
To play a conscious part.

Glad voices, of the distant days,
Speak in old tones to me,
And forms, long hid, start through the haze
Of misty memory.

There stands the gray town o'er the tide,
Beyond, rise up the hills;
There boats upon the waters glide,
There the white canvass fills.

The fish, above the surface clear,
Dart, sparkling, in the sun;
A laugh beyond the wave I hear
In effulgence of fun.

The rugged bank, the shady cove,
The overhanging tree,
With young companionship inwove,
Bring dearest dreams to me.

Here roved we in that bright estate
That hinged on man's domain,
And, borne about by every fate,
We here return again.

Alas! 'twas but a vision fled,
That for a moment shone,
Then left me, after it had sped,
More drearily alone.

I bend me o'er the mirrored sheen,
And there beneath my gaze,
Another face is plainly seen
Than that of boyhood's days.

That was lit up with youthful grace,
Embodiment of bliss;
While gray locks and a care-scarred trace
Give character to this.

Sweep on, dear old Piscataqua!
Accept my tribute due;
Though life and joy for me decay,
There's length of days for you.

But few the years for me remain
Ere I am called away,
And my full heart outpours the strain
I breathe for you to-day.

—Am. Union.

☞ On Tuesday, Aug. 30th, the Maine Historical Society is to have a field day at York. The day will be devoted to an examination of all matters of antiquarian interest. In the evening there will be a conference meeting, to which the public are invited, and at which all are desired to give aid to the purposes of the society, by such contributions of personal knowledge, reliable tradition, relics of the olden time, &c., as may be at their command.

On Wednesday like proceedings will be had at Kittery, the oldest town in the State; and the same request is made of all the people for aid in the conference in the evening.

On Thursday the Society will breakfast with the New Hampshire Historical Society at Portsmouth.

☞ Ship Ocean Rover (of Boston), Carlton, from Hamburg, June 5, for Baker's Island, struck a reef in the River Gelganna, north of Pernambuco, July 18, and became a total wreck. Crew saved. The O. R. was 832 tons, built in this city in 1854, and was owned by Capt. Carlton.

☞ The President has issued a proclamation of neutrality.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds are for 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,

No. 76 State St., opposite Kilby St., Boston,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

RICHARDSON'S

LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, is light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pockethandkerchief to a

LARGE BED SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

Richardson's Little Washer does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

The sale of the Little Washer is unprecedented, not only in Portsmouth but everywhere else where it has been introduced. All who desire one of these valuable Little Machines will do well to apply early, as the demand is greater than the supply. J. J. HATLINGER, Agent.

Additional
List of Names of Purchasers who have the Little Washer now in use.

The following list of persons whose orders were taken within three weeks past, and who have all been served with their machines within two weeks, makes the total number (in this city) who have purchased the Little Washer between June 1st and August 16th, 181,—a previously published list of 7 names being omitted in this advertisement.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is seen restored to its original color, with the glossy and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.

Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a nasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.

If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Morning Chronicle.

Correspondence of the Chronicle and Gazette.

MEREDITH, Aug. 10.

SAUKIE LAKE.—Dear Gazette:—Nearly thirteen years ago I last saw this place. I left it a bachelor; I have now responded to a large-hearted invitation by bringing with me my wife and four children. I am surprised at the little change I see. It may almost be summed up in the fact that several of the octogenarians have died, and some younger people; most of the others have grown older, (there seem to be some exceptions to that;) not a few have married, and there have several children been born. The poorest buildings I left there, still subserve the purposes they then did. My former organist is said to keep an excellent hotel,—a new one, for the old one was burned, and there was said to have been a great loss of life,—human at second hand, nourished from the blood of travellers who wished themselves sleeping. That spot is occupied by a new store; while the old store, where the two best men in the church once sold rum by the gill, (those days of darkness will never return,) is a blackened ruin. The only advancement seemed to be that the saw-mill had been quickened up to three million, and a stocking factory of 75,000 dozen had been built. The steamers on the Lake had grown from two to three.

Now I am going right at my old story. This splendid water-power is ninety-five miles from Boston—all land, and fifty-eight from Portsmouth, twenty by water. Now I doubt if there could be found in all the place a single article that had ever been sold in Portsmouth, or a person who has ever been in Portsmouth. And all this for the want of a little bit of railroad, that could be paid for by the traffic between its terminii only. I do not mean that the traffic between the present Portsmouth and Dover would do it; but the future Portsmouth will reach a quarter of the way to Dover, unless there is better land in some other direction. Shall not I. F. H. and F. W. M. foot it together over all this line some day?

Now I wish it distinctly understood that I have no further interest in this than in any other case of oppression and wrong. If Boston is any gainer by the outrage, I am a sharer in that gain. But where all of us gain one dollar, ten are lost by a region of more than five thousand square miles, every foot of which would be increased in value by that little patch of road, and the inevitable building of the Saukie-Shore road that must ensue. Nay, I am myself a loser. If New Hampshire would establish free trade in ice between Saukie and Portsmouth, the Boston monopolists could not raise the price of water to a cent a pound, and more cargoes could go to Calcutta. Thus the consequences of wicked legislation in New Hampshire are felt on the banks of the Ganges. You say I am rabid on this Portsmouth-Dover road? Well, I would like to come in and bite a few of you. If you cannot get your rights without the consent of the stockholders in the C. & P. and the Concord, you will never get them without lynch law.

But I am in Meredith. The place is full of boarders. Fifteen years ago one family spent the summer here. Now many make summer boarders a specialty. They have their three-seat carriage and span for them. I see in this an indication of the increase of wealth and population in our cities, which annually send out more and more of the women and the few children that the devil allows us. But I fear I see something more — the unequal distribution of wealth. I have just opened upon D'Israeli's Duke, who "had only one misfortune, and it was a great one; he had no home. His family had married so many heiresses, and he consequently possessed so many halls and castles, at all of which, periodically, he wished, from a right feeling, to reside, that there was no sacred spot identified with his life," etc.—Lothair, page 2. The "misfortune" of curates with a salary of $500 is quite a different one, akin to that of the artisan with one room for kitchen and bed-room for his whole family. There was less misery in our land when Astor was our only millionaire. But I dread not fortunes acquired like Stewart's, in enriching his customers by fair dealings, but millions accumulated by shoddy, fraud and extortion, in America; or in England, by leaving younger brothers homeless, that the elder may be cursed with so many habitations that he can have no home.

I visited the fish-farm at Meredith. It is an undoubted success. There are said to be at present 8000 fish there. Any visitor who will take with him cheese curd, chopped meat or "grass-hoppers" (locusts), can get a bite by putting his hand into the water. In one place I would judge that each cubic foot of water contained at least one-fourth its bulk of eight-inch trout. It is a mystery to me that the sea can yield so much food; for our best fishing-grounds produce a greater amount of food than can be raised from an equal area of well-tilled soil in the shape of beef. Is it because those submarine fields are never visited by drouths?

YOURS, I. F. H.

THE FOREIGN WAR.—A war is where two nations, and sometimes more, get into a muss that they can't get out of any way but by fighting, and then the hardest fends off, and it is a remarkable thing in history that the one that gets the best of it always beats. France and Prussia are going to have a war because the Spaniards wanted a German prince for a king, though it's none of the business of either of 'em, any how. Why didn't they get mad and want to fight because our folks made General Grant president, I'd like to know? I wish they had, that's all; if we wouldn't have knocked spots out of 'em, you bet! But it is now said there's something else besides this Spanish king that the muss is about. They both want somebody else's land, and they are going to try to get it by killing one another; so it seems on the surface of things, which is the Rhine, and they are all ready to pitch in. The result of it all will be that if the Northern German States are united, then the Schleswig Holsteiners will join the Nurembuggers, and by forming a league with Hungary will do something for Poland, in which event Wurtemburg will march into Westphalia, and then look out for the hams.

Italy, in the meantime, will not be doing nothing, and joining with Russia will help to gobble up Turkey, while England remains neutral, resolving to go the whole hog for Brussels. Then it Holland joins Bavaria, the whole of Southern Germany is a unit, and in the row, brewing the price of lager will be doubled, a calamity of a terrible sort. Austria and Switzerland, lying contagious, will be ready to fight either side, and Hanover will take part with France or Prussia, just as the case may be; in which event there will be more trouble, and the profanity in Mechlenberg Schwearingen will be doubled, which will prove a great curse. The world is sitting on the Pyramids watching the fight, and General Sheridan has been sent to see for the United States. Let us hope the strongest party will win.

Written by Ike Partington, aged 12, 12 demerits.—American Union.

New Hampshire Items.

Mr. David Stewart of Nashua, who is 72 years of age, says the drought of this year has not had its equal since 1811. He is sure no season since has equalled the present in its excessive heat and lack of rain.

Evidence in the Concord railroad case is being taken before S. N. Bell of Manchester and L. S. Morrill of Concord, who have been appointed commissioners to take testimony for use at the hearing on the 29th.

In Newton, Thomas Spaulding was arraigned before Justice W. W. Boswell charged with burning a barn. In default of $2500 bail, he was committed to Exeter jail.

Samuel Tibbetts, who was committed to the Carroll county jail for extensive raids on Odell's store at Conway and who broke jail on the 26th of July with James Bryant, was arrested at Lewiston, Me., on the 16th. He was caught by means of his wife, who lives in Albany with her father, and to whom Tibbetts wrote to come to Lewiston.

On the 15th, in Great Falls, Mr. John B. Wood died at the age of sixty-eight. Mr. W. was for many years one of the most prominent business men of Great Falls.

WEIGH THESE WORDS.

ALL WHO SUFFER from indigestion, billous disorders, nervous affections, constipation or undue relaxation of the bowels, are invited to consider these facts, viz: That the curative operation of Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient, in all such cases, is proved by overwhelming testimony; that profound medical practitioners endorse it; that Analytical Chemists pronounce it identical with the water of the great German Spa; that it purifies and regulates the system without weakening it; that it is delightfully refreshing, and that every element it contains is either corrective, alterative, or invigorating. Weigh these words. jy26

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CARD TO THE LADIES.

DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILL, FOR FEMALES.

Infallible in correcting irregularities, and removing obstructions of the monthly periods. It is over forty years since these now so well known pills were first brought to notice by Dr. Duponco, of Paris, during which time they have been extensively and successfully used by some of the leading physicians, with unparalleled success. Ladies in poor health, either married or single, suffering from any of the Complaints peculiar to Females, will find the Duponco Golden Pills invaluable, viz., General Debility, Headache, Faintness, Loss of Appetite, Mental Depression, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Loins, Bearing-down Pains, Palpitation of the Heart, Retained, Excessive, Irregular or Painful Menstruation, Rush of Blood to Head, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Fatigue on any slight exertion, and particularly that most annoying, weakening ailment, so common among Females, both married and single, the Leucorrhœa or Whites. Females in every period of life will find Duponco's Pills a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. They invigorate the debilitated and delicate, and by regulating and strengthening the system, prepare the youthful constitution for the duties of life, and when taken by those in middle life or old age they prove a perfect blessing. There is nothing in the pills that can do injury to life or health. Safe in their operation, powerful in their happy influences upon the Nerves, the Mind and the entire organization. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor, N. Y. ALVAN LITTLEFIELD, Boston, Agent, N. E. States.

Ladies by enclosing $1 by mail will have the Pills sent confidentially to any address.

The Chronicle.

BERWICK,—A new post-office has been established in that part of the town called Great Falls Village, and U. O. Brackett has been appointed postmaster. That part of the town has increased largely in population within a few years. About thirty new dwelling houses, shops and other buildings have been erected within a year or eighteen months. Among the more important business buildings are the establishments of L. D. Hersom & Co., for the tanning and manufacture of sheep skins; and the boot and shoe establishment of L. M. and D. H. Nute. Their building is 75 by 30 feet, 3 stories high, giving employment to 35 hands in the building, and a much larger number outside of it. They are driving a successful business. Great inducements are offered by the citizens to enlarge the boot and shoe business, by the sale of lots at lower prices than for any other purpose, and the town has voted to exempt them from taxation for ten years.

A correspondent of the Biddeford Democrat says the fire at South Berwick was probably caused by breaking a kerosene lamp in the hall occupied by the Good Templars. We learn that the burnt buildings are not to be rebuilt at present.

Correspondence of the Chronicle and Gazette.
RYE, Aug. 22.

Prof. Wallach, assisted by Mr. T. P. Ryder Pianist, gave a concert at the Farragut House on Friday evening last, which was attended by about 100 persons. The low price of the tickets, 25 cts. caused a failure in a pecuniary view, as it did not pay the Professor his expenses, which is to be regretted, as the entertainment gave great satisfaction to those who were present and who no doubt would have been perfectly willing to have paid double for their tickets. Mr. Wallach is not discouraged, however, and proposes if sufficient encouragement is given, to repeat his entertainment, at the Sea View House, on Friday evening next, and it is to be hoped if he does, that it will prove a real benefit to him, for he richly deserves it.

H. C. Barnabee gives an entertainment at Farragut Hall, Tuesday evening. The notices do not say that he will be assisted by any one, but he is fully competent to give a good show himself, individually, without the aid of any one.

Hops were held at the Ocean House, Weld Hall and the Farragut House on Saturday evening, all well attended and probably about the last of the season. Religious services were held at the Farragut Hall on Sunday morning, conducted by Rev. Rush B. Shippen of the Unitarian church, Worcester, Mass. Services have been held in this Hall every Sunday since the 1st of July, and have been well attended. The season is about at an end, and in a week from now Rye Beach will be almost deserted. Many left this morning, but a good company still remains—enough to make things lively for about a week longer. It has been a good season for the Hotels, but the private houses have not done so much business as heretofore.

Senator Patterson, who has been at the Farragut House for a few days, left this morning. The majority of the company this season were new faces at this beach, but all seemed well pleased and say they shall come again and bring their friends with them, so that the prospect for next season looks favorable. The weather continues very dry, and water has to be carted to the Hotels for their use. Saturday was about the most disagreeable day experienced at the beach this summer, but since then the wind has been from the Atlantic and it has blown more comfortable. R.

☞ It is stated that Connors, who threw the Eastman boy into the water at one of the Charlestown wharves, a few weeks since, causing his death, and was sent to the State prison therefor, is insane.

HAVING A GOOD TIME!—A jolly Texan painted and disguised himself as an Indian, went to his own house, scared his wife into a fit, set the dogs to howling, and caused his child to jump into a cistern.

☞ The 1866 Atlantic cable is again in working order.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.
It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.
One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds., 2 coats; while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.
The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.
The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINTS,
which are for sale at the

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE.
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effective remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel nor any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take. While being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One pill from fifty to twenty well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawjaltedsim

OLD FOLKS,
YOUNG FOLKS,
ALL FOLKS,
WHO ARE WEAK, whose appetite is poor, whose blood needs iron, who are bilious, whose stomach and nerves need to be strengthened, will be benefitted by
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Liver is acted on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the vegetable tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the digestion of Iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.
MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel to act on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect tonic combination. Iron, of all the preparts IRON to it. It acts on the Liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is a most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons whose blood is poor, and who need Iron and a strengthening medicine. 2meodawjy25

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 24, 1870.

THE WAR. — The Prussians have turned aside the river Il in order to cut off the water from Strasbourg.

Marshal Bazaine declares that he was not defeated in Thursday's battle.

Napoleon is reported to have escaped from France.

Paris is provisioned for ninety days and the forts around it contain six months' supplies.

Ollivier is sick with brain fever.

A despatch from Switzerland says the Germans had commenced throwing a bridge across the Rhine at a point between Basle and Mulhausen, within close proximity to the Swiss frontier. Ten thousand German troops are collected at that point. The Swiss government have protested, in the name of the independence of Switzerland, against any violation of the neutral territory.

A despatch from Mezieres says the loss of the Prussians in the last battle was fearful. More than 40,000 wounded remained on the battlefield without assistance.

Bazaine succeeded in reaching the railway from Mezieres to Montemedy and procured all the provisions he needed. The trains were filled with supplies and had been waiting for him at Sidan, it being dangerous to push them forward on account of the scouts of the Prussians. Communications between Bazaine and McMahon are kept up by couriers.

There has been no fight at Chalons.

The French government has forbidden the exportation of food.

The Prussians intend to surround Metz with a circular railway.

Prince Napoleon has returned to France from Italy.

Italy is putting an army on a war footing.

The request of Prussia, that her wounded may be sent home by the way of Brussells and Luxembourg, has been refused on the ground that its purpose was to clear the way for re-enforcements coming to the Prussian army.

King William telegraphed to Berlin that he shrank from learning his losses at Rezonville.

Paris has a defensive force of 200,000 men.

The French peasants poison the wells in Alsace.

Marshal Bazaine has succeeded in cutting through the Prussian line and retreating on Montmedy by way of Auderm and Longinjon. He professes to be master of the situation.

It is reported that the armies of the Royal Prince and Prince Frederick Charles have formed a junction to the westward of Metz.

The armies of King William and Steinmetz are reported to be too severely crippled to assume the offensive, and it is given out on high authority that Bazaine was re-inforced on Sunday from Chalons.

The appalling Prussian losses sent a thrill of horror throughout Germany, and recruits are only to be had among country people and workingmen, nearly all of whom are raw.

10,000 wounded Prussians have been sent to Berlin. The Prussian army is afflicted with dysentery.

THE BELLES OF NEWPORT.—A Newport letter says the prettiest girl at the Atlantic House is Miss Sargent, of Boston. She is a brunette, very fine-looking and with great deal of dignity in her manner. She has a striking face, such a face as is rarely seen, combining as it does decision and beauty. Her exact opposite is Miss Higgins of New York, at the Ocean House. She is a blonde with a sweet face, rather than a beautiful one, and a graceful, girlish manner that is very winning. She dresses in exquisite taste, and her toilettes are much admired. She divides the honors of belleship with Miss Sargent. [Miss Higgins, is we believe, a daughter of a Portsmouth girl, who was herself daughter of the late Mr. Jere. Johnson.]

☞ The memorial address or sermon on Admiral Farragut, by Rev. Mr. Kane, in this city on Sunday evening, was telegraphed (2500 words) to the N. York Herald that night, by request of the publisher, and appeared in the paper Monday morning. We publish this morning, the poem written by a lady for the occasion, and read in the course of the services, but which has not been published before.

☞ A despatch from Chicago, announces the death of Walter Perley, son of Ex-Chief Justice Perley, who had recently gone to Chicago to endeavor to get his son home, but found him too much sick to be disturbed. The deceased was a young man of much promise, and the intelligence of his death has cast a gloom over many hearts.

New Hampshire Items.

It is proposed to organize a Fat Man's Club in Dover, that city having sixty-one gentlemen whose meat, bones and grease combined, sum up to two hundred pounds avoirdupois and over. Mr. Frank Brown, the most rotund of the crowd, weighs two hundred and seventy-six.

A memorial volume, with Biographical Sketch, of the late Bishop Chase, will shortly be issued.

It is stated the late Rev. A. P. Tenney, for over thirty years pastor of the church at West Concord, had no vacation. Whenever he became weary at his desk, he would harness his horse and ride around the parish. Mr. T. remembered that the devil takes no breathing spell, but we don't see that this is any reason why nobody else should.

As Mrs. Nehemiah Bean and her daughter were riding down the Ham Hill, in Tuftonborough, the thrill girth broke, and the horse became unmanageable and ran, upsetting the carriage and throwing the occupants out, severely injuring Mrs. Bean.

As to the census returns, we do not see how the aggregate loss in the State can exceed 10,000, and it may fall below that number. Considering the drain on the State through migration and the war, there is really no substantial reason for gloomy reflections over the census developments.

At Great Falls, M. C. Burleigh has received a patent for mechanism for actuating the picker staff in looms.—The house of Mr. George W. Brasbridge was entered during the absence of the family, and a silver watch, some jewelry and money stolen. The thieves were caught.

George E. Titcomb, Esq., of Farmington, is soon to move to Exeter, for the purpose of giving his children the benefit of the superior schools of that place, as Hon. J. D. Lyman has done.

A young man in Rochester last Friday, eat 40 ears of boiled corn, twenty-six of them with his dinner, and in about an hour fourteen more for luncheon.

TEMPERANCE IN NEW HAMPSHIRE. A very important temperance movement is now going on privately, but not secretly, in New Hampshire. In the recent legislature in that State a stringent act was passed intended to be auxiliary to the existing prohibitory law. The new enactment provides a heavy fine for persons who let buildings to be used in the liquor traffic, makes liquor sellers responsible for the damages done in a state of intoxication by those to whom they sell spirits, and also levies a heavy fine upon Mayors and town authorities who neglect to prosecute rumsellers after being informed concerning them. This enactment passed the House of Representatives with only a trifling opposition and went through the Senate unanimously, and in conjunction with the prohibition law forms as good a legal weapon for the suppression of intemperance as the friends of that cause in New Hampshire generally ask for.

Encouraged by additional legislation, prominent temperance men in various sections of that State are preparing to commence work in the cause on the 15th of September next. The movement is in no sense whatever a political one, and no partisan organization is desired in connection with it. The actors in it are impressed with the conviction that efforts should again be made to stop, or at least to check and reasonably control, the liquor traffic in that Commonwealth.

Notwithstanding past experience, there are a considerable number who believe that the sale of spirits, excepting through authorized agents appointed by the State, can be wholly abolished, while others feel that all they can do under the present public sentiment on the subject is to keep the traffic within reasonable limits. This honest difference of opinion, however, will not prevent harmonious action among the friends of the cause. The movement upon its face has certainly an important look, and if carried out, the public will await the result with considerable interest.—Prohibition Journal.

CUBA.—A Santiago, Cuba, letter says that Valmaseda has arrived from Bayamo, which he left with 2000 men. On his way back he was attacked by Cubans, and lost 550 men, killed and wounded, and all his baggage, cannon, and $6000 in gold. Bodies of Spanish troops attempted to force their way from Manzanillo to Bayamo, but were repulsed, with a loss of 1400 men and fourteen cars of stores and equipage. Eighteen car loads of the wounded returned to Manzanillo.

THEATRE.—E. M. Leslie's Boston Comedy Company, which includes the old favorite, Yankee Locke, is coming for one performance, Sept. 10th.

☞ Congressman Butler of Tennessee has been arrested and bound over in the sum of $5000 on a charge of forgery.

—Mother: "Good morning, George; how did you get along in your debating society last night?" George: "Capital; we voted unanimously not to have anything more to do with the women!"

Many suffer rather than take nauseous medicines. All who suffer from coughs, colds, irritation of the bronchial tubes or tendency to consumption, will find in Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry a remedy as agreeable to the palate as effectual in removing disease. The Balsam is a pleasant remedy; it is a safe remedy; it is a powerful remedy; it is a speedy remedy; it is a remedy that cures.

ANOTHER MYSTERY SOLVED.—Chemists, being unable to discover the ingredients in fragrant SOZODONT, which removes all stains from the teeth and imparts such a peculiar coolness to the gums, the public are hereby informed that it is a preparation from the Bark of the QUILLAYA SAPONARIA or Soap Tree of Chili, imported for the first time into this country for this special purpose. Such is the purifying and innocuous effect of this rare botanical agent, that it removes discolorations from the most fragile textile fabrics, without injuring a single thread.

Save and mend the pieces, use "SPALDING'S GLUE."

SPECIAL NOTICES.

False Pretences.

The vast and continually increasing sales of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have provoked the envy of a certain class of dealers in various parts of the country, who are trying to substitute their utterly worthless local nostrums for the most popular proprietary medicine in the world. These impostors hope by their false statements to obtain from the millions who patronize the great American Tonic, a sufficient number of customers to make their speculations upon the health of their neighbors profitable. As the demand for Hostetter's Bitters is now so large and urgent as to tax to their fullest extent the facilities for its manufacture, these petty attempts to wring in the merest trash by false representations, are of little consequence to its proprietors.

They are, however, a serious evil to the victimized. If, for example, at this warm season, when a real invigorant is greatly needed, the sufferer from general debility, indigestion, biliousness or nervous weakness, is coaxed into using a wishy-washy compound without any medicinal virtue, instead of the sovereign specific in which the rarest tonic and alterative vegetable elements are scientifically combined, it is obvious that he will rue the day when he allowed himself to be thus deluded. It is in the interest of parties who have been or may be influenced by the persuasion of plausible charlatans, that this article is published. With the light of twenty years experience to guide him, why should the invalid take a leap in the dark? au20dawlw

COUGHS, INFLUENZA.

SORE THROAT, COLDS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, LIVER COMPLAINT, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, BLEEDING OF LUNGS, and every affection of the THROAT, LUNGS and CHEST, are speedily and permanently cured by the use of

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY.

This well known preparation does not dry up a cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most medicines, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

Consumption can be Cured

by a timely resort to this standard remedy, approved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

☞ A Sabbath school party of 150 persons from South Berwick went on an excursion to Kittery on Thursday and held a picnic.

☞ The excursion from Portsmouth to Wells Beach on Sunday, in Steamer Appledore, was a very pleasant trip, and is to be repeated next Sunday.

☞ The new Summer Street will probably be completed and opened for public travel in about a week; and it will prove one of our most useful and popular thoroughfares too, or we miss our guess, and will relieve Richards Avenue from a portion of its great wear.

We understand that one or more sales of House lots by auction in that vicinity, are talked of, for an early day —an event not common here, but quite customary elsewhere.

The widening of Congress Street, at Middle, is in progress, under direction of Street Commissioner Ham, and will be a great improvement.

INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE.—The following speaks for itself:—

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 22, 1870.

The Foul Batters and Heavy Muffers of this city challenge the Granite State nine to a friendly game of base ball, the contest to come off at the Plains on Thursday afternoon, in case this challenge be accepted; said challenge being subject to the following provisions:

1st, That the G. S. shall play our eighteen with their nine.

2nd, That we shall have six outs to their three.

3d, That a very soft ball be used.

4th, That we be allowed to hire three players from any Massachusetts club, at an expense not exceeding $28, the same to be defrayed by the captains of the F. B. & H. M. club.

5th, that the G. S. shall not knock the ball to any unreasonable and fatiguing distance, nor run bases faster than 5 miles an hour.

6th, That there be sufficient provisions on the ground to enable the Muffers to finish the game without leaving at supper time.

7th, That the G. S. shall not change their pitcher any more than three times, unless the captain of the F. B. changes his glasses.

8th, That their short stop shall be no longer than ours.

9th, That we have the privilege of using a glass to see if any of the G. S. are Foul Batters.

10th, That we have the choice of umpire, and that he be a Newburyport man from Portsmouth.

11th, That in case they put a ball into Canada, (our right fielder,) they shall take no more than one base, unless they can run more.

12th, That no player take more bases than he can return the next day.

13th, That the G. S. shall not use Foster's fly paper to catch flies.

14th, That the foregoing provisions (and of course it is understood that although we play at the plains the sand which is there has nothing to do with this clause) comprise the rules of the game, subject only to amendment.

15th, That the amendment be left out all together.

M. T. BETTON, Sec'y.

STRAWBERRY BANK, 8—23—1870.

Most Worthy Eighteen;—The Granite State nine have received the challenge from your perspiring club.

As might be expected they are quite overcome by the weighty considerations, but hope to recover in time to meet you on Thursday, on the field of conflict.

While they accept the heavy odds which your challenge inflicts upon them, it must be with the allowances which are herein stated:—

PROVISO;—1st, That none of the eighteen will feel "put out" if we bat swifter or harder than they can stand, any of the F. B. or H. M. falling down to be considered a violation of this rule.

2nd, That you allow "double play" when we send a red hot ball which strikes your men somewhere about the lower vest button.

3d, That the "Pitcher" takes nothing red hot, or stronger than water. [We prefer it filled with ice cold water from the "old oaken bucket" at Sherburne's well.]

4th, That the glass used by the Umpire be not too often filled during the game, as he might see double, and confuse the scorers.

5th, That your heavy basemen be not allowed to cover our men instead of the bases, as the surgeon of our club will necessarily be absent on the day of the game.

6th, That in case of rain, the heavy weights lend us one coat to protect our nine.

7th, That no outsider be allowed to Bet-ton the game.

8th, In case of any dispute which the Umpire cannot settle, we shall agree to Leav-it to the out-siders.

J. H. DOW, Director.

In accordance with the above, the game will be played at the Plains, Thursday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, sharp.

IN MEMORIAM FARRAGUT.

Tenderly lay him down to rest;
Muffled the drum and silent the tread;
Scatter sweet flowers o'er his breast,
Lovingly bear the nation's dead.
Droop the proud banner he bravely defended,
Boom the loud gun for the noble life ended.

Sweep on, O sea, through sun and storm,
Changing forever, yet still the same;
Never again, shalt thou bear his form
On through the conflict, to well earned fame.
Bright silken pennant shall float o'er the main,
His, the wild wind shall kiss—never again.

Say not, O, mourner, his life is fled;
His day hath ended, he is no more;
"Nay," saith the Master, he is not dead,
Haslo peth, he is but gone before.
Gone to the home which he longed for above,
Tasting the bliss of ineffable love.

His was a life so brave and true,
Generous alike to friend and foe,
Ever alert some good to do,
One whom to love, was only to know.
Well may Columbia be proud of her son,
Proud of the triumph his value hath won.

All honor to Farragut's noble name,
Loved by the lovely, revered by all.
In battle or peace he was still the same,
Ever most true to his country's call.
And while our dear banner floats o'er the sea,
The name of our hero remembered shall be.

On earth we have lost a gem divine,
But Heaven has gained one angel more.
Even while his funeral wreaths we twine,
He in the presence of God above,
Heareth the voice of his faithful Lord,
"Enter my rest, thou hast kept my word."

Portsmouth. NINA.

☞ One day last week, three ladies of this city, Miss Hannah Cutter, Miss Martin, Miss Kate Haven, and Miss Dewey of Boston, drove to Newington in an open wagon. Here, probably by turning too short, they crushed under one of the wheels, and were obliged to procure another carriage; after which, perhaps by some misadjustment of the harness, the horse started and ran away with them, and threw them all out, scarring and bruising all, so that they are quite sick since, and breaking Miss Cutter's wrist, which was dislocated a year ago or so. Dr. Hall, we are informed, was called to Newington to attend them; and found them suffering severely, but all were brought home.

☞ A young Prince, Yameda, from Yokohama, Japan, visited the Navy Yard, Tuesday. He is the guest of Civil Engineer Chandler.

Brig. Gen. Zeilin, of U. S. M. C. is the guest of Major Lewis, at the Yard, and was honored with a salute on Tuesday.

THE MATTER.—Numerous enquiries having been made relative to the no-go of the Town Clock on the North Church, we are requested to state that it has been stopped to allow the dials to be painted; and will travel on once more, as soon as that job is finished.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. "Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

RICHARDSON'S

LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, is light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocket handkerchief to a

LARGE BED SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Meechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

The sale of the LITTLE WASHER is unprecedented, not only in Portsmouth but everywhere else where it has been introduced. All who desire one of these valuable Little Machines will do well to apply early, as the demand is greater than the supply. J. J. HAYLINGER, Agent.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the glossy and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.

Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of soiling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently preserve the beauty of youth. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.

If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Morning Chronicle.

THE TIENTSIN MASSACRE. — Despatch to Boston Advertiser.— Letters from Tientsin, June 23, give new particulars of the massacre of foreigners at that place in January last. A fierce attack was made on the French and English missions at Hong Kaw, and a number of the former were outrageously treated. Their houses were burned and one clergyman killed. The French Minister at once demanded reparation and punishment of all persons engaged in the disgraceful and inhuman violence. The churches and missions were rebuilt, actual indemnification made and several of the known participants in the affair were beheaded. For a time everything remained quiet, but educated Chinamen said openly that in a little time they would kill every foreigner in China.

It is now known that from Nankee to Tetntsin a concerted plan of action was agreed upon, under the plea that foreigners were in China for the purpose of kidnapping young boys and girls, killing them, digging out their eyes, mutilating their persons, stewing portions of their bodies in a huge chaldron, and packing in tin cans, after which they shipped them to Europe and America for medical purposes, the preparation being a sure panace for baffling diseases.

Of course such infamous reports were known by the officials to be base lies, but they repeated the tales, and on the same day, June 6th, the several governors of all the Northern Provinces, caused to be hoisted official notices taking cognizance of the rumors and giving official color and sanction thereto. In every village, hamlet, fishing station, and city, did these notices appear on the walls and temples. The consequence of this official notice was to cause great alarm among the lower classes, and to intensify their bitter hatred of Europeans. On Sunday, June 19th, the mutterings of trouble assumed hostile shape by the assembling of a large crowd of natives under the walls of their native city, about two miles north of the foreign settlement, and in the immediate vicinity of the French settlement. The crowd indulged in fierce screams and howls, beating of tom-toms and gongs, and assaults of the servants of Europeans and such native Christians as appeared on the streets.

The tumult continued on the 20th and 21st, and about noon of the latter day the assault was made resulting in the death of fourteen women, seven men, sixty-four native Christians, and sixty children. The dead were horribly mutilated and the Consulate Cathedral and outbuildings soon burned. Rev. Mr. Stanley and family, of Cincinnati, Ohio, occupied one of the missions; but as he chanced to be absent at the time, Mrs. Stanley and Miss Thompson found refuge on board the steamship Mancha, and thus, doubtless, escaped a terrible fate.

When the attack was made, the French Consuls, Henri Fontanier, M. Simon, his secretary, M. Contres, Chancellor, and Monsieur and Madame Thomassen were at lunch. The crowd approached and made demands for the consul to proceed to the mission and compel the sisters to turn out the children. The howls were almost deafening, and in a few minutes stones began to shower on the building, some breaking the windows and falling on the dining table, breaking dishes, and scattering food about the room. Upon this the consul and his secretary arose from the table, put on their side arms and regulation hats, and going to the wall which surrounded the consulate, attempted to reason with the excited crowd. They were met with volley after volley of sticks and stones, and finding remonstrance vain the gentlemen went out by the rear gate and, pursued by the howling mob, sought the yamen and demanded an instant interview of the governor. It was granted.

What occurred at that interview we have no means of knowing except from Chinese information. A Chinaman named Ting says that Chung How treated the consul most contemptuously and even spat upon him when he approached Chung How with lack of faith and connivance with the priests of Budhist. The servants were ordered to expel him and did so violently. In the scuffle a revolver, which the secretary had in his hand, was discharged into the floor. The doomed men then sought the street and attempted to reach the consulate. [Mr. Contres had meantime escaped and concealed himself in the top of a temple, where he witnessed what transpired], but as they turned the corner a leading brave attacked the consul and in an instant hundreds more had joined the assailant and in less time than it takes to record it, they had cut, hacked, and literally torn their bodies almost past recognition.

Blood once having been shed and 2 high officials slain, these braves know no fear. With maddened howls they again sought the Consulate. At the gate they found a priest whom they instantly killed. M. Thomassen was then caught as he was barring the gate and cut down. Madam Thomassen then came to the wall, and the crowd rushed at her. She drew two self-cocking revolvers and killed, it is said, four of five Chinamen before she was overpowered. Her struggles were of no avail, though, and she was immediately murdered. Every house servant at the consulate, a native priest, and two Canton men were killed, and then the place was set on fire. In an hour the consulate, cathedral and out-buildings were a mass of ruins. The bodies of the priest, Monsieur and Madam Thomassen were thrown into the river, where they were recovered the next.

Meantime, after M. Fountanier had been slain, a crowd numbering several thousand had crossed the bridge of boats and surrounded the mission. The doors were instantly wrenched from the gate and the crowd filled the enclosure with horrible howls. A native Christian priest who attempted to guard the door was seized and torn limb from limb. Nine of the sisters were then collected in the large school room. They were beaten with sticks of bamboo and their clothes torn from their bodies. They were placed on their heads and cut with knives in the most savage manner, and outraged almost beyond belief. Yet alive, they were ranged side by side along the room, their cheeks gashed, lips and nose cut, eyes scooped from their heads, their breasts cut off, and abdomens ripped open with large cleavers. Their limbs were cut and broken, and in ten minutes naught remained but their disfigured bodies. Every cruelty which it was possible for the most savage barbarian to conceive of, was perpetrated upon these weak, defenceless Christian ladies. When there was no more to do, fire was applied to the massive buildings and in a little time they were burned.

Sixty or seventy children who had sought refuge from the mob in the cellar were burned to a cruel death. Afterwards six boxes containing the charred and mangled bones of sisters were forwarded by Ching How to the English Consul. As soon as slaughter commenced, news of it was carried by the friendly Chinese to the main settlement, and instantly means of defense were taken. There was lying at the levee the American steamship Mancha, Captain Steel, and the English steamship Appin, besides two barques and three schooners. Inasmuch as the deck of the Mancha commanded the entire levee and the main street leading to the city, it was deemed best to centralize the means of defence, and eleven mounted guns were procured, and guns, rifles and pistols were secured. The ladies and children hurried on board. The citizens resolved into a patrol guard. The gun-boats arrived two or three days later, and there was no further disturbances.

A CARD TO THE LADIES.
DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILL.
FOR FEMALES.
Infallible in correcting irregularities, and removing obstructions of the monthly periods. It is over forty years since these now so well known pills were first brought to notice by Dr. Duponco, of Paris, during which time they have been extensively and successfully used by some of the leading physicians, with unparalleled success. Ladies in poor health, either married or single, suffering from any of the Complaints peculiar to Females, will find the Duponco Golden Pills invaluable, viz., General Debility, Headache, Faintness, Loss of Appetite, Mental Depression, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Loins, Bearing-down Pains, Palpitation of the Heart, Retained, Excessive, Irregular or Painful Menstruation, Rush of Blood to Head, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Fatigue on any slight exertion, and particularly that most annoying, weakening ailment, so common among females, both married and single, the Leucorrhœa or Whites. Females in every period of life will find Duponco's Pills a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. They invigorate the debilitated and delicate, and by regulating and strengthening the system, prepare the youthful constitution for the duties of life, and when taken by those in middle life or old age they prove a perfect blessing. There is nothing in the pills that can do injury to life or health. Safe in their operation, perpetual in their happy influences upon the Nerves, the Mind and the entire organization. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor, N. Y. ALVAR LITTLEFIELD, Boston, Agent, N. E. States.
Ladies by enclosing $1 by mail will have the Pills sent confidentially to any address.

THE HORRIBLE FLY.

Hot weather does develop the divine afflatus. We know it. Failing in a frantic attempt at an after-dinner the other day, and while smarting under a sense of cruel and undeserved persecution, a fellow produced the following elegant poem:

Oh, the fly! the horribly fly!
Dubbing at nose and mouth and eye,
Over the ceiling, over the meat,
Over all that people eat.
Buzzing,
Tickling,
Crawling about!
Miserable insect, you get out!

Wading in paint on a lady's cheek,
Leaving behind a tortuous streak,
Accursed fly! From the hell below
Never come post that plagues us so.
Dancing,
Nibbling,
Fresh from the sty,
The stinking sty, where the porkers lie.

And even the dogs with a snarl and a bound,
Snap at the insects that swarm around,
The air is blue with oaths that try
To drown the hum of the ejus fly.

When the weary pilgrims seek repose,
There's a horrapipe danced on the tip of the nose;
There's a vigorous oath, and a slam and a slap,
And that's the end of the Speaker's nap.
Singing,
Stinging,
Why, oh, why
Did God create this pestilent fly?!

Once I was pious, but fell from grace—
Played the knave open, and coppered the ace—
Made of myself a terrible guy,
When the devil caught me on the fly.

How strange it is, that woman will try
To kill with cobalt this villainous fly;
How strange it seems when a million are slain,
To find the multitude doubled again.
Whisking,
Frisking,
With clammy feet,
Hunting us out in quiet retreat.

If when, at the fly we swear,
And the angel recorder enters it there,
Give us, then, the welcome doubt
That the tear of mercy will blot it out.

—In the old time of the New Hampshire militia, when the "fall training" was an institution of marked brilliancy, and hard boiled eggs, gingerbread and sweet cider were staple commodities of traffic, the line was drawn up for inspection, on one occasion, when one company was found by the inspector in a somewhat demoralized condition. It was straggling and irregular, and bore no sign of being officered.

"Halloo!" said he, "who commands this company?"

The ranks were silent, and there was an apparent movement to close up as if to conceal something.

"Who commands this company?"

At this a half-stifled, drunken voice came up from somewhere in the rear,

"Cap'n Barn'bas Boody."

Thrusting the men aside, there Cap'n Barn'bas was seen, in a state of great weakness, sitting against the stone wall.

"Well, Captain Boody," said the inspector, "why don't you bring your men into line?"

"Been tryin' to for er half'our," replied the gallant officer, with a hiccup, "an' this is the neares' I could co-co-(hic)-come to it."

At this he tumbled over "into line," and a lieutenant went home that night captain of the company.—Am. Union.

THE POPULATION QUESTION is becoming a serious one. There are no babies at Saratoga or Newport, at Long Branch or Rye Beach, or Nahant. And the darlings are not left at home, either; they are not deposited with their grandmothers; they are not put out to nurse. The fact is—the melancholy and shocking fact—that there are no babies belonging to these mothers. It has been settled that it is unfashionable to have babies; and, of course, fashionable people obey the mandate and disobey the commandment given to all men through Adam. No more infants behind brown-stone fronts! The main business of population seems to be permanently turned over to the shanties.—Exchange.

HEAD LETTUCE.—It is said that heads of lettuce can be procured in winter in from twenty-four to forty-eight hours, by taking a box filled with rich earth, in which one-third part of slacked lime has been mixed, and watering the earth with lukewarm water; then taking seed which has been previously softened by soaking in strong brandy twenty-four hours, and sowing in the usual way. We are assured, but will not vouch for the fact, that a good-sized head of lettuce may be obtained in the time mentioned.—Harper's Mag. for Sept.

KILL THE CATTERPILLARS.—A friend of mine a year ago or so, discovered by accident, while boiling coal tar, that the boiling or burning of it under trees infested with caterpillars would kill the last one of them. These trees were literally covered with caterpillars, and every one fell and died under the trees. If the tar be put into a long handled fry pan and set on fire it could be carried from tree to tree until the desired end is accomplished. This hint to fruit growers should be sufficient.—I. I. Hite, in Virginia Farmers.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT? IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.
It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.
One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds. 2 coats: while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats.—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.
The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.
The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but effectual purgative Pill. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any other deleterious drug, they can be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh, and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by so doing, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure such cases, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it:
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawjel6eod4m

OLD FOLKS,
YOUNG FOLKS,
ALL FOLKS,
WHO ARE WEAK, whose appetite is poor, whose blood needs iron, who are bilious, whose stomach and nerves need to be strengthened, will be benefitted by
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Liver is acted on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the vegetable tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the assimilation of iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.
MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel to act on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect medicine. It purifies the blood and imparts health to the system. It acts on the liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is a most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons whose blood is poor, and who need Iron and a strengthening medicine. 2meodawjy25

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 25, 1870.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.—The Crown Prince of Prussia has withdrawn from his advance on Paris, and gone to the support of the Prussian armies west of Metz, the position of the latter being threatened with a formidable attack from Bazaine, who has been re-enforced by McMahon.

The German forces in France have undergone a partial re-organization, and re-inforced, and redistributed will go into battle in the following order:—The first army, under command of General Steinmetz, amounts in all to 100,000 infantry and 2800 cavalry. The second army, under command of Prince Frederick Charles, numbers 220,000 men and 600 guns. The third army corps, commanded by the Crown Prince, is composed of 200,000 men.

The grand total of the German forces in France is 520,000 men, divided into sixteen army corps. 300,000 of the Landwehr have entered Alsace and Lorraine to invest and occupy places in the rear and relieve the regular soldiers of those duchies so they may join their own regiments in the front. Orders have been issued to disband the veteran reserves called out at the commencement of the war.

The Prussian frigate Hertha, twenty-eight guns, has been captured by the French.

Villages in the neighborhood of Metz where battles of the past ten days have been fought are nearly destroyed.

Prussia applied, through Lord Granville, for the consent of the French commanders to allow her wounded, to the number of 85,000 men, to be sent home through Belgium and Luxembourg, and Marshal Bazaine positively refused.

The sucpesses of the Prussian armies have caused a revival of the question of the Hohenzollern candidature. There are rumors that General Prim is in favor of submitting the subject to the people by a plebiscitum.

The battle of the 14th was bloodier than that of Sadowa.

Reinforcements for the French army go forward at the rate of 15,000 to 20,000 daily.

The Paris Presse says that peace is impossible as long as a single Prussian soldier treads on French soil.

The resistance of Marshal Bazaine, even with a small force under his command, prevented the advance of the Prussians until the organization and preparation of Marshal McMahon's large army was entirely completed. Marshals McMahon and Bazaine are now ready to assume the offensive, and a movement is expected immediately. They will attack the Prussians together.

The Prussian losses thus far are estimated at 35,000 killed and 55,000 wounded.

La Presse makes the following statement: "We are now at liberty to make public the fact that McMahon has joined Bazaine with a large number of troops.

Bazaine has not abandoned his strong position near Metz.

McMahon moved north, and France is saved. By way of Rheims, Mezieres and Montmedy, McMahon has reached a position where he can enter upon the decisive struggle."

McMahon's army numbers 175,000 men.

☞ The loss by the late fires near Ottawa, Canada, is estimated at $2,000,000. A fearful sheet of flame, ten miles broad, swept through Gloucester and illuminated Ottawa. In the townships of Gloucester, Nepean and Fitzroy the fires were waved on before a tremendous gale, destroying fences, stables, houses and woods. At Fitzroy a line seven miles broad was ablaze, and at Bell's Corners only two buildings were left out of two hundred. Great numbers of fugitives have arrived at Ottawa. Many persons are burned. The flames are still raging.

☞ All the prizes contested for in the Victoria regatta at Hong Kong were won by the boats entered by the United States vessels. The ladies' purse, which was the crack prize, was won by Admiral Rowan's barge with a crew trained and commanded by Lieutenant Commander R. D. Evans. The Englishmen were generally disgusted.

☞ Harper's Weekly for May 27 has a capital likeness of the late Admiral Farragut.

NAVAL.—Chief Engineer O. H. Lackey is ordered to the Norfolk navy yard.

—In Cass County, Iowa, there are twenty-two cheese manufactories, with a capital of $412,500, using 8250 cows and producing 3,520,750 pounds of cheese per year.

—The feature of the period—Cheek.

—Printers pay a large ink'em tax.

Correspondence of Chronicle and Gazette.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.

One of the pleasantest visits I have made of late in the interviewing line, was an inspection of the house of Dearborn Steam Fire Engine Co., No. 14, Boston Highlands. An entirely new building, with all modern improvements. Boston has no other engine house that can compare with this one in the pleasantest part of the city, which formerly was Roxbury. Situated on Centre street, the view from all its north or westerly windows is really grand; furnished in a tasteful manner, all its appointments are neat, with a richness that approaches sumptuousness. The great engine and hose carriage, ornate with painting and bright with well-polished brass and nickel plating stand ever ready.—bearing "Manchester, N. H.," upon the plates which signify whence the benificent aids to man's efforts come. In the stables, ready harnessed, stand noble hores, horses for which a worsted monarch might well offer his kingdom. Up stairs the neat sleeping rooms, bath room and parlor elicit much admiration.

The heavy outlay in furnishing their rooms, so readily met by the old hand engines, cannot be expected of the few men who are connected with a steamer, but efficient companies will not feel any disparity, as those who have property that gains its chief security from the value of the fire department, will be ever ready to manifest their approbation of such a service. The Dearborns will soon display in their parlor fine chromos from Prang & Co's celebrated establishment, and vases from Clark, Plympton & Co's elegant now China store on Summer Street. These firms do themselves as well as the firemen credit in thus voluntarily contributing to the beautification of the engine house—the fireman's home.

Adjoining Scollay's Building, on Court Street, is an old building, long the property of the city. Cramped and crowded in this old trap for years has been one of our finest steam fire-engines—"Barnicoat, No. 4." More spacious accommodations will soon be furnished on the same spot, the city having warned out all tenants on the 1st of October next.

Boston may not experience any of the plagues which finally brought Pharaoh to terms, but it is overrun with water-bugs. These brevet-cockroaches are seen in incredible numbers in places which never knew them before, and are attributed by some scoffers to the workings of the prohibitory law. By the way, that law is practically inoperative in this city at present:—lager and ale are sold without stint, and the native Americans and Irish labor under the delusive idea that they have as good right to drink their whiskey or rum at an open bar, as the Teuton has to swill his beer in public.

The premises 1330 Washington Street, used by Mr. Bean, (formerly occupying what is now the Mechanics' Reading Room in your city,) as a photographic studio, were entered Friday afternoon, ane a quantity of clothing stolen. No clue to the thief has yet been obtained.

Our brilliant auroral display of Friday night was followed by a most beautiful one at an early hour this morning. Sweeping across the entire northern horizon lay a heavy black bank of cloud, its upper edge forming the arc of a circle. From behind this the clear bright points of the Northern lights shot up to a great height, each point seeming to pierce the edge of the black cloud as it shot upward, and to carry with it by a sort of capilliary attraction a portion of its dark coloring matter—thus forming a delicate and perfect fringe along the whole line of cloud, made more distinct by the radiant purity of the bright light above. At the same time a heavy solid pillar of a delicate rose hue lifted its grand proportions more to the east and south, standing sentinel over this display of nature's beautiful pyrotechnico. M.

☞ There is one distinguished candidate for Congress in Illinois: The Bloomington Pantagraph says that Col. Merriam of the Eighth Congressional district "has facilities for visiting at least four of the counties of his district such as few candidates for Congress ever had. He lives at the junction of McLean, Tazewell and Logan counties, and near the corner of De Witt. His farm is in McLean, Tazewell and Logan; his dwelling is in Tazewell, his barn in Logan and the bulk of his crop is raised in McLean. He eats in one county, feeds his horse in another, ploughs with him in a third, goes to church in a fourth, and will go to Congress from all of them."

—An ice house laborer being killed by a lump of ice falling on his head, the verdict was, died of "hard drink."

New Hampshire Items.

A son of Mr. Charles Stanyan of Chicester, aged 11 years, was thrown from his horse, on Saturday last, receiving fatal injuries.

The Fish Commissioners having been successful in putting black bass in several waters in the State last year, have decided to put them into other waters this fall.

John W. Busiel, Esq., of Laconia, has a fig tree in his garden, from which ripe fruit has been picked, and on which there are now figs in all stages of maturity, from those just started to those nearly ripened.

☞ An Advent Camp Meeting at Kittery, commenced last Friday, to continue two weeks. The big tent is pitched near the residence of Mr. J. H. Sanborn at Spruce Creek. The attendance is large, and a neighbor says the services are apparently graduated for deaf people.

A temperance meeting was held at Armory Hall, Kittery, Monday evening; and the speaker, an amusing old sailor named John F. Gerald, had a large audience.

UNSUCCESSFUL.—An experimentive gentleman in Chicago, hearing that dry copperas put in a bed of ants would cause them to leave, put some in his mother-in-laws' bed, to see if she would go. He found it would remove ants, but had no effect on mothers-in-law.

☞ We rather under-estimated the importance of Cames' Carriage Factory, as an industrial interest in our midst. We learn that a force of 30 hands is now employed; and the enlargement now in progress will increase the number to 40.

HE CAME AND WENT.—Two young ladies in Bangor, a few nights since were awaken by a man climbing into their chamber widow on a ladder. They quietly tipped the ladder over. That man wont go there any more.

☞ Two bluefish, united a la Siamese twins, were caught in Great South Bay last week. The tails and fins were grown together for several inches, the heads being nearly at right angles with each other.

☞ It was Mr. A. J. Knights of Eliot, and not John W., his brother, who was injured by a fall at the Navy Yard a week or two since. Mr. Knights is at work again, but is'still quite lame in his hands and back.

INDEPENDENT. — A watering-place correspondent says "dressing is not a matter of moment here. Every lady is singularly independent, and dresses or not, as it suits her."

ACCIDENT.—Mr. George Perkins fell from a hatch-way to the floor of the slipper manufactory of A. F. & C. Davis, Wednesday afternoon, and was seriously injured.

A SQUARE MEAL!—A guest at a hotel in Leavenworth ate over a dozen ears of green corn at one meal the day before his funeral.

—The Official Gazette of Sweden contains a government notice to the effect that henceforward women in that kingdom will be allowed to practise and study medicine on the same footing as men.

More than 500,000 people bear testimony to the wonderful curative effects of Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery. It cures Bronchitis, and the worst lingering coughs. As an anti-Bilious medicine for Liver Complaint it has no equal. It permanently cures constipation of the bowels, cleanses and purifies the blood and thereby cures Scrofulous and Syphilitic taints, and all diseases of the skin, as pimples, Blotches, Boils, Rashes and Eruptions. Sold by druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

False Pretences.

The vast and continually increasing sales of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have provoked the envy of a certain class of dealers in various parts of the country, who are trying to substitute their utterly worthless local nostrums for the most popular proprietary medicine in the world. These impostors hope by their false statements to obtain from the millions who patronize the great American Tonic, a sufficient number of customers to make their speculations upon the health of their neighbors profitable. As the demand for Hostetter's Bitters is now so large and urgent as to tax to their fullest extent the facilities for its manufacture, these petty attempts to divert the current from its legitimate channels, are of little consequence to its proprietors.

They are, however, a serious evil to the victimized. If, for example, at this warm season, when a real invigorant is greatly needed, the sufferer from general debility, indigestion, billiousness or nervous weakness, is coaxed into using a wishy-washy compound without any medicinal virtue, instead of the sovereign specific in which the rarest tonic and alterative vegetable elements are scientifically combined, it is obvious that he will rue the day when he allowed himself to be thus deluded. It is in the interest of parties who have been or may be influenced by the persuasion of plausible charlatans, that this article is published. With the light of twenty years experience to guide him, why should the invalid take a leap in the dark? au20dawlw

Communication.

Messrs. Editors:—Your efforts for removal of nuisances effecting health and shocking to the nasal organs of all who have any, at all sensitive, have been more praiseworthy than successful. Will you lift your voice once against the disgusting practice of daubing the walls and rocks around us with paint or printed advertisements, and thus, if you succeed in checking the evil, let us have the enjoyment of our suburbs with one sense unshocked. *

☞ At the meeting of the Mechanic Association, Tuesday evening, to consider the subject of having a Celebration this Fall, it was decided to employ the Secretary to call on the members, and personally ascertain their views, and report at the adjourned meeting next Tuesday evening. A picnic, an excursion to the Lake, or an old-fashioned city celebration, are all talked of.

☞ On Tuesday forenoon, as the grocery team of Mr. H. F. Gerrish, driven by his son, was crossing the tracks at the Eastern Railroad station in this city, it was fearfully near being run over by a train, and was only saved by the shouts of passengers on the train, causing Mr. Gerrish to swing his team short and sharp to the right about, just in the nick of time. He says there was no flag-man there, and no measures of precaution taken for passers; but the road at the crossing is the private way of the Railroad, and not a public highway, and probably the watchman was stationed at Vaughan Street, as usual. The crossing of rail and post roads at the same level is very dangerous, at least; and we always shudder when we see it, even with all possible safeguards. One should always run under or over the other.

GREELEY'S HAND-WRITING.—There have been more jokings over Horace Greeley's execrable hand-writing than we could name, but the annexed one is certainly one of the best. In May last Mr. M. B. Castle of Sandwich, Illinois, invited Mr. Greely to lecture. To this the following reply was sent:

"Dear Sir:—I am overworked and growing old. I shall be 60 next Feb. 3. On the whole, it seems I must decline to lecture henceforth, except in this immediate vicinity, if I do at all. I cannot promise to visit Illinois on that errand—certainly not now,

Yours, HORACE GREELEY.
M. R. Castle, Sandwich, Illinois."

We can partly imagine the great efforts made by the lecture committee and others to decipher Horace's pot-hooks, and the delight which they must have felt at their success in extracting their general meaning. That they did so will be seen in the following epistle forwarded in due time to Mr. Greeley:

"SANDWICH, Ill. May 12.

Horace Greeley, New York Tribune.
—Dear Sir:—Your acceptance to lecture before our association next winter came to hand this morning. Your penmanship not being the plainest, it took some time to translate it; but we succeeded, and would say your time—'3d of Feb.' and terms—'$60,' are entirely satisfactory. As you suggest, we may be able to get you other engagements in this immediate vicinity; if so, we will advise you.

Yours respectfully, M. B. CASTLE."

This is pretty good—but there are plenty of other writers as bad as Greeley. A letter from a distinguished N. E. Senator of the U. S., to the Com. of the late Editors' Convention, could not and cannot possibly be deciphered. And another special instance we shall never forget. When Hon. Frank Fuller was chairman of the M. L. A. Lyceum in this city, Hon. R. Choate sent him a reply to his invitation to appear in the course; but no mortal eye could discern from the famous lawyer's pot-hooks and trammels, whether he accepted or declined the invitation—and as Mr. Fuller was a great admirer of Choate, and very desirous to procure him, he decided to announce him, at any rate, and rely on the letter for authority, which nobody could gain say. He did so, and Choate actually delivered here, as we have always understood, the only Lyceum address he ever gave out of Boston, at least for a long number of years previous to his death.

—The end of justice—a cat-o'-nine-tails.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

ABUSE OF SAILORS.—All good citizens will be gratified by the exposure in some of our public journals, of the wanton and cruel abuse of sailors by shipmasters and officers.—Hon. John P. Hale, while in Congress, exerted himself to procure—and did procure,—the enactment of a law prohibiting the flagellation of sailors on board of our public vessels; and this law was also intended for the protection of merchant seamen. I would call the attention of seamen and masters of vessels to that law, which seems to be disregarded or forgotten by many. It had a good effect, at least for a time. Prior to the enactment of that law, shipmasters and officers acted towards sailors under their command as if they were no better than brutish beasts.

Our last Legislature passed an act to punish any one guilty of cruelty to animals. A sailor is a man. Shall he be subjected to worse treatment than the lower animals? The treatment he formerly received tended to destroy his manhood.

In past times there were complaints made against many shipmasters upon their arrival at the port of my residence. Partly from motives of humanity and partly for fees, I prosecuted and had not a few of them punished, by the imposition of damages, or fines and costs; it had a good effect. It is believed that at the present day the masters are more on their guard, and less disposed to be guilty of inhuman treatment; but it is probable that some of the mates are not yet civilized. LEX.

[Remarks.—The law against flaggellating sailors did abolish the seizing up and flogging, which was once so common, in both the navy and the merchant service; but so far from repressing cruelty and preventing outrage in the latter, it merely effected a substitution of other means of torture—handspikes, belaying-pins, fists, heavers, brass knuckle-rs and sea boots—for the time-honored and far more merciful "cat." As to the mates of the present day being less civilized than the captains,—if captains incline to treat their men well, few mates will be found to dispute their wishes.

The Boston Transcript, in a recent article showing the disastrous effects of the immunity from punishment of sailor-smashing and sailor-murdering officers, upon the morals and welfare of our seamen and our merchant service, says: "Now the average of officers maimed and murdered at sea is about as great as that of the crew; the redress of grievances is now principally adjusted on board. Where we now ought to have two hundred thousand American citizens in our sea service, we have scarcely five thousand." With the latter statement I agree; the former is wide indeed of the facts in the case.

Perhaps as many cases of violence to officers as to sailors, come before the courts and the public; but a moment's reflection will show that this apparently equal average is apparent only. Nearly every case of outrage on an officer or captain, is punished by the legal tribunals; for it is easy to serve out "justice" to the sailor, when he has done wrong! On the other hand, the almost impossibility of getting a conviction against cruel officers, and the certainty that a ridiculously light punishment would follow a conviction when obtained, are well understood among seamen; and I am far within bounds when I say that not one per cent. of the crimes committed upon sailors at sea, are ever heard of on shore.

I have seen several murders at sea; and I have seen scores of seamen beaten and maimed for life—ruptured, their limbs broken, and their features crushed and horribly disfigured; but not a single instance of any punishment whatever being meted out to an officer who murdered or maimed a sailor, ever yet came under my personal observation.

The condition of our merchant seamen and the barbarities practiced upon them, are as horrible as they are unknown to the great body of our citizens. And this state of affairs will continue, and grow worse and worse, so long as American seamen are held—as they are now held by the laws of the nation which has just liberated four millions of blacks—in absolute, hopeless slavery. Give to sailors their liberty, and they will rise to the level of other skilled laborers; at present they are but dogs, and are treated as such; and for this the infamous maritime laws of the United States are responsible. J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 30 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

RICHARDSON'S

LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocket-handkerchief to a

LARGE BED SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

The sale of the LITTLE WASHER is unprecedented, not only in Portsmouth but everywhere else where it has been introduced. All who desire one of these valuable Little Machines will do well to apply early, as the demand is greater than the supply. J. J. HATLINGER, Agent.

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.

Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved from sickliness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it pliean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.

If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Morning Chronicle.

THE THREE LOVES OF PLUMACHARD.

From the French of Pierre Vernon.

INTRODUCTION.

It was the most animated of reunions—a reunion of artists where the talking had raised itself to the highest notes of the fantastic gamut, and to crown its wildness the subject was—Love.

Each had—little or much—recounted a history, gay, fantastic or real, of his heart confidences that would smooth a Quaker's wrinkles and abash a grenadier.

Until now, but one of the company had kept a reserve, which I will not interpret for fear of impairing the interest in the following tale. That solitary guest, "imitating Comèd in a silent prudence," was Plumachard.

Plumachard, Insurance Broker for the Company of Family Salamanders, was thirty years old, but looked at least ten years older. As for his physique, it was that of a man of whom we say nothing; for morals, the type of one that had had bad luck. How explain the presence of Plumachard in a circle exclusively artistic?

They had admitted him for amusement, lively and gratuitous.

With these gifts the silence which enveloped the broker could not fail to be noticed; in fact, as no one threw down the gauntlet of another story, a shout suddenly raised itself.

"Plumachard has said nothing! Plumachard has secrets for us! On the table, Plumachard! Don Juan Plumachard, tell us the gay pranks of your youth!"

"Gentlemen," stammered the unfortunate. A new explosion of cries interrupted him.

"No excuses! Speak, Plumachard! The torture if you refuse full revelations! The question extraordinary of punch! That he drinks until he speaks! Plumachard should be a man who has suffered much. I want to probe his wounds!"

"Gentlemen," gasped the prosecented broker, "if you make me drink till I'm sick you'll only deprive me of articulation, and defeat your own ends."

"Bravo! He crushes us with logic! I know thee: thou art called reason."

"As to my wounds," pursued the orator, "he who pronounced that word did not deceive himself; I have suffered much."

Seventeen ironical sobs shook the arches of the studio. There were stimulated tears, hic-coughs of despair, and hankerchiefs pressed convulsively to weeping eyes.

"Hi! Hi! Hi! Plumachard, you read our souls! If you continue, I shall faint! Alas! what grief fills the heart of a pensive broker."

"I will tell nothing, since you mock me," said the narrator, really vexed.

"What! refuse us!" interfered the master of the house. "I call the company to order! Never has it been our good fortune to behold such a representation as that offered by the heart of our friend. Think of the softness of the occasion. Listen, grave and attentive, while the tender avowals flow like billows of honey from his coral lips. The first who interrupts shall lose his liquor."

This threat seemed to produce a deep impression, for quiet was re-established as if by enchantment. Nothing was heard but the puffing of a dozen cigars as their smoke wreathed itself fantastically upwards, and it was to this Havanese accompaniment that Plumachard plunged into the following narrative:

I.—COMEDY.

"Gentlemen, I am not eloquent; I have not the power of the late honorable Tite-Live of reciting histories; I am not even such a novelist as the late Walter Scott."

"Those words are stolen from the Saltimbanques!" cried a voice.

"Not so spirited, Plumachard! more pathetic!" exclaimed another.

"Still!" growled the irritated host; "Plumachard, continue, I pray you."

He continued:

"I have avowed to you my literary incompetency, but in default of other good qualities I have dared to hope that my veracity will find favor in your sight.

I was twenty-two years old, gentlemen. I had never loved, but this active verb ran in my head from morning till evening, and vice versa.

With whom should I conjugate it?

Upon this chapter of fancies I had fully decided. I wished. You promised not to laugh.

I wished to be loved for myself at first sight, since my slender purse forbade my being loved for anything else. I wished a friendship that did not deprive me of liberty and prove a source of trouble; I wished finally and above all to remain a bachelor.

Meanwhile, I met for the first time her who made my heart leap within me.

In my youthful dreams I had always caressed the prospective of a young and loving widow.

A widow! It is independence par excellence; nothing to incommode, nothing to embarrass.

Oh, paradise of the amorous! I hummed already the couplet of Scribe on the subject.

Judge then my joy when I found that my charmer joined to her other qualifications that of widowhood.

Moreover—but she was made for me—moreover, she was by her income protected from all the possible annoyances of a want of money. Cupid, Cupid!

Pardon me, gentlemen, if my voice trembles as I think of those days of high hopes and candor. You would do as much in my place."

"Tremble, Plumachard, tremble," cried the chorus.

"Thanks, gentlemen, for your good word; it encourages me to proceed.

I pass over the preliminary details—all sieges resemble each other.

At the end of a month Adelaide had consented to receive my addresses.

It was a great step. I resolved to employ the most heroic declarations.

'Adelaide!—'

'Oh! it's no use jabbing,' interrupted she at my first word; 'at every movement you make one would swear it was my poor defunct.'

The raising up of the venerable shade of a deceased husband in this manner, produced on me the effect of a douche of cold water. With much difficulty I regained my composure, and continued:

'Adelaide, I love you!'

'Truly?'

'You cannot doubt it?'

'It's because, my love, I have been so cruelly bereaved. If you only knew how Charles adored me!'

Charles! It was he—the aforesaid. I dissimulated a smile.

'Adelaide! To life; to death!'

'There, love, when you speak so, I seem to hear him, only his voice was sweeter than yours. You have blue eyes; his were black, which I like much better.'

I knew not what face to make at this, so I went to the piano.

'What, are you a musician? Charles also was one. He played the ophicleide—such a hackneyed instrument as this of yours. If you had only heard him of an evening playing 'Charming Gabrielle' with variations. It was enough to make the pots and kettles cry.'

I boiled. I foamed internally. I took a resolution and my hat.

What! you wear a beaver? Charles never wore one himself. He said it wasn't genteel, and he was right about it.'

I rushed out full of fury, but the next day returned, impelled by my foolish passion.

Well, gentlemen, I have never cultivated the acquaintance of any widow since that unlucky essay, and I swear to you that I would not wish for my most ferocious enemy the tortures that I endured. Every minute was a torment.

I arrived:

'You have a plaid waistcoat—Charles wore them so much.'

I offered her some flowers:

'A bouquet? But the smell always gives me a headache. Charles would have known better than that. No danger of his making such a mistake.'

I made her a present:

'Charles gave me one, just like this, only it was ornamented with pearls.'

I took her for a walk in the country.

'I came one summer to this very place with Charles; we were seated on this same bank. Poor dear! You remind me so much of him.'

I was the shadow, the memento, the double of another.

'Listen,' said I to her, one day, 'I wish at any price, to take you away from these reminiscences. They make me very unhappy. My office (I was in a government office then,) has given me eight days' leave of absence. Have you ever been in Germany?'

'No.'

'You are sure you never went there with him?'

'Never.'

'I am going to take you somewhere. I'll tell you where bye and bye.'

The following week we embarked for Baden. I was radiant. I had finally rid myself of those perpetual and horrible comparisons, those reminiscences of every instant.

But as we set foot on the threshold of the hotel I had chosen, Adelaide, who had appeared preoccupied for several minutes, suddenly exclaimed:

'Why, bless me! This is nice! Thank you, love. How kind of you to pay me this delicate attention!'

'What do you mean?'

Ah! now, pretend you don't understand me. This hotel is where I met Charles for the first time. Oh! I am so happy!'

'Abomination of abominations! I meant nothing of the sort, it's an abuse of confidence; you assured me you had never been in Baden.'

'You said nothing about Baden; it was Germany you were speaking about.'

Much of the past and very little of geography. With one bound I was at the railroad depot. Next day I was in Paris.

To be continued to-morrow.

DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILL, FOR FEMALES.

Infallible in correcting irregularities, and removing obstructions of the monthly periods. It is over forty years since these new yet well known pills were first brought to notice by Dr. Duponco, of Paris, during which time they have been extensively and successfully used by scores of the leading physicians, with unparalleled success. Ladies in poor health, either married or single, suffering from any of the Complaints peculiar to females, will find the Duponco Golden Pills invaluable, viz., General Debility, Headache, Faintness, Loss of Appetite, Mental Depression, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Loins, Bearing-down Pains, Palpitation of the Heart. Retained, Excessive, Irregular or Painful Menstruation, Rush of Blood to Head, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Fatigue on any slight exertion, and particularly that most annoying, weakening ailment, so common among Females, both married and single, the Leucorrhœa or Whites. Females in every period of life will find Duponco's Pills a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. They invigorate the debilitated and delicate, and by regulating and strengthening the system, prepare the youthful constitution for the duties of life, and when taken by those in middle life or old age they prove a perfect blessing. There is nothing in the pills that can do injury to life or health. Safe in their operation, perpetual in their happy influences upon the Nerves, the Mind and the entire organization.

S. D. HOWE, Proprietor, N. Y. ALVAH LITTLEFIELD, Boston, Agent, N. E. States.

THE ENGINEER.

Ah! who ever thinks of the bold engineer,
Who stands by his throttle of steel,
And spurs on his steed to its maddened career,
In its thundering and ponderous reel!
Like a soldier begrimmed in battle's dark strife,
And brave to the cannon's hot breath,
He, too, plunges on with his long train of life,
Unmindful of danger or death!
Thro' the daylight,
Into the night,
Dark, dark,
He knows no affright.
O'er ridges
And bridges,
Decayed or strong,
Like a mythic god he rushes along!
Who thinks of the bold engineer?

So true to his post, like a statue he stands,
With his eyes fixed fast on afar;
Our own precious lives he holds in his hands,
Our wealth we give to his care.
For good must he be, the bold engineer,
As he dashes from village to town,
And brings us all safe, 'midst a smile or a tear.
To the forms so dearly our own:
Onward he goes,
His whistle he blows—
Deep, deep,
Thro' high-drifted snows;
With crossings,
And tossings—
In heat and in rain,
O'er the glittering track he pulls the long train!
All hail to the bold engineer.

SPANISH ATROCITIES IN CUBA.—Gen. W. A. C. Ryan, lately commander-in-chief of the Cuban army, says all that the rebels need is arms. He gives the following sickening instance of Spanish atrocities: A short time ago three young soldiers of the Cuban army went out from camp on sick leave, and were captured by a Spanish raiding party, who proceeded in the roughest manner to castrate them, then gouged their eyes out, and finally gagged them in a manner too obscene for repetition, bound them hand and foot and left them to die. The family of the patriot General Manuel, consisting of fifteen unoffending women and children, were recently captured at Las Tunas. The older women and children were savagely butchered, their eyes gouged out, features disfigured and their limbs hacked from their bodies. Two beautiful and accomplished young ladies of the party were ravished by these fiends in uniform and then taken captive. In consequence of these and other outrages, General Ryan issued orders for retaliation, which, he says, were faithfully executed.

☞ The termination of the rebellion found the nation $3,300,000,000 in debt. Partly under the administration of President Johnson, but chiefly under that of Grant, $900,000,000 have been contributed to lessen that indebtedness. The government is administered with no niggardly economy, yet the surplus revenue is sufficient to reduce taxation $150,000,000 per annum. The ruling party is prudent and wise, and is rapidly lifting burdens from the people.

A YOUNG LADY with a very pretty foot but a rather large ankle, went into a San Francisco shoe store to be measured. The admiring clerk, who is of Gallic extraction, complimented her in the following queer way: "Mad-am, you have one bootiful foot, but ze leg commence too immediately!"

—A rural poet who wrote, in some tender lines addressed to his love, "we will hallow her grave with our tears," was surprised at a call from Henrietta's brother next morning, armed with a club, who extended a stirring invitation to him to come down and have his head broken, which he declined. The local paper had made the line read, "We will harrow her grass with our steers."

—Photographs of a beautiful young lady, daughter of Elliot Turner of Lee, Mass., have recently been sent to the police of various cities, with a request that she should be arrested, wherever found, and returned to her home. It appears that she left Lee early in the spring, having become infatuated with a member of Washburne's sensation troupe.

—Dr. Seavey, of Bangor, denies that any "animile" which inhabits jute, which is an East India grass, ever thrived on the brains of a lady in America. He says if any young lady has her head gnawed by an insect, it must have been one possessing an entirely different character from that which inhabits the jute.

—A Paris banker has received from a Berlin banker a remittance of £4000, and a letter thus worded:—"The other £4000 will be due next month; I shall bring it with our troops myself." He received as good as he sent in this reply: "I will endeavor to ameliorate your captivity by all the means in my power."

—It is estimated that kerosene causes twelve fatal accidents daily in the United States.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.
It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.
One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds, 2 coats: while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats.—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.
The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case; or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.
The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings one year ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,
Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them sound and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.
For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.
For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.
For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.
For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.
For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by purging.
As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.
An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no actual derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawjeiodiom

OLD FOLKS,
YOUNG FOLKS,
ALL FOLKS,
WHO ARE WEAK, whose appetite is poor, whose blood needs Iron, who are bilious, whose stomach and nerves need to be strengthened, will be benefitted by
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Liver is acted on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the vegetable tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the digestion of Iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.
MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel to act on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect medicine. It purifies the blood and imparts IRON to it. It acts on the Liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is the most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons who need blood in their veins, Iron and a strengthening medicine. 2meodawjy25

FRIDAY, AUGUST 26, 1870.

WAR NEWS.—The French loan has been eagerly taken; 620,000 francs being subscribed up to Tuesday night, 5000 persons waiting to subscribe when the day closed.

The wounded who return from the field receive an ovation at Paris and are treated with every attention.

It is reported that the Prussians frequently violate Belgian territory and that they have killed some of the Belgian soldiers on the frontier.

A Prussian spy, near Rheims, mistaking an officer for General McMahon, fired twice at him, missed his aim and dangerously wounded a soldier standing by the side of the officer. The spy was instantly secured.

In the battle of the 16th instant, Marshal Bazaine was wounded in the cheek, and General deCean in the leg.

A letter writer reports that the Russian government is seriously alarmed at the state of affairs in Poland. There is great agitation in favor of France, and numbers of Poles are leaving to offer their services in the French army. On the other hand, a movement is on foot in the Baltic provinces of the Russian Empire, in favor of annexation to the German Confederation, and is gaining ground. The Russian government is in the horns of a dilemma. It is believed that Russia in self-defence will be compelled to take part in the war.

A despatch from Rome announces that there is a general movement of Italian troops to the Pontifical frontier under General Cosenes. It is believed that Victor Emanuel is unable to control the feeling in Italy for the possession of Rome.

The French have burned the camp at Chalons.

In the Corps Legislatif M. Keratry's proposition to add members to the National Defence Committee was rejected by a vote of 206 to 41.

There are reports that the Crown Prince is marching on Paris and that the French won a battle at Metz, last Sunday.

☞ Harry Pearson, formerly of Selwyn's Theatre, Boston, has been sentenced to the House of Correction for 4 months for keeping a disorderly house. He appealed.

☞ Col. Wm. Schouler in an article in the Boston Journal, styles Whittier the greatest American poet, living or dead.

The population in every town in Carroll County is less than in 1860.

☞ The Catholic picnic, Thursday, was a big success.

☞ Immense fires are still raging in Canada.

CARBOLIC ACID.—Of the discoveries which science has given to the present age, no one article has so rapidly grown into favor as carbolic acid. Although as the active principle of coal tar it had been known for many years, it has been only recently separated and adapted to general use. Every farmer knows that coal tar preserves his posts from decay, his corn from worms, and his trees from insects; but its use is objectionable, because of its disagree stickiness and blackness. Now we have its active principle, its essence, without those disadvantages.

We know of no article which promises to be of so much value to the farmer as carbolic acid and its compounds. He may rid his plants, trees, and vines of bugs, insects and worms; he may cleanse his stables and at the same time add to his stock of manure; the stagnant water which breeds disease and insects, and keeps away visitors in Summer who fear malaria, may be neutralized; and he may rid his farm animals of vermin and many forms of disease. Science has in this article conferred a blessing upon both man and beast.—N. Y. Tribune.

CULTIVATION OF HIGH-BUSH BLUEBERRY.—Mr. Dill of Maine has specimens from his bushes that are fine. He says:—"They have proved the most prolific, best and cheapest of the small fruits with me. I have only a few bushes, and we have been picking from them as we wanted for three weeks, and they are plenty yet, as you see, only smaller. You can pick a quart in less time than five minutes."

—A Michigan boarding-house keeper calls up his servants of a morning with "Get up, you lazy jades, breakfast has got to be got, and somebody has got to get up and get it."

—The man who married three sisters in succession, excused himself for so doing on the ground that he got off with only one mother-in-law.

—A liberal translation of "Tempus Fugit" is, "few get time."

Correspondence of the Chronicle and Gazette.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.

A NIGHT IN THE HORSE-CARS.—In all New England, as near as I can ascertain, there is but one line of horse railroads over which the cars run all night, and that is the route of the Norfolk House cars, from the Highlands to the Tremont House. Making one round trip each hour, from midnight until 6 o'clock in the morning, the phases of life exhibited in these night cars are worthy of observation.

12 o'clock.—After this hour the number of females carried is very small until daylight. The dark clothing of men makes the car look darker still, the stale odor sent out from deep potations of liquor and the scent of cigars and pipes replace the delicate perfumes which exhale from airy muslins and rich silks when these latter materials enrobe the forms of female divinity. Mid-night starts the rear guard of prowlers homeward, the drinking saloons and like resorts are closed, and thus we have a miscellaneous aggregation of semi-drunken men, forward boys (who would be highly indignant at being classed as such), belated callers, and shopkeepers tired with a long day's work.

1 o'clock—does not vary much from the midnight car in its living freight:—the drunken ones may be a little drunker, the sleepy sleepier, the late later—but the only apparent change is their diminution in numbers.

2 o'clock—The streets are very still now, hardly a team is met or passed on the whole long route; the long rows of high buildings show only here and there a glimmer of light; the streets, which will so soon begin to pulse anew with the ebb and flow of traffic, are deserted of life but for the numerous cats who hold high revels in the darkness, coming from no one knows where, gliding steathily across the path of the gas-lights, and disappearing no one knows whither. Dogs are rarely seen upon the street at this hour. The car is stopped and a party of Germans enter, two of either sex, jabbering in a highly excited manner. They have been to a christening at a beer garden, a party of natives who had mingled among the crowd have created a brawl and totally destroyed the innocent pleasure of the exiles from Faderland. One of the number, a young girl, is very handsome, and your correspondent neglects his duty while they are in the car; but then German beauty is quick to fade, and he has seen the beautiful girl of 18 or 20 absorbed by the fat, slovenly, dragged-down woman of 23 or 25, too often, to make a raid on Prussia.

3 o'clock—is the high-tide of true night travel. The last of the loiterers and carousers are creeping homeward, the first of the early birds are starting for their places at the markets, &c. Extremes meet, and these classes blend harmoniously on the common ground of sleepiness. Once seated in the car, their eyes close, their heads droop, and in a moment the world and all its cares are hid by the curtain which Morpheus holds before their eyes. Now this is most provoking to the conductor, as he is not only obliged to wake them up to collect the fare, but from the difficulty of distinguishing such bent and slumbering specimens of humanity, he very often wakes the same one several times. Whoever has searched among the upturned faces of the dead upon a battlefield, will readily appreciate how hard this identification of strangers must be in their cramped and unnatural positions. In fact, like the dead referred to, they have a great similarity in appearance.

4 o'clock—By this time the paved streets are rumbling with the passage of heavy teams; the ice carts, milk wagons, great vans of slaughtered animals, bakers, carts, and all the various industries that go to feed a large population. Ere daylight fairly asserts its sway, the night and the things of night are no more; the 5 o'clock and 6 o'clock cars become prosaic, and your "interviewer" becomes sleepy.

Take it all in all, a ride at night in the horse cars is pleasant; there is a clear road and a good one; there is quiet, speed, and a grateful atmosphere; there is a sense of guardianship, as of a vidette over a sleeping civilization. M.

PICK UP THE WINDFALLS.—If fruit growers will but take the trouble to remove the windfalls from beneath the trees, and feed them to the swine, a very great check may be placed upon the increase of that great pest to fruit growers, the codling moth. An examination of this fruit will discover in each apple a maggot or white worm, which is the larva of this moth. The egg had been deposited in the fruit before it had fallen from the tree. If a little effort is taken, this nuisance may be abated, and the numbers of the parent insect may also be destroyed, by lighting fires in the orchard in the Summer nights; the moths attracted by the light, fall into the flames and are at once killed.—Mass. Ploughman.

New Publications Received.

The War Between the States, by Alexander H. Stephens. National Publishing Co. This work, the second volume of which has now appeared, consists of the author's views on the late rebellion, its causes, character, conduct, and results, as presented by him in a series of colloquies with his friends and neighbors at "Liberty Hall," his home in Crawfordville, Ga. Mr. Stephens was one of the ablest men in the so-called Confederacy, of which he was the Vice-President, and he was also the last of the Southern leaders to join it. While never doubting the right of secession, he was convinced of its impolicy, and argued against it until it became inevitable.

Thus in the early stages of the struggle he was less an actor than a spectator, and was able to observe and consider the events of the times more calmly and candidly than an active partisan. Later in the contest, his official position gave him an intimate knowledge of the manner in which the war was conducted on the part of the rebel government. These facts render his work a valuable history of the war from a Southern stand-point. The opinions it advances will not, of course, be approved by loyal readers; but they are presented with a clearness and force that command attention, and with evident sincerity.

One of the most interesting parts of Mr. Stephens' second volume is the account it gives of the peace negotiations in which he bore so prominent a part. Previous to the famous conference at Hampton Roads, he spent two days at the headquarters of Gen. Grant, whom he here met for the first time. He was struck at once by the simplicity of the General's manners, the point and terseness of his conversation, and the quickness of his perception.

"The more I became acquainted with him," says Mr. Stephens, "the more I became thoroughly impressed with the very extraordinary combination of rare elements of character which he exhibited." He states that the result of this first acquaintance was the conviction upon his mind that, taken all in all, Gen. Grant was one of the most remarkable men he had ever met with, and that his career in life was hardly entered upon.

This volume is illustrated by nine portraits of men prominent in the rebellion, including Lincoln, Grant, Douglas, Davis, Lee and Mr. Stephens himself. It is sold by subscription only, and agents are wanted in every county.

To the above very fair and truthful notice, which we copy from the Manchester Mirror, we will only add that the title of the book is a misnomer, as the fight was merely the quelling of a rebellion against the Government, and in no sense a war between the States at all. But Mr. Stevens, who is a pedantic petifogger, and rather a prosy writer, is utterly unable to grasp the true idea of progress in this country and the world. He is but a relic of a by-gone age, and an effete civilization, or rather semi-barbarism. He has had his day. Poor old hoss—let him die.

Many suffer rather than take nauseous medicines. All who suffer from coughs, colds, irritation of the bronchial tubes or tendency to consumption, will find in Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry a remedy as agreeable to the palate as effectual in removing disease. The Balsam is a pleasant remedy; it is a safe remedy; it is a powerful remedy; it is a speedy remedy; it is a remedy that cures.

ANOTHER MYSTERY SOLVED.—Chemists being unable to discover the ingredients in fragrant SOZODONT, which removes all stains from the teeth and imparts such a peculiar roiseess to the gums, the public are hereby informed that it is a preparation from the Bark of the QUILLAYA SAPONARIA or Soap Tree of Chili, imported for the first time into this country for this special purpose. Such is the purifying and innocuous effect of this rare botanical agent, that it removes discolorations from the most fragile textile fabrics, without injuring a single thread.

Save and mend the pieces, use "SPALDING'S GLUE."

SPECIAL NOTICES.

False Pretences.

The vast and continually increasing sales of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS have provoked the envy of a certain class of dealers in various parts of the country, who are trying to substitute their utterly worthless local nostrums for the most popular proprietary medicine in the world. These impostors hope by their false statements to obtain from the millions who patronize the great American Tonic, a sufficient number of customers to make their speculations upon the health of their neighbors profitable. But the demand for Hostetter's Bitters is now so large and urgent as to tax to their fullest extent the facilities for its manufacture, these petty attempts to swing in the merest trash by false representations, are of little consequence to its proprietors.

They are, however, a serious evil to the victimized. If, for example, at this warm season, when a real invigorant is greatly needed, the sufferer from general debility, indigestion, biliousness or nervous weakness, is coaxed into using a wishy-washy compound without any medicinal virtue, instead of the sovereign specific in which the rarest tonic and alterative vegetable elements are scientifically combined, it is obvious that he will rue the day when he allowed himself to be thus deluded. It is in the interest of parties who have been or may be influenced by the persuasion of plausible charlatans, that this article is published. With the light of twenty years experience to guide him, why should the invalid take a leap in the dark? au20dawlw

THE BASE BALL MATCH at the Plains on Thursday, between the Granite State club and the United Foul Batters & Heavy Muffers, resulted in a glorious victory for the latter club, who forced their antagonists to score 76 runs to the F. B. & H. M's 10. The day was all that could be desired, and the game was productive of much sport, of course. The F. B. & H. M. club, as they dashed gallantly and triumphantly down Powder House Hill in a cloud of dust and a job wagon, on their way home, were vociferously cheered by crowds of admiring little dirty-faced boys, who vented their wild enthusiasm in such cries as "Bah—Boo-o-o," "Muffers," "Duffers," "Look at 'em," "Get out," etc., etc.; and some of them were so carried away that they put their thumbs to their noses, and wiggled their fingers, in imitation of the manner in which the Muffers didn't catch the ball. It was a perfect ovation. By the score below it will be seen that the Granite States stood no chance at all, they being able to crowd only 10 runs upon the united eighteen, by desperate exertion; and if the Muffers had only muffed the least bit more, they wouldn't have had any runs at all down against them. The Granite States played splendidly; and Dow's swift balls—and mighty swift they were—caused the eighteen to labor mightily with their bats, which whistled through the air as the heavy weights whacked at the ball the moment it was out of their reach. Cunningham, the G. S. catcher, (he's just about the size of the base ball used,) played very finely indeed, and put out men five times as big as himself. We shall not particularize any of the eighteen, as they already have won glory enough. It is singular that the score of each Muffin club should stand 5 runs and 18 outs. Here's the score:—

IN MEMORIAM FARRAGUT.

Tenderly lay him down to rest;
Muffled the drum and silent the tread;
Scatter sweet flowerets o'er his breast,
Lovingly bear the nation's dead.
Droop the proud banner he bravely defended,
Boom the sad gun for the noble life ended.

Sweep on, O sea, through sun and storm,
Changing forever, yet still the same;
Never again shalt thou bear his form
On through the conflict, to well earned fame.
Bright silken pennants shall float o'er the main,
His the wild wind shall kiss never again.

Say not, O, mourner, his life is fled,
His day hath ended, he is no more;
"Nay," saith the Master, he is not dead,
He sleepeth, he is but gone before.
Gone to the home which he longed for above,
Tasting the bliss of ineffable love.

His was a life so brave and true,
Generous alike to friend and foe,
Ever alert some good to do,
One whom to love, was only to know.
Well may Columbia be proud of her son,
Proud of the triumphs his valor hath won.

All honor to Farragut's noble name,
Loved by the lowly, revered by all.
In battle or peace he was still the same,
Ever most true to his country's call.
And while our dear banner floats o'er the sea,
The name of our hero remembered shall be.

On earth we have lost a gem diluvial,
But Heaven has gained one angel more;
E'en while his funeral wreaths we twine,
He in the presence of God doth soar;
Heareth the voice of his faithful Lord,
"Enter my rest, thou hast kept my word."

Some person or persons unknown committed a most outrageous act Monday night, on the fruit and ornamental trees about the residence of George E. Jenks, Esq., of Concord. Several trees were girdled and others broken down or damaged. If it is any excuse for such a heathenish act, it is to be hoped that somebody's sense of the eternal fitness of things was beclouded by that source of half the world's deviltry, rum.

Col. Asa P. Cate of Northfield is said by the Laconia Democrat to have as fine a lot of vines as grows in the State, embracing Muscadines, Delawares, Isabellas, Ionas, Concords and other standard varieties, all of which hang full. They are cultivated in open air, and one vine occupies a spot thirty feet in diameter, having on it at least 1200 bunches. The Democrat names Messrs. S. W. Sanders, D. S. Prescott, H. F. French and T. J. Whipple as doing considerable business in grape culture at Laconia.

The new Congregational Church at Farmington, now nearly completed, is said to be one of the most sightly and tasteful edifices of its kind in the State. It has a spire a hundred and fifty feet high, a clock with four dials and a two thousand pound bell to call worshippers together. The interior is handsomely frescoed and a new organ is being put in.

In Fitzwilliam, on a recent dark night, Mr. Dodge drove off an unguarded bridge, killing his horse, and injuring his wife, who was with him. The Selectmen have paid him damages, without the invention of law.

The Massasoit Shooting Club of Keene are to have a grand competitive hunt, about the middle of September, the game to be shot with a pistol. It is to last twenty-four hours, and the side which brings in the least game will pay the supper.

It is said that B. F. Thorndike proposes to start a paper in Newmarket, to be called "The Newmarket Weekly Advertiser," provided he gets five hundred subscribers.

Keene has voted the sum of $5000 for a soldiers' monument.

The average salary of the clergymen in the State is $350.

It is unusually sickly at Great Falls at the present time.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crop, which, it is estimated will double the present incomes of the road.
The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.
These bonds have 30 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. —JOHN TAGHART."

RICHARDSON'S
LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, is light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocket-handkerchief to a
LARGE BED SPREAD,
without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.
If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.
RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Operates on a straightened rod, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.
Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.
The sale of the LITTLE WASHER is unprecedented, not only in Portsmouth but everywhere else where it has been introduced. All who desire one of these valuable Little Machines will do well to apply early, as the demand is greater than the supply. J. J. HATLINGER, Agent.

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for years to come by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

THE THREE LOVES OF PLUMACHARD.

From the French of Pierre Vernon.

I have never seen her since. Thus ended my love adventure No. 1. Oh these widows, these widows!"

A burst of Homeric laughter greeted this peroration. Plumachard, who had gradually hunched himself, wiped his forehead with a feverish hand. "A glass of punch to the hero of widows," said the assembly. "Plumachard, to thy friend Charles."

"Gentlemen, none of your jokes, or I shall cut short the story. Manage my forces carefully if you want me to continue."

"If we want it! You raise yourself to the height of Monte Cristo by the velvet softness of your recital."

And Plumachard, flattered in spite of himself, continued in these words:

II.—MELODRAMA.

"I had enough of widows, but this did not cure me of my taste for love affairs.

In the same house in which I roomed lived a young lady, whether married or single, I knew not.

She always went out and returned alone. Where did she stay all day? I resolved to enquire of the guardian of our community.

Oh Phœnix Phœnixes! She was an orphan. No troublesome family, no intruding bonds. Free! Free!

That is to say—hear me!

She enjoyed a perfect freedom with the acquiescence of her relations, but as it was necessary to provide for the pitiless needs of life, she filled the office of bar-maid in a restaurant, of which the address was given me at the same time with this precious information.

I didn't run, I flew there. I was not deceived. There she was, fresh, ingenious, charming.

I gazed at her with an ardor that lost all feeling of reality. I was recalled to myself by the voice of the waiter asking me what he should serve me with.

'Anything! Some beer.'

I consumed seven young ducks this first day. It was only the prelude.

I risked a word or two, she smiled. She smiled! You don't comprehend, you others, how much sweetness that word contained. An ambrosial in six letters.*

From the moment she smiled, must I not eat? Wasn't it all the more necessary to eat, now that she smiled? For it served to disarm the vigilance of the proprietor. If he had detected our glances, he would have been harsh, discharged her, perhaps.

The bare thought of this made me shudder.

Discharged! Never! I will never be the cause of a moment's grief to thee. I will dissimulate! I will conceal my love! It will cost me nothing.

This last part of my soliloquy was a vain metaphor. Everything costs in a restaurant.

I commenced with beer, as I told you before, but couldn't forever devote myself to this spiritless northern beverage, which consorted poorly with the fiery southern passions which raged in my bosom.

I went up the whole scale, from coffee to grog, from grog to absinthe, from punch to bitters, from bitters to absinthe again.

At first I drank from necessity; the necessity became a taste. I saturated myself with raw spirit.

If this excess had only ruined my health, I should have been fortunate; but I soon found the bottom of my meagre purse, and was obliged to solicit credit, to which she smoothed the way. Dear angel! it was so that I might see her oftener.

Then when one spends his whole day in a restaurant, one must be doing something. If I had followed my heart's desire, I should have done nothing but look at Arice. Prudence commanded otherwise.

I played.

Cards, checkers, dominoes, billiards! Everything! I wished to regain my losings; I played more; I lost all.

She, serene and gracious behind her counter, was unconscious of the storms that muttered at her feet. Meanwhile, still believing in her, a great catastrophe burst upon me.

I have confided to you my pecuniary resources—at that time, simply a clerkship of $300 per annum. This office I had more than deserted since the dawning of my passion, but nevertheless had punctually presented myself on payday.

One day I arrived at exactly 10 A. M., to get my money and sign the necessary receipt.

'My poor Mr. Plumachard, this is the last day I shall have the pleasure of paying you, said the cashier.

'Why! How is that?'

'You haven't heard it, then! The director has decided to discharge you on account of negligence and general misconduct. You never come to the office, and you spend all your time in the restaurants.'

I can only describe the sensation produced on me by these words, by comparing it to the fall of a heavy housetile on the back of my neck.

One consolation only kept me from utter despair. What consolation was that, if it was not herself.

I went to the cafe and admired her all day. The counter was wide, the cafe also, but her voice could be heard in most any part of it.

She was talking with the proprietor, who said to her:

'Don't smile quite so much at little Plumachard. His expenses have only been $6 this month. Why, the devil fly away with me, if I would give more than five cents on the dollar for his notes.'

I breathed a profound sigh and went out into the street.

I had lost my situation; I had drunk myself into a dyspepsia, which lasted six months. My little property was seized and sold for debt.

Oh, these orphans! these orphans!"

The audience, at this new conclusion laughed louder than ever. In proportion as his history advanced, Plumachard became truly epic. After drinking consecutively two glasses of punch to strengthen his enfeebled voice, and taking a glance of relish at the curiosity that greeted him from all sides, he commenced the third part of his adventures.

III—TRAGEDY.

"Until now, gentlemen, my history has confined itself to the domain of comedy and melodrama. Who would have dreamed of the scene which—but it's useless to forestall my story with untimely remarks.

Listen and appreciate:

The independent widow and free damsel had brought me such misfortunes that it took two years to heal my wounds. After this lapse, a little spot of blue sky appeared in my horizon. I was appointed broker for the Salamander Insurance Company. Having no more anxiety for daily bread my sentimental aspirations returned with redoubled violence.

After these unfortunate mischances, I had moved as far as possible from places that continually reminded me of the days gone by.

In my new quarter I had chosen a barber. The barber had a wife.

Brunette, vivacious, the most adorable teeth in the world, a waist that four fingers would go round — I leave to your imagination the rest of the description, complete it with the most endearing charms of the beauty that enslaves you.

At the first snip of the scissors I fell desperately in love, and while the husband strewed the floor with waving ringlets of my hair, I contemplated her in the glass.

What intoxication!

Every movement seemed to be filled with peerless grace.

Once her eye met mine; I felt the shock in the pit of my stomach.

I was immovable, petrified, fascinated.

'Is it short enough?'

'Short enough? What?'

'The cut of the hair.'

I had totally forgotten where I was. This question recalled me to myself. If I answered yes, it would be finished and the vision with it.

'No,' said I.

The barber returned to his cutting, I to my contemplation.

'Is it short enough?' repeated he.

'No.'

My mute admiration of the divinity in the glass recommenced.

'Isn't it short enough yet?'

'No.'

The fifth time the barber stopped and said:

'But, sapristi! sir, you are hard to please; what more no you want?'

'Hard to please!' said I with a start.

It was true enough. In my exclusive attention I had not noticed the scissors, which, clipping relentlessly on, had reduced me to a scare-crow. I was frightful. I didn't know myself.

But had I not adored her at my leisure? Was I not charmed by an adorable creature?

I was completely smitten.

To be continued to-morrow.

A SUMMER DAY.

Sunshine over the meadow lands,
Kissing the crimson clover,
And sunshine haunting the lily cups
That the yellow bees hung over.
And sunshine over the hazy hills,
And over the dimpling river,
And I wished that the sun and the summer day
Mightshine and last forever.

We walked down by the meadow path,
The broad highway forsaking.
For the quiet of that lovely spot
Seemed better for our love making.
And I was silent and she was shy,
As we walked down through the clover,
But we thought it the sweetest summer day
That ever the sun shone over.

We heard the birds in the waving grass,
As they twittered to each other
About the nests they had hidden away—
And the coo of each glad bird-mother.
And we thought, as we walked that summer day,
Through the clover blooms together,
That at last the world was in perfect tune,
In the glad, bright summer weather.

I cannot tell what I said to her,
As we walked knee-deep in clover;
But I know that the robins merrily sang
Their sweetest of sweet songs over.
And down in my heart love's own bird sang
A song that was much sweeter,
And its echo joined with the world's sweet hymn,
And made the day completer.

And when we came up the meadow path,
Our hearts sang over and over;
"O, sweet, glad day for blossom and bird,
And for every blythe young lover!"
And yet I know not the words she said,
Or whether she spoke at all;
But of all sweet days, that summer day
I count as the best of all.

At the funeral of Miss S. A White Mountain letter-writer has discovered that the waiter girls at the Profile House are daughters of well-to do-farmers, of good families as any in the State. They are mostly teachers, who during vacation become waitresses for variety, and to see a little life. They are all pretty and bright, and one of them is said to have outshone, in good looks, any of the fashionable sojourners there this season. This is understood to be profitable to the landlord, because the gentlemen occupy their time at table observing her movements, instead of making way with the viands.

SULPHUR FOR PIGS.—Pigs confined in close pens, (and we think they behave best there), often are uneasy for something they need and cannot get. Sulphur and salt are not always ingredients for their food but should be supplied them in small quantities occasionally. Clover, weeds and grass are very useful to all pigs in close confinement. Charcoal, a handful of wood ashes, or old rotten wood is also acceptable when shut up.

H. T. HELMBOLD'S
CONCENTRATED
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
THE GREAT DIURETIC.

The proprietor trusts that his Remedies, from the fact of their being advertised, may not be classed as Patent Medicines.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU is a pharmaceutical preparation. The proper name is given, and it is the most active which can be made. It is endorsed as a cure by all medical works for such diseases as recommended by the proprietor. It is pleasant in its taste and odor, free from all injurious properties, and is taken by adults and children. It is tonic, diuretic, blood-purifying, and invigorating. Enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes will find it far more strengthening than any of the preparations of bark or iron.

See medical properties contained in Dispensatory of the United States, of which the following is a correct copy:—

BUCHU.—Its odor is strong, diffusive, and somewhat aromatic; its taste is bitterish, and analogous to that of mint. It is given chiefly in complaints of the urinary organs, such as gravel, chronic catarrh of the bladder, morbid irritation or the prostate gland, and retention or the incontinence of urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. It has also been recommended in dyspepsia, chronic rheumatism, cutaneous affections, and dropsy.

Cure of Gravel of Five Years Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

SAVANNAH, TENN., May 14, 1869.

Dr. H. T. Helmbold.

DEAR SIR: We introduced your "Fluid Extract Buchu" in this county about eight months ago, and are happy to state that it is meeting with universal favor. We wish to inform you of one instance (among many) where your "Buchu" has worked wonders. A man in our county, named J. B. Ezell, had been suffering about five years with gravel.

About six weeks ago he bought of us one bottle of your "Buchu" and before he was through with one bottle he passed a gravel that weighed eight grains, which we may have on exhibition in our drug store. He says that he will never be without the "Buchu" in his house again. Your preparations are gaining favor every day.

Very respectfully yours, &c.,
ECCLES & HINKLE, Druggists.

Cure of Bladder and Kidney Affection of long Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

WESTPORT, CONN., Sept. 9, 1869.

H. T. Helmbold, Esq.

DEAR SIR: I commenced taking your "Extract of Buchu" about two weeks since for an affection of the bladder and kidneys. I have suffered by spells very much for a few days past. But yesterday relief came through the effect of your "Buchu." A stone passed from my bladder about the size of a large pea, and I now feel perfectly well and entirely free from the pain that I have suffered with so long. I attribute my cure to your medicine entirely, and would recommend all persons similarly affected to try it. I have great faith in its curative powers.

Yours truly, THOMAS J. BENNETT.

Cure of Kidney and Bladder Affection of a Patient Seventy-eight years of Age. Thanks to Dr. Helmbold.

GIRARD, PA., March 31, 1869.

Editor Cosmopolite: I desire, as an unsolicited tribute to the merits of Helmbold's Buchu, and for the benefit of those simil ly afflicted as my self, to say that after consulting many eminent physicians, and trying nearly all the best advertised Remedies, in the vain hope of finding relief from a great kidney and bladder disease, from which I have suffered excessively for many years, good fortune finally suggested to me Helmbold's Buchu, which I commenced using with little faith, and no apparent beneficial results for about a month.

At the expiration of that time, however, I though I commenced to experience slight relief, which encouraged me to persevere in its use, and now, at the age of four months, although I am an infirm old man, nearly 78 years of age, and consequently medicines cannot be expected to favorably affect me as their otherwise would, I have found such unspeakable relief and permanent benefit from Mr. Helmbold's valuable discovery, that I feel I ought to publicly record the fact as an acknowledgment to him, and a valuable suggestion to the public. Yours respectfully,

D. M. LAREN.

DR. J. KEYSER

is a physician of over thirty years' experience, and a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College, and of the University of Medicine and Surgery of Philadelphia. Hear him:

Mr. H. T. Helmbold.

DEAR SIR: In regard to the question asked me as to my opinion about Buchu, I would say that I have used and sold the article in various forms for the past thirty years I do not think there is any medicine compounded of which I have such knowledge to be used, in the various diseases where such medicate agent would be indicated. You are aware, as well as myself, that it has been extensively employed in the various diseases of the bladder and kidneys, and the reputation it has acquired, in my judgment, is warranted by the facts.

I have seen and used, as before stated, every form of Buchu—the powdered leaves—tincture, fluid extracts—and I am not cognizant of any preparation of that plant at all equal to yours. Twelve years' experience ought, I think, to give me the right to judge of its merits; and, without prejudice or partiality, I give yours precedence over all others.

I value your Buchu for its effect on patients. I have cured with it, and seen cured with it, more diseases of the bladder and kidneys than I have ever seen cured with any other Buchu or any other proprietary compound of whatever name.

Respectfully yours, &c.,
GEO. H. KEYSER, M. D.,
140 Wood Street, Pittsburgh, Penn.
August 11, 1865.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Jan. 28, 1868.

Mr. H. T. Helmbold,

DEAR SIR: Your communication requesting our terms for advertising was duly received, but from a prejudice I had formed against advertising "cures for secret diseases," it was left unanswered. During an accidental conversation in a drug store the other evening, my mind was changed on the character of your Buchu. It was then highly commended for other diseases by two physicians present. Proceed, please find our rates o advertising. Yours, TUB. H. STENHOUSE,
Ed'r and Prop'r of Telegraph.

TESTIMONIALS.

A Permanent Cure of Gravel of twelve Years' Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.

BURNSIDE, CONN., Dec. 15, 1869.

Dr. Helmbold.

DEAR SIR: It is with much pleasure that I write you upon facts respecting myself. I do not know hardly how to express myself. I have been for the last ten or twelve years the greatest sufferer man could be and live; but more second time than others. The complaint was the "Kidneys" and "bladder." I have been sometimes from twelve to fourteen hours, and wanted to make water every minute, but could not. Have consulted doctors, both in Massachusetts and this State, and taken pills, I may say by the quart, and buyed much money, but found no relief from any, and got worse the last six months. I was so that I could scarcely get about, I could not rest night or day.

It would soon have been "all up" with me if I had not seen your advertisement headed "Kidneys." I read it through and though I would try it. I purchased a bottle, but, mind you, had not much faith in it. Why should I? I had been trying so many things that cost me much? Well, I began taking it, and before I had taken the first bottle I felt bad; but I finished it and got another. By the time I took half of the second I still got worse (apparently.) When I walked it seemed as if my right kidney was falling from its place, and I felt really bad. I felt so, before I had finished the second, that I had made up mind it was of no use trying any more—but all this time the "Buchu" was doing its work, but I did not know it, so I gave it up and went to Hartford on Saturday to one of the best doctors in the city. He told it was the neck of the bladder, and I should have to undergo an operation. He gave me medicine, and I went home quite downhearted.

On Sunday I was unable to go to church. I had not taken any of his medicine, but on my return continued taking the "Buchu," and in the afternoon I had a desire to make water, but could not. About one hour after this I tried again, with the same result; but the next time I took the vessel it was the same as turning a faucet and stopping it off again. It was so for three times, and the third time there was something came through the passage and struck against the side of the vessel. I examined it, and it is the ugliest stone or gravel you ever saw, covered over with little pieces which collected together. It looks the color of a most rusty nail, and is hard as flint. So you see the "Buchu" was doing its work, although I was feeling so badly. I procured another bottle, thinking there might be some more behind; but that has passed, which is eight weeks ago last Sunday. I have been as well as ever I was in my life. I have the stone securely wrapped, and those who have seen it in this place are surprised.

I cannot tell you all, but this is a true story of my case, and you are welcome to make such use of my name as you wish to promote. I am pretty well known in Berkshire; also in Connecticut. The advertisement saved me. Why not publish more? If any one wishes to see this wonder, they can do so. I could write all day, but I think I have said enough this time. So I remain your ever well-wisher, EDWARD L. HOWARD,

N. Y. S. VOL. INSTITUTE,
Corner of 5th ave. and Washington Park.
(Home and School for the Sons of Deceased Soldiers.)

Dr H. T. Helmbold,

Two bottles and one of the package of your valuable Buchu presented to the Institute have been used by the children, and with perfect success. In the case of our little Lieutenant, A. J., his pride is no longer mortified, and he is free from the daily morning anathemas of the chamber-maid who has charge of his bedding.

I feel that a knowledge of the result of our use of your Buchu with the children under our charge may save many a superintendent and Matron of Boarding Schools and Asylums a great amount of annoyance; and many a poor child suffering more from Worcester's Dictionary than from disparest punishment, that is (not knowing it was a weakness instead of a bad habit) most unjustly inflicted upon them. Thanking you on behalf of the children, and hoping others may be alike benefitted, I am respectfully yours,

COL. YOUNG, General Sup't and Director.

A Case of Twenty Years Standing.

PHILADELPHIA, PENN., June 25, 1867.

H. T. Helmbold, Druggist.

DEAR SIR: I have been a sufferer for upwards of twenty years with gravel, bladder, and kidney affections, during which time I have used various medicinal preparations, and been under the treatment of the most eminent physicians, experiencing but little relief.

Having seen your preparations extensively advertised, I consulted my family physician in regard to using your Extract Buchu.

I did this because I had used all kinds of advertised Remedies and had found them worthless, and some quite injurious; in fact, I despaired of ever getting well or even relief from so many Remedies heralded unless I knew of the ingredients. I was this that prompted me to use your Remedy. As you advertised that it was composed of Buchu, cubebs, and juniper berries, it occurred to me and my physician as an excellent combination; with his advice, I procured it at one of the article, and consulting again with the Druggist, I concluded to try it. I commenced to use it about one month ago, at which time I was confined to my room.

From the first bottle I was astonished and gratified at the beneficial effect, and after using it three weeks was able to walk out. I felt much like writing to you a full statement of my case at the time, but thought my improvement might only be temporary, but now feel confident it will do better, and see if it would effect a perfect cure, knowing that it would be of greater value to you and more satisfactory to me.

I am now able to report that a cure is effected after using the remedy for five months. I have not used none for over three months, and feel as well in all respects as I ever did.

Your Buchu being devoid of any unpleasant taste and odor, a nice tonic and invigorator of the system, I do not mean to be without it whenever occasion may require its use in such affections.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 27, 1870.

WAR NEWS. — Prince Felix Salm Salm, who served in the Union army during the war of the rebellion, was killed in the battle of Gravellotte. He was an officer of the Prussian Guards.

Epernay, which is to the westward of Chalons, has been summarily abandoned by the French troops, and the trains from Paris now stop about half way to Chalons. These things indicate the steady advance of the Prussians toward Paris. The Berlin dispatches amount to the same thing when they say that King William has moved his headquarters to Bar-le-Duc, implying that the advance corps of the Crown Prince has gone still farther on. The officers at the French War Department are very silent. The Prussians are slowly but surely marching on Paris, and a crisis is near. Italy refuses the request of France for aid—so says Berlin dispatches.

The reports are as contradictory as ever, and all that can be positively asserted is that there is an awful liar somewhere at the other end of the Atlantic cables.

TRADE ASSOCIATION RIOT AT FALL RIVER, MASS.—Some eight or ten thousand operatives in the Fall River mills have been on a strike since July 21st, and the mills have been closed in consequence. On Monday one mill started up, with one spinner! There was some threatening and turbulence in consequence, that day; but other mills commenced running on Tuesday.

Tuesday evening, as the operatives were leaving the mills, they were assailed by mobs of the strikers, who had been waiting around the mills for that purpose, and one of them badly hurt. The workers were followed to their homes, jeered, hooted and threatened. A few police were present, but they were not able to do much in defence of the laborers.

There was an increase in the number on Wednesday, and at night the demonstrations assumed a dangerous aspect. A crowd of many hundreds assembled in front of one mill to repeat their insults to those who came forth. The police force, numbering only twenty-five men, entirely unused to dealing with such turbulence, had no effect whatever in repressing it. One of the mill owners became somewhat excited at the actions of the crowd as the time for stopping work approached, and sounded a fire alarm from the nearest alarm, in order to bring the engines to throw water upon the people and drive them away from the gates. This had the effect of course, to greatly increase the size of the crowd, and although the engines were worked, the crowd was only driven back and not dispersed. Many who came only from curiosity were drenched, and the temper of the strikers was not improved by the wetting. The jeers of the crowd were directed principally against the working spinners, and one man who interfered with them was arrested. As the police were taking him to the station, one of them was hit with a stone in the head and fainted. The crowd then rushed upon the officers and secured the prisoner.

Thursday morning the mayor telegraphed for State constables and troops. A hundred special policemen were also called for, and some twenty-five were armed and sent out. The mob assembled in the evening, as on the previous days, and hooted and yelled when the operatives came out; but the revolvers of the police, and the knowledge that troops were under arms and close at hand, restrained any positive violence. Three rioters were arrested. The authorities announce a determination to protect the workers, who are guarded in their houses at night; they are not molested when proceeding to work in the morning. It is said that the women have been the largest and most demonstrative part of the mobs, and have made a good share of the fuss from the beginning.

"THE AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKER."—The Sabbath School is a great enterprise. Every denomination has some appreciation of its importance, and most rejoice in all efforts to make it more interesting and efficient.

"The American Sunday School Worker" has been received for August, being No. 3 of the series. It is published monthly in neat magazine form by J. W. McIntire, in St. Louis.

Among the articles in this number we notice a spirited one, "Enthusiasm in Teaching." Another article, many would do well to read, is on "Dead Teachers." It has good lessons for each Sabbath in the month. We think parents, teachers and the friends of Sabbath Schools in general, would be benefited by this work. Price $1.50 per year.

THE MASSACHUSETTS EDITORS' EXCURSION.—Sept. 20th has been selected as the day upon which the Massachusetts Editors' and Publishers' Association will accept the very kind invitation of Dr. J. R. Nichols, editor of The Journal of Chemistry, to visit his delightful "Lakeside Farm," on Lake Kenosha, Haverhill, and settle that important question whether two hundred editors, with their wives, can eat as many grapes as one hundred doctors? We do not know precisely what principle in science the Doctor wishes to prove or to demonstrate by this trial, but we are sure that our brethen of the quill are in honor bound to see that it is fairly tested, and that the brotherhood suffers no defeat in this contest.

The programme for the excursion promises a most delightful time. It is to leave Boston by train at 8 o'clock and arrive at Haverhill at 9.15. There take the beautiful little steamer and have a sail down the charming Merrimack as far as Amesbury, and perhaps farther. This will occupy two hours or more, when the party will return to Haverhill and take carriages to Lakeside Farm, on the shore of the lake—one of the most charming spots in Massachtsetts. Here dinner will be provided upon the lawn, and it is quite possible that there may be some speaking, &c. After dinner the ladies and gentlemen can amuse themselves as they please—in rowing or sailing on the lake, or in rambling round the lakes and grounds.

Dr. Nichols is one of the ablest of editors, as he is also one of the most skillful of chemists; and he is doing a great deal of good, by his practical experiments in farming, and in all departments life. All this he does con amore, and many a humbug has he unearthed and exposed, for the benefit of the people.

☞ Mr. Jacob P. Pierce, a prominent and wealthy merchant of Boston, was thrown from his carriage and killed, in that city, Wednesday evening. The horses were frightened by the discharge of a pistol, by some unknown person near them. A portion of the family of deceased were at the Shoals. He was a native of Newburyport.

☞ The General Association (Congregational) of New Hampshire, met in Milford this week. There are 192 churches, 200 ministers, and 19,000 members. Rev. G. M. Adams of this city, preached from Luke 15:1, relative to the winning character of Christ, and of the duty of more attention to the neglected classes of the community.

☞ The meeting of the Maine Historical Society, at York and Kittery next week, will be an occasion of much interest to many, and will call together a large number of noted personages The Society will breakfast at the Rockingham House in this city on Thursday morning.

☞ Who can wonder that Irishmen side with France in this war, when it is remembered that France is the hereditary enemy of England, and that McMahon, the French General, is the son of an Irishman, and the Empress Eugenie is the grand-daughter of an Irishman?

☞ The enterprise and liberality of the New York Herald, is noted the world over, as something astonishing in the field of journalism. An advertisement in another column sets forth some of the resources of that paper for war news.

NAVAL. — Vice-Admiral Porter has been appointed Admiral, to fill the vacancy made by the death of Admiral Farragut; Rear Admiral L. M. Goldsborough is to be Vice Admiral and Commodore Thornton A. Jenkins is to be Rear Admiral.

☞ Gen. Humphreys and Capt. Loring of the U. S. Engineers, went down the harbor of Newburyport, the 23d, to prepare for removing the wrecks obstructing navigation at the mouth of the Merrimack river.

EARLY AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS.—The oldest newspaper in the United States is the New Hampshire Gazette, published at Portsmouth. It began existence in August, 1756, and was established by Daniel Fowle of Boston. It is a weekly. The next is the Newport Mercury, in Rhode Island, which was started in September, 1758, by James Franklin, son of James Franklin, and nephew of Benjamin Franklin. The Mercury, also, is a weekly. The third in age is the Connecticut Courant, which first appeared in December, 1764. The Courant is now printed both as a weekly and a daily, and was never better than at present. It was established by Thomas Green. The fourth is the Spy; and these four are the only papers in the country, which existed previous to the first rebellion or revolution. Exchange.

—It is reported that the New York Tribune is having Greeley's old editorial manuscripts engraved as maps of the seat of war.

New Publications Received.

Levi G. Towle of Exeter has been appointed Deputy Sheriff.

Mrs. Packard of Exeter, has an engagement to travel with the Allegharnians, and will join the troupe at that place, the 30th Aug.

The unique octagon house at the upper end of Fifth street, Dover, is rapidly approaching completion.

Frank B. Evans of Derry, arrived at the Granite House, at Hampton Beach, Wednesday afternoon, and after tea went in bathing on the North Beach, leaving his clothes on the beach. He was seen in the water between 7 and 8 oclock, and has not been seen since. No money was found in his clothes, which lay on the beach all night, although he had $265 in his possession when he left the house of his brother-in-law, Elias S. Evans, in Derry, last Monday. He was 52 years old, and leaves two children.

Rev. Edw. Crowninshield has moved with his family to Exeter, and will be ordained as pastor of the Unitarian Society on Thursday, September 8. Prof. C. C. Everett of Cambridge, will preach the ordination sermon.

Ex-PRESIDENT LORD.—A friend from Hanover informs us that the venerable Ex-President Lord of Dartmouth College, who has been confined to his bed at his home in Hanover for three weeks past, continues to fail gradually and is not expected to live many days. His illness is nothing but a general falling from pure old age, and in no wise attributable to disease, so regular and exemplary has been the life of the noble old man whose name and memory is fond cherished by hundred of pupils. Concord Patriot.

CUBA. — Nicholas Ascarate, special envoy of the Spanish government, has arrived in New York city for the purpose of consultation with the leaders of the Cuban revolution, and to ascertain from them on what terms they will accept a declaration of peace throughout Cuba, and the settlement of all difficulties.

S. J. COURT.—At the adjourned law term at Manchester, the following cases were disposed of on the Rockingham Docket:

Belknap vs. Boston & Maine Railroad. Judgment for plaintiff, for $200 and full costs of Court, if plaintiff elects to remit residue of verdict at next trial term; otherwise, verdict set aside as excessive.

Janvrin vs. Fogg.—Judgment on verdict for plff. if he produces at Trial Term his mortgage, properly stamped and cancelled, with evidence that all forfeitures and penalties to U. S. Government are remitted; otherwise, verdict set aside.

Chapman and Hervey vs Boston and Maine Railroad. — Plaintiff's amendments allowed; exceptions overruled.

Lenihan vs. Shehan.—Verdict for plaintiff set aside.

Gordon vs. Norris et al.—Report recommitted.

Woodman vs. Nottingham.— Judgment on verdict, if plaintiff remits $100 exemplary damages.

Forsyth vs. Morse.—Judgment for defendant.

State vs. Lincoln—Motion to quash denied.

Rowe vs. Langley.—Plaintiff's attorney to have lien for taxable costs. Defendant may offset judgment to amount paid for Melcher judgment, and costs to counsel—C. G. Conner, Commissioner, to ascertain amount.

Lane and wife vs Pickering.—Decree for plaintiff for $32.49 and costs.

Divorces—Fred D. Morse from Mary M. Morse; Sarah A. Townsend from John E. Townsend.

More than 500,000 people bear testimony to the wonderful curative effects of Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery. It cures Bronchitis, and the worst lingering coughs. As an anti-Bilious medicine for Liver Complaint it has no equal. It permanently cures constipation of the bowels, cleanses and purifies the blood and thereby cures Scrofulous and Syphilitic taints, and all diseases of the skin, as pimples, Blotches, Boils, Rashes and Eruptions. Sold by druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Sound Logic For the Sick.

The invalid has often good reasons to exclaim, "save me from my friends." As a general thing, each of them will have a different medicine to propose, and if he follows all their prescriptions in turn, their well-meant advice may be the death of him. The only sensible course in any case of sickness is to resort promptly to a specific which has stood the test of a long and widely extended public experience, and obtained on solid and sufficient grounds the reputation of a Standard Remedy. This rank among the restoratives of our day belongs of right, and beyond all dispute, to HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Let those who are taking it at this debilitating season as an invigorant answer for themselves as to its tonic properties. Can any dyspeptic, who has ever used it, question its superiority as a stomachic over every other medicine? Can any person of bilious habit, who has ever taken it for liver complaint doubt its efficiency? It is believed among the tens of thousands who are now using, or who have used it as an alterative and corrective, not one can be found who would exchange it for any other preparation in the market. For intermittent fevers nervous debility constipation, sick stomach, and all complaints arising from indigestion or impoverishment of the blood it is the only article which can be unclentiously guaranteed, and no one who is thoroughly acquainted with its virtues will allow interested dealers in worthless slops, on which they make a larger profit, to furnish them in the place of the great vegetable restorative.

New Advertisements to-day.

Auction—J. P. Morse.
Temple—Plumiegraphic Sensation.

☞ The Census of Portsmouth will show a small loss. There are more residences, and all occupied; but less people in them, especially fewer children.

☞ The naming of the new Schoolhouse for Capt. Spalding, is a well deserved compliment to a gentlemen who has always shown a deep interest in our public schools, and labored hard to promote their efficiency.

☞ At the meeting of the Aldermen, Thursday evening, Mayor Adams stated that the Board of Health will proceed to fill up the Cesspool, and assess the expense on Capt. Eldredge who owns the land, unless he shall fill it himself immediately.

☞ We are indebted to the author, Mr. Geo. W. Thompson of this city, for a copy of a new and pleasing musical composition of his, entitled Les Yeux Bleux Valse. It is dedicated to his friend Edward F. Wilson, and published by White, Smith & Perry of Boston.

CITY MATTERS.—In the Board of Aldermen, Thursday evening, E. P. Kimball was granted sidewalk on Cabot St. Repairs of Manning St. referred to Com. on Sts.; also the amount of compensation to be paid S. H. Goodall, if he will remove his house on Bridge St. back,—to same Com. and the Mayor. The Ordinance re-organizing the Fire Dept. was taken from the table and referred to Com. on Bills on 2d Reading The Com. on Burying Grounds reported the Cotton Ground put in suitable condition, and were authorized to make repairs at Point of Graves and the North Yard. It was voted that the new Schoolhouse at the Creek be called the Spalding School. A joint resolution was passed, that a portion of the City Farm be sold at auction, under direction of the Mayor. The Board voted to visit the County Farm at such time as the Mayor may recommend.

PORTSMOUTH SEVENTY YEARS AGO.

Messrs. Editors:—I have before me a pamphlet, printed by William Treadwell & Co. in this city, in 1801. It is "A Century Sermon," "The Glory of America," delivered at the South Church in this city, by Timothy Alden, Jr., A. M., colleague pastor with Rev. Samuel Haven, D. D., in the year 1800. The sermon was printed at that time, and presented to the public, at the solicitation of a number of the "hearers," to whom it was respectfully dedicated. Of Portsmouth the author says:

"It would be a pleasing task, on entering the nineteenth century, to take a retrospective view of this town from its first settlement to the present period. Our data, however, are inadequate to the attempt. Such an undertaking naturally devolves upon age and experience. A few reflections must therefore suffice.

On the banks of the Piscataqua, we are favored with one of the most pleasant situations in America. With the exception of one melancholy season, no town in the Union, of its size, has had a greater share of the inestimable blessing of health. It is remarkable that no fire has ever laid waste a street, and rarely a single house, within the limits of Portsmouth. We have one of the best harbors in the United States. Our mercantile and commercial interests are in a very prosperous condition. We know of no town where greater encouragement is given to the mechanic.

Among the most distinguished improvements which have marked the close of the eighteenth century, we may mention the new market; the number of elegant houses lately erected; the aqueduct; the convenient pavements on one side of most of our streets; and the beautiful rows of the Lombardy poplar, which begin to appear.

The number of inhabitants in 1775 amounted to 4590. In 1790 the number was 4720. It is supposed that within the last ten years there has been an increase of about a thousand.

In 1798 the town was visited with an alarming epidemic, the yellow fever and dysentery. One hundred and seven died between July 20 and October 6th. The fever was confined to the north part of the town, and the dysentery to the southern.

Twenty-eight ships, 47 brigs, 10 schooners, 2 sloops and 1 barque which are employed on foreign voyages, belong to the town of Portsmouth. It is particularly worthy of remark that seventeen of the above (and mostly large vessels) have been built during the year 1800. We have also about twenty coasting, and more than that number of fishing vessels.

The Portsmouth Pier was incorporated in 1795,—340 feet long and 60 feet wide, with one building on it which is not equalled by anything of the kind in New England. It is 323 feet long and 30 feet wide, three stories high, and divided into fourteen stores. On the north side of the Pier there is another building of the same height, which is divided into two stores. On the front of the Pier is a large brick hotel.

The new Market was built in 1800, and is intended for a commodious and elegant Town Hall. The bricks used in the building amounted to 145,000, and were all laid in 39 days". K.

☞ The Salem Veterans go into camp at Frost's Point September 13th.

☞ The Granite States of this city, will play the Whipples of Kittery, at that place this afternoon.

☞ A detachment of about 40 marines, under command of Lieut. Porter, arrived at this Naval Station on Friday; they are for the California.

☞ There is to be a grand hop at the Sagamore House this (Saturday) evening, in honor of Adm. Joseph Smith and Gen. Wm. Sutton.

....The Universalist Centennary meeting is to be held in the Universalist Church in Portsmouth on Monday eve. Aug. 29th, at 7.30 P. M. Mrs. M. A. Livermore and Rev A. J. Paterson, of Boston, and Rev. S. H McCollister of Nashua, N. H; will speak.

☞ It has been announced that a baptizing will take place at Noble's Island Sunday, at noon; we are requested to say that it will be postponed, as the officiating clergyman leaves town to attend a funeral on that day.

☞ Rogers' flower gardens and green-houses at Kittery are now attracting the attention of a large number of visitors. His autumn flowers, such as Asters, Phloxes, etc. present a very brilliant appearance, and those of our readers who can find it convenient to do so, should not fail to visit these grounds.

WALDRON'S FURNACE.—This is a little portable cooking stove and flat iron heater, manufactured in this city by the patentee, Mr. Richard H. Waldron; and of which there are several hundred in use in this city, to the great satisfaction of all who use them. It is arranged either to sit on a boiler hole in a cook or other stove, or to be used out of doors, with a stand and funnel of its own; and in either case will do an astonishing amount of cooking, with the least quantity of fuel, and almost no heat in the room. We understand that Messrs. Samuel Rowe & Co., of this city, have bought the entire patent for the United States; and that Mr. Rowe will travel to dispose of territorial rights. The furnace may be examined and purchased, at No. 73 Market Street, and we recommend it to all.

—Man must have occupation, or he miserable. Toil is the price of appetite—of health and enjoyment. The very necessity which overcomes our natural sloth is a blessing. Leisure is sweet to those who have earned it, but burdensome to those who get it for nothing.

—"Hunger is the best sauce," ergo, the hungriest is the sauciest.

—Of all the laws of trade, none find greater favor than the buy laws.

—A volume that will bring tears to your eyes—a volume of smoke.

—Why is a drunkard like a bad account?—Because he generally overbalances.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.
The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and more than the interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crop, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.
The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the wonderfully settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advantageous position and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.
These bonds have 30 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds causes the bond to seem the nearest day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest on the investment. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

R. B. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtain ng Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, obtained twice rejected applications. SIXTEEN APPEALS. EVERY ONE of which was decided in HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.
"Mr. R. B. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such uniform proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. And over thirty others are waiting to get their Machines, who have ordered them seven or weeks ago. All the above orders have been taken and served by Mr. HARTSHORN since the first of June.
The sale of the LITTLE WASHER is unprecedented, not only in Portsmouth but everywhere where it has been introduced. All who desire one of these valuable Little machines will do well to apply early, as the demand is greater than the supply. J. J. HATLINGER, Agent.
☞ Feeling in need of a rest, the agent is intending to be absent from town for about two weeks; but all orders can be left at his headquarters as advertised, and will receive his prompt personal attention at the earliest opportunity.
Orders may be left at SWEETSER & CLARK'S No. 46 Market St.; OXFORD & JOHNSTON'S Grocories, 78 State St., 32 1-2 Middle St.; MONTGOMERY'S Music Store, No. 10 1-2 Daniel St.; or at A. JOY'S Music Store and Sewing Machine Emporium, 9 Pleasant Street.

AYER'S
HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is even restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed, but such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
It wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be compared to it. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Morning Chronicle.

Concluded from Yesterday.

THE THREE LOVES OF PLUMACHARD.

From the French of Pierre Vernon.

The husband alone troubled me a little.

Rarely have I seen so disagreeable a figure. Eyebrows like a boar's bristles; a visage black and scowling; his mouth twistered with a bad-omened contraction, the voice harsh and spasmodic.

Added to this he bored every customer with the story of his five years' campaign in the Crimea and Italy.

No matter! I could not vanish my absorbing passion. Recele w..en she appeared to encourage me! It would have been unworthy a Frenchman!

My only care was to devise a good pretext for my visits, which I assure you wasn't easy.

I was inundated with essences and cosmetics; I was scented like a perfumery shop. Did I not carry on my person samples of everything he had? For if I had bought without using those divers aromatics, oils and washes, I should have given the alarm to Othello.

I got shaved twice a day—three times when I could find the pretext of an evening party.

Of en I wished myself bald, so I could order a wig of her husband, which would permit me to remain an hour at my daily toilet. Only the fear of looking very ugly withheld me.

However, I had no need of this stratagem, for I was almost in her heart.

I didn't have to wait long to be entirely so.

One day, as I was going to the shop for my third shave, I met her at the corner of the street.

'Heavens! You?

'You here?

'Dear Ursula! where are you going?'

'Take care, if my husband should see you! He has sent me out on an errand to his handsome furnisher.'

'Let me go with you.'

'You will ruin me!'

'A carriage?'

'Never, sir! What do you take me for?'

'Take my arm——'

I was so pressing that she accepted it. Oh evening of delight! It rained, but I knew it not. Her arm trembling on mine, her voice responding sweetly to mine, filled me with an emotion that excluded everything else.

Happy hours, soon flown! Why not last forever?

At last stern fate obliged us to separate.

The next morning I woke with a lumbago. It was the rain of the previous evening. Ah, I paid dearly for the pleasure of that intoxicating interview.

You may well conceive that I hastened to return to her. In spite of rheumatism I dressed myself quickly and gained the shop.

Perhaps, thought I, she will not be able to keep from blushing, love is so difficult to conceal.

She did't have the trouble to conceal anything. She wasn't there. Her husband was standing alone at the bottom of the shop. He was more gloomy, more scowling, more brisling than ever.

I was alarmed, more than a little, but thinking that any show of fear or hesitation would betray me, I seated myself in the chair with the easiest expression of countenance I could assume.

'The beard, isn't it?' asked he, in a sinister voice.

'Yes, the beard?'

He soaped me in silence, whetted his razor with convulsive precipitation, and commenced to shave.

Suddenly, still continuing to pass the steel over my jaw, he said abruptly:

'What would you do to your wife's lover, if she deceived you?'

'What would I—would I do?—but I—I'm only a boy, and—'

'That's not the question; answer me.'

'Damn it!—one often fancies—'

'I don't fancy; I saw it?'

'You saw it?' cried I, cold chills running through me.

'Don't stir from there,' said he, in a hollow voice, 'don't stir! Yes, I saw it—yesterday—my wife—'

'You, you—you, you—'

My tongue failed me.

'You deceive yourself.'

'I saw her, as I see you, with her seducer—arm in arm. Once more, what ought I to do to him?'

The cold sweat stood on my forehead, for I saw the razor struggling in his hand.

'Is not vengeance a sacred right?' continued he. 'Don't stir then, sacre bleu!

Oughtn't I to cut the deceiver's head off with my razor the first day he comes here?

For he is a customer of mine, just like yourself. Ha! ha! ha!

My knees were paralyzed with terror.

'Isn't it right, then,' pursued Othello, 'when I hold him as I hold you, when I draw the razor over his throat as I draw it over yours—

In the devil's name! stir not then!

Shouldn't I look into the whites of his eyes?'

With eyes darting flames he said this:

'To rest my arm on his shoulder?'

He crushed me with the weight of his enormous hand.

'And say to him: Miscrable, I met you with my wife. You are her lover, wretch; I'm going to cut your throat!

It is my right; I'm going to cut your throat!'—

At these words I lost my head! I seemed to see the glittering blade lower itself and enter my flesh.

With a desperate effort I pushed back Othello, leaped to the door, and, soaped to the eyes, the towel still around my neck, half shaved, I rushed down streets and alleys until, exhausted by this desperate flight, I threw myself at full length on the grass.

* * * *

The next day I found that it was a quartermaster of Hussars that Othello had met with his wife. It was a confidence and not a menace he was making to me. I had trembled in vain—Ursula had deceived us both.

Oh, these wives, these wives!"

IV.—THE DENOUMENT.

This last groan of Plumachard was received with still more Homeric laughter.

One talked of carrying him in triumph, but an auditor, who had some coolness left, interrupted the speaker.

"Plumachard! there remains one obscure point in your recital. You wish no more widows, damsels, or wives. What then?"

"Then I have renounced love," gravely articulated Plumachard.

"Go then!—"

"I tell you I have renounced love, and the proof is that—"

"Is that—"

"I am going to be married next week!"

"De profundis!" cried the assembly with one voice.—Boston Herald.

☞ Punchinello was particularly good last week. Here are a few of the best:

—Ready for another heat—the horses of Phœbus.

—Results of silver stock—1. The dream is ore. 2. Never mined.

—Politician's plant—see Weed.

—In France the Marseillaise has become the national Him; while in Prussia, Bismark is decidedly the national Herr.

—An intelligent cordwainer of New York has invented a bathing shoe to fit the under-toe at Long Branch.

—A celebrated English professor of heraldry is now at Long Branch, studying the crests of the waves.

—The aldermen to their dinner—Gorge us!

A BALLAD OF BATH.

There came three Bath men out of a house,
Out of a house as the sun came up;
Each bound to an island that men called Mouse,
And each one followed by a bob-tailed pup.
And in their mouths there were T. D. pipes,
The largest pipes with bowls like a cup:
For men must smoke and women must weep,
Though Mouse Island doth no water keep,
Yet they'll all be dry in the morning.

One of the "Mousers," his name was Bill,
His name was Bill, and his wife was Sue,
An awful fellow to eat and swill,
And fall of talk, yet loathe to do;
He could drink a quart as well as a gill,
And then be dry the whole day through.
For down river men must all be dry,
Though the ocean lieth so very nigh,
Yet 'tis salt by night and morning.

There groaned three Bath men on "Inner Burnt,"
On "Inner Burnt" as the sun went down,
For each one then had fully learned
That he should never have left his town;
And each one thought of the place he left,
And then put on a terrible frown;
For men will frown and women will laugh,
And a man will sometimes feel like a calf,
Especially if he's thirsty.

H. T. HELMBOLD'S
CONCENTRATED
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
THE GREAT DIURETIC.
The proprietor trusts that his Remedies, from the fact of their being advertised, may not be classed as Patent Medicines.
HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU is a pharmaceutical preparation. The proper name is given, and it is the most active which can be made. It is endorsed as a cure by all medical works for such diseases as recommended by the proprietor. It is pleasant in its taste and odor, free from all injurious properties, and is taken by adults and children. It is tonic, diuretic, blood-purifying, and invigorating. Enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes will find it far more strengthening than any of the preparations of bark or iron.
See medical properties contained in Dispensatory of the United States, of which the following is a correct copy:—
BUCHU.—Its odor is strong, diffusive, and somewhat aromatic; its taste is bitterish, and analogous to that of mint. It is given chiefly in complaints of the urinary organs, such as gravel, chronic catarrh of the bladder, morbid irritation of the prostate gland, and retention or the incontinence of urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. It has also been recommended in dropsies, chronic rheumatism, cutaneous affections, and dropsy.

Cure of Gravel of Five Years Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.
SAVANNAH, TENN., May 14, 1869.
Dr. H. T. Helmbold,
DEAR SIR: We introduced your "Fluid Extract Buchu" in this county about eight months ago, and are happy to state that it is meeting with universal favor. We wish to inform you of one instance (among many) where your "Buchu" has worked wonders. A man in our county, named J. B. Estell, had been suffering about five years with gravel.
About six weeks ago he bought of us one bottle of your "Buchu," and before he was through with one bottle he passed a gravel that weighs eight grains, which we now have on exhibition in our drug store. He says that he will never be without the "Buchu" in his house again. Your preparations are gaining favor every day.
Very respectfully yours, &c.,

Cure of Bladder and Kidney Affection of long Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.
WESTPORT, CONN., Sept. 9, 1869.
H. T. Helmbold, Esq.,
DEAR SIR: I commenced taking your "Extract of Buchu" about two weeks since for an affection of the bladder and kidneys. I have suffered by spells very much for a few days past. But yesterday relief came through the effect of your "Buchu." A stone passed from my bladder about the size of a large pea, and I now feel perfectly well and entirely free from the pain that I have suffered with so hard." I attribute my cure to your medicine entirely, and would recommend all persons similarly affected to try it. I have great faith in its curative powers.
Yours truly, THOMAS J. BENNETT.

Cure of Kidney and Bladder Affection of a Patient Seventy-eight years of Age. Thanks to Mr. Helmbold.
GIRARD, PA., March 31, 1869.
Editor Cosmopolite: I desire, as an unsolicited tribute to the merits of Helmbold's Buchu, and for the benefit of those similarly afflicted as myself, to say that after consulting many eminent physicians, and spending nearly all the best advertised Remedies, in the vain hope of finding relief from aggravated kidney and bladder diseases, from which I have suffered excessively for many years, good fortune finally suggested to me Helmbold's Buchu, which I commenced using with little faith, and no apparent beneficial results for about a month.
At the expiration of that time, however, I thought I commenced to experience slight relief, which encouraged me to persevere in its use, and now, at the expiration of four months, although I am an infirm old man, nearly 78 years of age, and consequently medicines cannot be expected to favorably affect me as they otherwise would, I have found such unspeakable relief and permanent benefit from Mr. Helmbold's valuable discovery, that I feel I ought to publicly record the fact, as an acknowledgment to him, and a valuable suggestion to the public. Yours respectfully,
D. M. LAREN.

DR. KEYSER
is a physician of over thirty years' experience, and a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College, and of the University of Medicine and Surgery of Philadelphia. Hear him:
Mr. H. T. Helmbold:
DEAR SIR: In regard to the question asked me as to my opinion about Buchu, I would say that I have used and sold the article in various forms for the past thirty years. I do not think there is any form or preparation of it I have not used, or known to be used, in the various diseases where such medicine agent would be indicated. You are aware, as well as myself, that it has been extensively employed in the various diseases of the bladder and kidneys, and the reputation it has acquired, in my judgment, is warranted by the facts.
I have seen and used, as before stated, every form of Buchu—the powdered leaves—tincture, fluid extracts—and I am not cognizant of any preparation of that plant at all equal to yours. Twelve years' experience ought, I think, to give me the right to judge of its merits; and, without prejudice or partiality, I give yours precedence over all others.
I value your Buchu for its effect on patients. I have cured with it, and seen cured with it, more diseases of the bladder and kidneys than I have ever seen cured with any other Buchu or any other proprietary compound of whatever name.
Respectfully yours, &c.,
GEO. H. KEYSER, M. D.,

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Jan. 28, 1868.
Mr. H. T. Helmbold,
DEAR SIR: Your communication requesting our terms for advertising was duly received, but from a prejudice I had formed against advertising "cures for secret diseases," it was left unanswered. During an accidental conversation in a drug store the other evening, my mind was changed on the character of your Buchu. It was then highly commended for other diseases by two physicians present. Inclosed please find our rates o advertising. Yours, T. B. H. STENHOUSE,
Ed'r and Prop'r of Telegraph.

HELMBOLD'S BUCHU.
TESTIMONIALS.

A Permanent Cure of Gravel of twelve Years' Standing. Stone Passed and to be Seen.
BURNSIDE, CONN., Dec. 15, 1869.
Dr. Helmbold,
DEAR SIR: It is with much pleasure that I write you upon facts respecting myself. I do not know hardly how to express myself. I have been for the last ten years the greatest sufferer man could be and live; but more sometimes than others. The complaint was the "Kidneys" and "Bladder." I have been sometimes troubled to fourteen hours, and wanted to make water every minute, but could not. Have consulted doctors, both in Massachusetts and the West, I have taken pills, I may say by the quart, also liquored medicines, but found no relief from any, and got worse the last six months. I was so that I could scarcely get about, I could not rest night or day.
It would soon have been "all up" with me if I had not seen your advertisement headed "Kidneys." I read it through and thought I would try it. I purchased a bottle, but, mind you, had not much faith in it. Why should I, when I had been trying so many things that cost me so much? Well, I began taking it, and before I had taken the first bottle I felt bad; but I finished it and got another. By the time I took half of the second bottle the second, thinks I, I had made my mind it was of no use trying any more—and all this time the "Buchu" was doing its work, but I did not know it, so I gave it up and went to Hartford on Saturday to one of the best doctors in the city. He said it was the neck of the bladder, and I should have to undergo an operation. He gave me medicine, and I went home quite downhearted.
On Sunday I was unable to go to church. I had not taken any of his medicine, but on my return continued taking the "Buchu," and in the afternoon I had a desire to make water, but could not. About one hour after this I tried again, with the same result, but the next time I took the vessel it was full of the same as turning a faucet and stopping it off again. It was so for three times, and the third time there was something came through the passage and stuck against the side of the vessel. I examined it, and it is the ugliest stone or gravel you ever saw, covered over with little pieces which collected together. It looks the color of a mud turtle, and is as hard as flint. So you see the "Buchu" was doing its work, although I was feeling its effects. I procured another bottle, thinking there might be some more behind; but since that has passed, which is eight weeks ago last Sunday, I have been as well as ever I was in my life. I have the stone securely wrapped, and those who have seen it in this place are surprised.
I cannot tell you all, but this is a true story of my case, and you are welcome to make such use of my name as you think proper. I am pretty well known in Berkshire; also in Connecticut. The advertisement was sent to me. Why not publish more? If any one wishes to see this wonder, they can do so. I could write all day, but I think I have said enough this time. My health now is ever well-wisher, EDWARD L. HOWARD,

Corner 5th av. and 76th st., Central Park.
(Home and School for the Sons of Deceased Soldiers.)
Dr. H. T. Helmbold,
Two bottles only of the package of your valuable Buchu presented to the Institute have been used by the children, and with perfect success. In the case of our little Lieutenant A. J., his pride is no longer mortified, and he is free from the daily morning anathemas of the chamber-maid who has charge of his bedding.
I feel that a knowledge of the result of our use of your Buchu will be to the children under our charge may save many a Superintendent and Matron of Boarding Schools and Asylums a great amount of annoyance; and many a poor child suffering more from Weakness than from habit, may be spared punishment, that is (not knowing it as a weakness instead of a bad habit) most unjustly inflicted upon them. Thanking you on behalf of the children, and hoping others may be alike benefitted, I am respectfully yours,

A Case of Twenty Years Standing.
PHILADELPHIA, PENN., June 25, 1867.
H. T. Helmbold, Druggist.
DEAR SIR: I have been a sufferer for upwards of twenty years with gravel, bladder, and kidney affections, during which time I have used various medicinal preparations, and been under the treatment of the most eminent physicians, but receiving but little relief.
Having seen you: preparations extensively advertised, I consulted my family physician in regard to using your Extract Buchu.
I did this because I had seen all kinds of advertised Remedies tried in my family without benefit, and some quite injurious; in fact, I despaired of ever getting well, and determined to use no Remedies hereafter unless I knew of the ingredients. It was this that prompted me to use your Remedy. As you advertised that it was composed of Buchu, cubebs, and juniper berries, it recommended to me and my physician as an excellent combination; and, with his advice, after an examination of the article, and ascertaining it was worthless

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

MONDAY, AUGUST 29, 1870.

WAR NEWS.—A fresh army of 150,000 old French soldiers is forming at Lyons. and 80,000 of a similar class have assembled near Paris.

The population of Epernay are defending themselves against the Prussians, and are harassing them much. The French have inundated the vicinity of Metz and are destroying embankments, etc.

A severe artillery battle was fought at Kehl and Strasbourg on Wednesday night, lasting till five o'clock Thursday morning. A large part of the citadel and arsenal of Strasbourg have been destroyed. Many fires occurred in that city, on account of the vigorous bombardment.

One of the Prague journals publishes a letter of its Berlin correspondent, dated Aug. 19th, from which we extract the following:

"We are persuaded here that efforts are making to conceal the fact that the Prussian army lost seriously in the battles of the 15th and 16th. The details furnished here are not credited."

It is openly asserted that the losses were so great that the army was discouraged, and were not able to advance, which will allow the French time to gather immense strength, causing the Germans to pay dearly for their first success.

A Polish legion of 40,000 men, most of them exiled for fighting in Poland against the despotism of Prussia, has been organized at Paris.

The drawing of the conscription at Paris for the present year is fixed for the 29th inst. The call is for a corps of 150,000 mounted volunteers instead of 90,000.

The man who attempted to assassinate Marshal McMahon has been tried and was shot.

The official report of Bazaine acknowledges a French loss of 23,000 men at the battle of Rezonville.

The Prussian have abandoned the siege of Toul.

Luneville is so filled with the Prussian wounded that 3000 are left unsheltered in the streets.

Von Bismarck's son is more seriously wounded than at first reported. He has been sent home to Mannheim.

McMahon, whose effective force numbers 135,000 men, extends his line from the valley of the Aisne to the frontier of Luxembourg, his center resting at Ardennes.

The Crown Prince, is advancing on Paris by the valleys of Marne and Aube.

New Publications Received.

American Agriculturist for September. As good as the best.

Old and New, for Sept., the great Boston magazine. Among its full contents, are more of Miss Stowe's Pink and White Tyranny, the Adirondacks, &c.

Blackwood's Magazine for August. The American reprint, from Leonard Scott Pub. Co., New York. $4 a year.

Only a Fiddler, a Danish Romance, by Hans Christian Anderson. Published by Hurd & Houghton, in uniform style with Anderson's works, and in the usual nice manner of the Riverside Press. And this popular author never yet wrote a book but it was worth reading.

Life of Charles Dickens, by Dr. R. Shelton Mackenzie; with personal recollections and anecdotes, portrait and autograph. T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, have just published this work, in neat style. It contains, besides a full history of his life, his uncollected pieces, in prose and verse; personal recollections and anecdotes; his last will and testament in full; letters from Mr. Dickens to various persons, never before published; and traces the career of the great novelist from the time of his birth, and first connection with journalism as a reporter, to its unexpected and lamented termination on the 9th of June, 1870; with a full account of the funeral services. The whole is issued in a large duodecimo volume, price $2. Agents and canvassers are wanted. Copies will be sent per mail, post-paid, on receipt of $2 by the publishers.

The Little Corporal, of Chicago, for September.

The oldest Juvenile Magazine in America,—Merry's Museum. September No. For $1.50 a year you can make its acquaintance, by writing to the publisher, Horace B. Fuller, Boston.

☞ Rev. J. Sanborn, recently of Freeport, has accepted a call from the Congregational church at Elliot.

LINIMENT.—No better liniment for bruises on man or beast was ever used, than equal parts of landanum, alcohol and oil of wormwood. It reduces the swelling rapidly, if inflamed, and removes soreness like a charm. The sooner applied, of course, the better.

THE N. H. STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE assembled for the first time, at the State House, Concord, Tuesday. The Board consists of Moses Humphrey, Concord; T. J. Whipple, Laconia; J. O. Adams, Manchester; Sampson W. Buffum, Winchester; W. H. H. Mason, Moultonborough; Luther B. Hoskins, Lyman; Charles Jones, Milton; J. Frank Lawrence, Epping; Nathan R. Perkins, Jefferson; E. H. Brown, Croydon. All but the representative of Belknap county were in attendance.

Moses Humphrey was chosen Chairman with J. O. Adams, Secretary. A general discussion took place on matters relating to success in farming; fairs also, were considered and committees appointed at the various fairs to be held this season.

New England and State, the full Board; Merrimack, Perkins and Whipple; Rockingham, Jones and Adams; Piscataqua, Lawrence and Adams; Strafford, Mason and Adams. It was agreed that all town fairs should be visited by the members of the Board for the county where the fair may be held.

HISTORICAL MEETINGS.—The Maine Historical Society will celebrate this week at York, the landing of the Popham Colony at Sagadahock in 1607. The meeting will be held on the site of the projected city of Georgianna, whose broad streets yet remain as evidence of disappointed hopes and expectations. The celebration this year promises to be one of unusual interest to Historical men, and seems to excite the same feeling in the locality.

For the information of those who propose to attend the meeting from this vicinity, we will state that the Maine people will probably arrive at York, about half-past 1 o'clock, to-day.

This afternoon and evening, Monday, Aug. 29th, the 263d anniversary of the settlement of Sagadahock, the first English possession upon the coast of New England, a meeting will be held upon the site of the city of Georgianna, (York), where appropriate addresses and other services will take place. The day will be devoted to an examination of all matters of antiquarian interest. In the evening there will be a conference meeting, to which the public are invited.

THE FAIR.—The arrangements for the New England Fair, commencing at Manchester, Sept. 6th, are rapidly progressing, and most encouraging accounts are received from all parts of New England. There are already ninety-eight entries of horses for trotting. The purses amount to between five and six hundred dollars. There are also numerous entries of cattle, and a large list of sheep and swine. The representatives of the press are to have the most modern and ample accommodations. G. W. Riddle, Esq., the energetic Secretary, does not intend to be outdone in this particular. Messrs. C. H. Hayes and Edward P. Sherburne of this city, are to have charge of the cattle department.

JOHN P. HALE.—It has been the fortune of your correspondent to listen to John P. Hale many times since his boyhood, but the great speech of Mr. Hale's life was his speech in the Old North Church, in Concord, in 1845. That was the time John P. Hale plead for his life. Such an occasion and such surroundings he never had before or since; and his success is best attested by the plaudits of friends and foes that greeted him as he left the house. The day he was elected Senator, in 1846, was a proud day for him. As he left the State House, for the Eagle Hotel, the walk was hung with flags, and a salute of cannon greeted him.

Gen. Pierce witnessed it from his office window, and remarked to the writer afterwards, that he did not blame Hale for feeling well that day; for it was the greatest personal triumph ever won in America. The closing of Mr. Hale's speech in the Old North Church was the finest burst of eloquence ever listened to in New England. The power of the whole man was called forth by the scenes of that afternoon. It was the remark of Prof. Haddock, the next day, that he believed it had never been equalled in this country.—Exeter News Letter.

THE COLISEUM ORGAN "RESURRECTED."—The powerful organ erected by the Messrs. Hook for the Coliseum, after having roared through the Peace Jubilee, and been blown down, torn up and demorialized generally by the September gale, has put on an architectural garb and gone to church—Rev. Mr. Talmadge's, Brooklyn, N. Y.—got up out of its ruins, had the roar taken out of its voice, and become quite a well organized church organ. The case is forty feet high, and much wider than at first. All the pipes are in view, as before, but inclosed in a black-walnut case having open arches on every side, showing the ranks of pipes, each handsomely decorated. The design was furnished by the architect of the church. Groups of carved columns rise in the corners, from which arches spring across the front and to the rear. This idea of exposing the pipes is the rage just now, and adds to the effectiveness of the instrument. The cost of the organ as now finished, including the case, is $9000.

MODERN HEAD-GEAR. — Harper's Weekly inquires, "When will the time come for woman to have the right to exercise good taste in the matters of dress in spite of fashion?"

Some say she might do it now, if she would; but, in truth, the majority of men desire their own wives, daughters, and sisters to conform to the prevailing style.

They may make fun of some hideous fashion in the abstract; but for all that, few of them would be pleased to escort a lady to an evening party who had chosen to dress merely sensibly, but without regard to fashion. The sad truth is, that we are all slaves to that imperious Madame Fashion. Even the most sensible scarcely do more than modify the extravagances of the prevailing style. In the progress of ages, that may come when every one will have a fashionable right to adapt individualities of costume. The idea that the same style of toilet, or the same mode of dressing the hair, is sufficiently becoming to be adapted by all ladies, is simply absurd. If the popular taste was not so warped, we should occasionally see heads now, instead of masses of hair.

The form of the head is often a peculiar mark of beauty, and is always indicative of a characteristic individuality which is pleasing.

However, the probability is that the masses of artificial hair worn will so weaken the natural growth, that women ere long will be compelled to cut their hair short in order to save a remnant. Therefore we may hope some time to see the natural shape of the head.

Where are our brave women? women brave enough to ignore a foolish, nay, an absolutely injurious, fashion? We shall now look for freedom—not slavery—for intelligent American women. Phren. Journal.

—During a recent visit to Eliot, we had the pleasure of visiting the farm of Capt. Moses Goodwin, and seeing his blooded stock. He has two cows and one bull of pure Jersey, and they are perfect beauties. One of the cows was imported from the Isle of Jersey, during the year 1869. The milk from these cows is remarkable for its richness, and as dairy cows he thinks the Jersey superior to those of any others. Capt. Goodwin is one of our most intelligent and enterprising farmers, and we trust his efforts in improving our breed of cows will be appreciated by such of our farmers as are admirers of choice and handsome stock.—Bid. Dem.

AFTER DINNER NAPS. — Many persons are in the habit of sleeping half an hour or hour immediately after dinner. This is a bad practice. Ten minutes' sleep before dinner is worth more than an hour after. It rests and refreshes and prepares the system for vigorous digestion. If sleep is taken after dinner, it should be in a sitting posture, as the horizontal position is unfavorable to healthy digestion. Let these who need rest and sleep through the day, take it before dinner, instead of after, and they will soon find that they will feel better, and that their digestion will improve thereby.—Herald of Health.

—A Western editor, demoralized by the heat, says that at ninety-eight degrees in the afternoon, the thermometer indicated twenty-five minutes past two o'clock.

Many suffer rather than take nauseous medicines. All who suffer from coughs, colds, irritation of the bronchial tubes or tendency to consumption, will find in Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry a remedy as agreeable to the palate as effectual in removing disease. The Balsam is a pleasant remedy; it is a safe remedy; it is a powerful remedy; it is a speedy remedy; it is a remedy that cures.

ANOTHER MYSTERY SOLVED.—Chemists being unable to discover the ingredients in fragrant SOZODONT, which removes all stains from the teeth and imparts such a peculiar rosiness to the gums, the public are hereby informed that it is a preparation from the Bark of the QUILLAYA SAPONARIA or Soap Tree of Chili, imported for the first time into this country for this special purpose. Such is the purifying and innocuous effect of this rare botanical agent, that it removes discolorations from the most fragile textile fabrics, without injuring a single thread.

Save and mend the pieces, use "SPALDING'S GLUE."

HAWK, HAWK, SPIT, SPIT, BLOW, BLOW, and disgust everybody with the offensive odor from your Catarrh, just because some fogy doctor who has not discovered and will not believe that the world moves, tells you that it cannot be cured. The proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will pay $500 reward for a case of Catarrh he cannot cure. Sold by druggists, or send sixty cents to R. V. Pierce, M. D., 133 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y., for it. A pamphlet free. Beware of counterfeits and worthless imitations. Remember that the Genuine has Dr. Pierce's private Government Stamp upon each package. This Stamp issued by the United States Government expressly for stamping Dr. Pierce's medicines, hash in portrait, name and address, engraved upon it, and need not be mistaken.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Sound Logic For the Sick.

The invalid has often good reasons to exclaim, "save me from my friends." As a general thing, each of them will have a different medicine to propose, and if he follows all their prescriptions in turn, their well-meant advice may be the death of him. The only sensible course in any case of sickness is to resort promptly to a specific which has stood the test of a long and widely extended public experience, and obtained on solid and sufficient grounds the reputation of a Standard Remedy. This rank among the restoratives of our day belongs of right, and beyond all dispute, to HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Let those who are taking it at this debilitating season as an invigorant answer for themselves as to its tonic properties. Can any dyspeptic, who has ever used it, question its superiority as a stomachic over every other medicine? Can any person of bilious habit, who has ever taken it for liver complaint doubt its efficiency? It is believed among the tens of thousands who are now using, or who have used it as an alterative and corrective, not one can be found who would exchange it for any other preparation in the known world. For intermittent fevers, nervous debility, constipation, sick stomach, and all complaints arising from indigestion or impoverishment of the blood, it is the only article which can be conscientiously guaranteed, and no one who is thoroughly acquainted with its virtues will allow interested dealers in worthless slops, on which they make a larger profit, to furnish them in the place of the great vegetable restorative.

For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.

Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.

If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

EUROPEAN WAR CORRESPONDENTS.

SPECIAL CABLE DESPATCHES DAILY,

GIVING THE

Most Reliable War News

That can be obtained on this Continent.

We have special correspondents moving with each division of the opposing forces of France and Prussia, and news agencies in the principal capitals—LONDON, PARIS, BERLIN, MADRID, VIENNA and FLORENCE—so that nothing of an important news character escapes our vigilant representatives.

Our News Agencies in the Principal Cities of Europe, and our system of travelling correspondents, have been long established, a fact the Readers of the HERALD have no doubt become familiar with, and as our letters from all parts of the Eastern Hemisphere for years past have fully proven.

We do not pretend that our comments upon the War, or that our opinions upon the probable success of either belligerent in contemplated movements, come by the cable. Our only aim is to give to the public the fullest, the most reliable, and the most authentic record of facts as they occur in the grand operations of the contending armies.

The NEW YORK DAILY HERALD will be furnished to subscribers at the rate of $1.00 per month. The WEEKLY HERALD will be sent by mail for $2 00 a year.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

☞ The Steamer Favorite continues her trips to the Shoals—and the captain proposes to run to Newmarket the last of this week, if practicable.

☞ The Eastern Railroad conveyed between thirteen and fourteen thousand passengers to and from the recent camp meeting at Hamilton. No accident occurred during the time, which speaks well for the management of the road.

☞ The Universalist Centenary Meeting in this city, is to be held in the Universalist Church on Pleasant Street, this (Monday) evening, at half past 7 o'clock. Rev. S. H. McCollester of Nashua, and Rev. A. J. Patterson and Mrs. M. A. Livermore of Boston, will speak; and all are invited to attend.

☞ The ex-Confederate editor of the Louisville Courier in an article on the death of Farragut, gives an account of the famous passage of the forts, closing as follows: "It was a glorious sight and Farragut made a superb fight. Those who faced one another that day can never forget it. Let them shake hands over the grave of that brave old iron-nerved sailor, while we testify to his superb courage and marvelous daring, that memorable night."

MORE BUSINESS.—We hear that Hon. Frank Jones is to erect a large brewery adjacent to his present one; to be of brick, 4 stories high. Mr. Jones is having a spacious well dug on his premises, 20 feet square, to be filled by the numerous streams which run thro' the lowland. The dirt from the well is being used to bank up the drain running from the brewery through the cess-pool.—We think that nuisance will soon be abated.

☞ Mr. N. A. H. Ball, of Nevada, whose death has been reported by telegraph, was a native of this city, and son of the late Mr. John Ball of Boston, whose last years were passed as a Unitarian city missionary. The son was a young man of great activity and enterprise, who had been on the Pacific coast for a dozen years, taking a leading position there. We learn that the body will be brought here for interment, under charge of the Knights Templar, F. M.

ANOTHER FIRE IN HUNKING STREET. On Friday evening about 11 o'clock, fire was discovered in the attic of house No. 3 Hunking Street, owned by Sampson L. Russell, a few feet from that discovered, a week before, in that place. The window was left open, and neighbors heard some one entering. A bottle of kerosene or turpentine was found and a place about ten feet square was burnt on the floor. There is no doubt that these fires were set by an incendiary, which causes general alarm in that neighborhood; and the fire would no doubt have spread had the alarm been later in the night.

☞ There is talk of laying out a seashore road, for pleasure driving, from Boar's Head to Odiorne's Point, or some other point, close along the beaches, as near as possible. We understand that the subject is to be brought before the County Commissioners, by petition from numerous residents of the towns of Rye, Hampton, Portsmouth, &c. It ought to be done, and we hope it will be; and as the Commissioners are capable and enterprising business men, they will of course give the subject the consideration it deserves, if properly presented to them. No doubt some of the mean old curmudgeons of Rye and Hampton would object to this, as they do to all improvements; but there is no good reason why these towns which derive such immense pecuniary advantage from the beach travel, should not contribute something for the public benefit, which would also be for their own as well.

☞ At the special meeting of the Philharmonic Society, Friday evening, it was voted to reassemble for the first regular meeting of the coming season, on the first Tuesday in September. There was a pretty full attendance, and a couple of choruses were sung by the Society; after which Miss Annie W. Guilford, of Lynn, (who impersonated "Queen Esther" in the cantata of that name, when it was presented by the Society some time ago,) favored the company with several songs, which would have been enjoyable from the simplicity and freedom from affectation with which they were sung, even if less ability of execution, and less power and sweetness of voice, had been displayed. Miss Guilford is a very pleasing singer; her tones throughout were full, clear and musical; and on the lower notes in particular, were remarkably rich and of very unusual power. The occasion was a very pleasant one for all concerned.

☞ After one of Dr. Strong's Sulphur Baths, the wondrous Journal writer saw marching in the funeral procession of the late Christopher J. Marshall, Sagamore Engine Co. 2 and Storer Encampment, G. A. R.; while others, who needed no soothing syrup and condensed milk, saw, instead, blacksmiths paying tribute to their respected fellow workman, and a Lodge of Odd Fellows.

Pop beer seems too exhilarating for our friend—try water and ginger, well sweetened.

BASE BALL.—Query of the Granite States; Although stealing bases in a match is allowable, is it proper for any one to steal the pitcher's and home bases?

The Granite States won the match at Kittery, Saturday, with the Whipples—42 to 18.

☞ An alarm of fire was given at the Navy Yard, about 7 o'clock, Saturday evening. It was caused by the spontaneous combustion of a suit o painter's clothes on the U. S. S. California. Two buckets of water extinguished it.

☞ Bailey's circus tent was struck by lightning on Friday at Kingston, N. Y., and seven persons were killed.

☞ Hon. Linus Child died in Hingham, Mass., on Friday.

From the Portsmouth Journal.

....Davis Bros. photograph saloon is a pleasant place to visit. The home views which they have been indefatigable in collecting, embrace many scenes of Portsmouth and vicinity memorable for visitors at the watering places, and cherished mementoes of "Home sweet Home" for absent sons and daughters. The vicinity of Portsmouth is very fully represented, including the Shoals and the beaches. Our attention is particularly attracted by several pictures of the historic grounds at Little Harbor. One of these was an interesting group suggested by the christening that took place there last week mentioned elsewhere. The figures were of four generations—the baby, mother, grandmother, and great-grandmother; a combination rarely seen upon one card.

....A correspondent of The Independent from this city says in reference to Albert Laighton's beautiful tribute to Farragut: "The memorial verses are by one whom we always call 'the Poet of Portsmouth,' notwithstanding the maternal claims which the place has in the reputation of Mr. Aldrich, Mr. Fields, and a knot of less widely known authors of verse. The poem is tender and pure as Farragut's own aspirations, and its sweetness rises like incense before the shrine of national gratitude and love which shall forever guard his immortal name." The poem finds place in the Independent.

....Quite an interesting event took place at the residence of Mrs. Cushing at Little Harbor on Thursday of last week, it being the baptism of her great-grandson, who was named after her husband the late Charles Cushing, Esq. Four generations were present, a sight seldom seen in these days of fast living. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James DeNormandie, assisted by Rev. A. P. Peabody, D. D.

That Mrs. Cushing may live to see the baptism of her great-great-grandchildren, is the sincere wish of her numerous friends.

....It is nearly three quarters of a century since the "Portsmouth Aqueduct Company" was formed. What a faithful "fountain head" this has been. A gentleman who has visited Nashua the past week comes home with a shower of blessings on our Aqueduct. But we do not suppose one shower will affect it more than another.

AT 90 AND INTEREST,

Interest payable May and November.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, be sides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

Morning Chronicle.

THE SENATE RING, AND THE RING IN THE SENATE. — We have already had somewhat to say, at different times and in various capacities, on the great Railroad controversy; and among other points, we have touched on the action of the Senate in the matter, and the course taken in debate by certain lawyer members of that little-great negative body. The speeches made, or agreed to, by Messrs. Small, Colby and Peavey, in opposition to the Contract and its ratifications, were published in several newspapers. In those speeches, both Messrs. Small and Peavey said something like this—that if (a lawyer's if, remember,) if they, with their ideas of the law and the facts in the case, should vote to approve the Northern R. R. contract, (as the House had just done, mind ye, by a large majority,) they should deserve a place in a building at the North End of the city of Concord—meaning the State Prison.

Now we do not believe much in lawyers' pleas in the Legislature; but one good turn deserves another, and a bad one may provoke it. So here comes Senator Blair, who is also a lawyer,—with a two column reply to our two friends above, in the Laconia Democrat. Mr. Blair presents the law points in the case, at least as ably as the other side, and we think makes out a good cause; but as we did not give the law cited by the other side, we do not propose now to copy any but Mr. Blair's general remarks in opening and summing up. P.

Mr. Blair. I heard the speeches of Senators Peavey, Small and Colby, concerning the bill sanctioning the contract between the Concord and Northern Railroads. I also carefully read the same as they appeared in the public prints, and moreover I have observed in the People, an article suggesting that it was a significant fact that six out of the seven lawyers of the Senate voted to postpone the bill, which was, in effect, to oppose it. As the only lawyer of the minority, I feel myself justified in calling the attention of the people of New Hampshire to some of the legal points involved in the discussion before the Senate, and I can now only do so through the medium of the press.

Before, however, coming directly to the subject matter of the discussion, I desire to say, that while I might indulge in some reflections upon the remarkable style, to say the least, in which the minority were indirectly stigmatized as perjured villains and fit candidates for the State Prison, I forbear, only with the single suggestion, that had I been the author of either of those speeches, the only institution in Concord of which I should have been afraid of becoming an inmate, is situated in the southerly part of the city, (be meaning, of course, the Insane Asylum.) * *

Too only fear expressed by the Honorable trio, of becoming incarcerated within the stone walls of the State Prison, was on account of their views in relation to ex post facto and retrospective laws. I assure them there is no danger, yet their alarm seems slightly ludicrous and reminds one of an anecdote. It is said that Gen. Nye of Nevada, went one evening to hear Mr. Durant, the celebrated converted lawyer, preach. After the service, the Gen. was inquired of how he liked. Said he, "I don't know what this man has done; I have seen a great many big lawyers, and a great many little ones, but have never yet seen one who seemed to be so afraid of Hell as this one." The application is obvious.

It will be seen that no distinction is made by Mr. Peavey, between ex post facto and retrospective laws, nor any whatsoever between private and public rights. What could be more ridiculous than his position, comparing the strictly private rights which he holds in a dozen fruit trees, with those public rights in railroads which belong to the people, which rights it was the sole duty of the legislature in this case to defend and protect.

But the saddest thing about the whole discussion, touching ex post facto and retrospective laws, is this, that the arguments, to a limited extent at least, used by rebel sympathizers during the war, were made use of by Republican Senators, and that they seemed to be almost inspired with some of the ideas contained in Harry Bingham's famous protest of 1861. It must have sounded sweetly on the ears of Republican listeners, to hear the stale, worn out dogmas of the New York Day Book and Boston Courier brought out by these Honorable gentlemen, like a needy old lady who has seen better days, making over an ancient silk dress, with a little trimming, to meet in some degree the exigencies of modern fashion.

Mr. Blair cites numerous legal authorities in support of the contract,—and asks:—

Now in view of the authorities cited, mostly decisions of the highest judicial tribunal of the nation, where stand these Honorable Senators, who plumed themselves on their erudite knowledge of the constitution and the law, and who were so fearful of going to the Penitentiary if perchance they should vote for a bill that by no possible construction of the laws of the United States or of this State, could be held either an ex post facto or a retrospective law?

He goes on:—

I now proceed to consider the construction to be put upon Sec. 2, Chap. 145 Gen. Stat., which reads as follows: "No sale, lease, mortgage or contract for the use of any railroad shall be valid unless it shall be in writing, filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and authorized by the Legislature."

There are three things to be done before a "Sale, &c.," as described in the above section, can become valid. 1st, it must be in writing. 2nd, it must be filed in the office of the Secretary of State. And 3d, it must be authorized by the Legislature. These are successive steps to be taken to complete the instrument, but no such instrument would be illegal if the first two steps necessary were complied with. It would simply be invalid. The sanction of the Legislature completes it and makes it "valid."

Now all of the Senators who spoke upon the matter, claimed that the word "authorized" in the Statute meant that the "sale, lease, &c.," should be authorized prior to its execution. What do the Legislature know of sales, leases, assignments, mortgages and contracts, until they are made and signed by the parties to them, and filed in the Secretary's office? Are Senators and Representatives to do the work of permitting railroads or other parties to make these contracts, and prescribing their terms? Such arguments as that might seem plausible to a person who could not read or write, but nonsense to any one who can read the English language.

I now come to the consideration of what the Legislature has to do with this Concord and Northern Railroad contract? what power it has to act upon it? What then, if what I have heretofore stated, is correct, was the duty of the late Legislature relative to this contract? Simply and only to satisfy themselves that it was for the public good, either to sanction or reject. That is all.

Senators and Representatives are not elected to the General Court for any other purpose than to make laws.—They are not responsible for their constitutionality, although any legislator's judgment would be influenced by his knowledge of constitutional law. What I mean to say is, that the Legislature is no place for a mere lawyer. Undoubtedly they make the best of legislators, when they are able to recognize the difference between being a member of the judicial department of the government and the legislature.

Had I grave doubts of the constitutionality of an act, and of its legality also,—if I thought it would subserve public interests and promote the public good, I would vote for it, and leave the consequences with the Courts, where they belong.

A late writer of great eminence, speaking of the sphere of Legislators, says:

"The legislature can enact laws, and its act, (by the veto allowed by the Executive) is detained and restricted; but it is not imperatively determined, and its enactment is thereafter enforced by the Executive, and to be applied by the judiciary in judgment on cases where controversy arises under the laws. But the legislature can not assume the execution of laws, nor intervene to conduct their immediate administration; it cannot render judgment between parties, nor forbid a judicial procedure so as to impair the vindication of rights, and the only case which can be brought before it, is that in which the Senate is constituted as a court, if the people shall appear with charges against the Executive or the judges."

How absurd, then, the theory of some Senators, that the Senate with its seven lawyers, should resolve itself into a quasi Court, adjunct to the Supreme Judicial Court, and attempt to act as a judicial body upon the bill ratifying this contract.

But what pitiful work they made of it; pronounced their opinions against the bill, and then continued the case.

There are many other points to which I would like to call attention, contained in these remarkable speeches, but I have already transcended the limits of a newspaper article, and close by expressing my gratitude to a kind Providence, that in acting upon this bill in the Senate, I was not one of the "six out of the seven lawyers in the Senate."

DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILL.
FOR FEMALES.
Infallible in correcting irregularities, and removing obstructions of the monthly periods. It in over forty years since these now so well known pills were first brought to notice by Dr. Duponco, of Paris, during which time they have been extensively and successfully used by some of the leading physicians, with unparalleled success. Ladies in poor health, either married or single, suffering from any of the Complaints peculiar to Females, will find the Duponco Golden Pills invaluable, viz., General Debility, Headache, Faintness, Loss of Appetite, Mental Depression, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Loins, Bearing-down Pains, Palpitation of the Heart, Retained, Excessive, Irregular or Painful Menstruation, Rush of Blood to Head, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Fatigue on any slight exertion, and particularly that most annoying, weakening ailment, so common among Females, both married and single, the Leucorrhœa or Whites. Females in every period of life will find Duponco's Pills a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. They invigorate the debilitated and delicate, and by regulating and strengthening the system, prepare the youthful constitution for the duties of life, and when taken by those in middle life or old age they prove a perfect blessing. There is nothing in the pills that can do injury to life or health. Safe in their operation, perpetual in their happy influences upon the Nerves, the Mind and the entire organization. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor, N. Y. ALVAN LITTLEFIELD, Boston, Agent, N. E. States.
Ladies by enclosing $1 by mail will have the Pills sent confidentially to any address.

OLD TIMES CHRONICLES, No. 14.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

A DUEL FIFTY YEARS AGO.—Stephen Decatur was born in Newport, R. I., in 1751. In the War of the Revolution he appeared on the theatre of action, and did some service in different ways. At one time he was commander of a privateer.

Of his son Stephen we are to give a more particular account. He was born in Sinnepuxut, Md. In youth he was ardent, spirited, and had many commendable traits of character. At the age of 19 he entered the Navy, as midshipman, and the next year was made Lieutenant.

We do not intend to give an account of his services for the country, further than to say that in the war with England in 1812, he had positions of trust, and showed himself a brave, faithful officer. For his success in capturing the British frigate Macedonian, Congress voted him a gold medal. In 1815, our country having a difficulty with Algiers, he was sent thither and did important service.

When Mr. Monroe was President, he was connected with the Navy. In the Spring of 1820, an unhappy quarrel took place between him and James Barron. The result was a duel. It took place at Bladensburg, near the Maryland border, March 22. The time was morning; the distance was but eight paces. At the word, both fired and both fell. Barron was badly, but not fatally wounded. Decatur received the bullet of his antagonist just above the right hip bone. It passed through to the other side of his body. He was immediately in the arms of his seconds, —carried to his residence in Washington, and lingered in pain till 11 o'clock in the evening, when he expired. His age was 41 years.

The funeral was attended two days later, at 4 in the afternoon. In the procession from his residence, places were assigned to President Monroe, Chief Judge Marshall, Members of Congress, Representatives of Foreign Governments, and the citizens in general. The Marine Corps did escort duty, and the whole was carried out on a large scale, yet with great sadness.

As duelling is now held, civil officers would not join in such a procession and ceremony.

☞ On the 25th, at Newburyport, a large quantity of dualin was exploded inside the wreck of the sunken, coal-laden schooner, Globe, by which the wreck was completely destroyed and a column of water fifty feet in diameter, thrown to a height of sixty feet. The shores of the islands near by were covered with spectators to witness the explosion, and the river with sailboats. A large number of distinguished gentlemen and Government officers were also present. Gangway Rock will next be attacked, and a party will soon commence to operate in the river at Haverhill, Mass.

☞ A Boston girl propounds the following conundrum to her sisters of that city:

"Could you love a man who wore false hair on his head, when he had enough of his own? Who painted his face, and improved his form? Who pinched his feet with small shoes, his hands with small gloves, his waists with corsets; and then, as if he had not already deformed himself enough, tied a hug bustle to his back, and thrust tiny mountains of wire into his bosom?" She must be crazy. Who ever heard of a man doing such things?

☞ A very melancholy local event is thus chronicled in the Lewiston Journal.

Four little piggies bound for a frolic,
Ate green apples till one got the colic.
One was so greedy that he swallowed a core;
One munched so hard that he cracked his jaw;
One had the toothache and couldn't chew a bit,
So he swallowed them whole and died in a fit.

☞ Calais, Me., had a $500,000 fire on Saturday. Twelve vessels were burned at the wharves, and three on the stocks; a quarter of a mile of wharf property was destroyed, it being low water at the time of the fire; 20,000,000 feet of lumber, and 85 stores and dwellings were consumed.

Baltimore had a $100,000 fire the same day, and Worcester followed in the evening with a $25,000 one.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 30, 1870.

WAR NEWS. — Prussian reinforcements are pouring into France. Three new armies are to follow.

The Prussian march on Paris continues.

The garrison at Strasbourg made a successful sortie and captured a convoy of cattle and some munitions of war. The city still makes a vigorous resistance.

A Prussian army of 10,000 were repulsed at Verdun on the 20th.

The garrison of Vitry was surrounded Thursday morning by the Prussians, who captured sixteen guns. Two battalions of the French Garde Mobile were annihilated by the Prussian cavalry. Seventeen French officers and 850 soldiers were captured.

The movement of the Prussians along the Aube seems to have been arrested; they are falling back on St. Dizier.

Complaints are frequent of Prussian cruelty to French peasants.

Large re-enforcements have been sent from Paris by the Northern Railway for McMahon's army. The tactics of McMahon appear to be to gather up the broken corps and thereby swell the ranks of his new levies, and then sweep along the borders of Belgium, probably to effect a junction with Bazaine north of Metz. If successful in this McMahon will, it is thought strike the Prussian line of communication at St. Avold.

The Ex-Queen Isabella of Spain has given her palace in Paris for the use of the wounded.

The typhus fever is raging in the Prussian army.

The Paris journals say that the advance of the Crown Prince is fatal to the Prussian campaign.

One hundred and seventy thousand of the Prussian army have been killed and wounded during the war.

With the vast army now assembled the Prussians attacked Epernay but were repulsed.

A letter from Rastadt says that the German loss in killed and wounded at Wissembourg was 7000, at Woerth from 15,000 to 16,000, and at Saarbuck nearly 9000.

McMahon's army is at Stenay. The Emperor is at Rezonville.

Private dispatches report a great battle between the Crown Prince and McMahon, in which the latter was defeated.

M. Gaillardet's dispatch from Paris, says that McMahon's communications with Metz and Bazaine are assured, and confirms the report of a French victory at Stenay and a Prussian repulse at Verdun.

A later dispatch says a great and bloody battle began Saturday evening, at Mouzon, 15 miles from Montmedy, and at last accounts was undecided. 60,000 reinforcements for McMahon from Paris had arrived at Saossons.

MAINE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.—The meeting, which begun at York on Monday, will be continued there to-day, and at Kittery to-morrow. To-day, Tuesday, Mount Agamenticus and other interesting localities will be visited, concluding with a gathering where addresses will be delivered, &c.

On Wednesday, a visit will be made to Kittery, the first town incorporated by Massachusetts in the District of Maine, in 1647, and long the residence of Sir William Pepperell, and similar proceedings will be gone through with.

On Thursday, the members of the Historical Society of Maine will be entained upon "Strawberry Bank," (that is, at the Rockingham House in this city) by the New Hampshire Historical Society, the site of Ancient Piscataqua in 1623, which is the commencement of the history of Portsmouth and of New Hampshire. The entertainment at Strawberry Bank will take place at an early hour of the day, (and for this reason is called a breakfast,) in order to afford time for free interchange and acquaintance among the members of the two State Societies, and the numerous speeches which the occasion is likely to call forth.

THE MAINE HISTORICAL SOCIETY met at the Congregational Church, York, Monday afternoon. By the International Telegraph line we learn that there were addresses by President Woods, Profs. Packard and Sewall of Bowdoin college, Chas. Dean, Cambridge, Fred. Kidder of Boston, John A. Poor of Portland and others. There was a good attendance.

☞ The members of the Illinois Press Association arrived in Boston from Montreal on Saturday evening. The party consists of sixty gentlemen and forty-eight ladies. They are stopping at the American House.

MAINE HISTORY. — Popham day, (which settlement the Maine people claim is older than Plymouth rock,) or a celebration at Sagadahoc, has gradually grown into a State Picnic, and the enlargement of its field by the invitation of the Historical Society of New Hampshire to include the whole Province of Maine, as originally granted, will give fresh interest to the occasion.

On the 10th of August 1622, the territory of New England, from the Merrimac to Sagadahoc, was granted to Sir Fernanda Gorges and John Mason, by the name of the Province of Maine. Afterwards they divided their possessions by the Piscataqua, Mason taking the country lying west of the Piscataqua, which he called New Hampshire, the country of his own home; Gorges called his portion New Somersetshire, being then a resident of Somersetshire, England. This territory of Gorges was afterward called Maine, by his enlarged charter of 1639.

The absorption of Maine into the Province of Massachusetts, produced changes in the history of Maine, and the town (Georgianna) as incorporated by Massachusetts, took the name of York in 1652. But the remains of the old city are left, and here, at a very early day civil government was administered in the same forms of law as now known and practiced, and trial by jury both in civil and criminal cases was here enjoyed, when church government with hierarchical forms, prevailed in Massachusetts.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

THE ROCKINGHAM FAIR. — Messrs. Editors:—In looking over the list of Committees for the Rockingham Fair, I could but notice the singular manner in which they have been selected. For instance: Danville, with 16 members, has 8 committee-men; Kingston, with 11 members, has 10 committee-men; S. Newmarket, 12 members, 7 committee-men; Fremont, 5 members, 5 committee-men; East Kingston, 14 members, 8 committee-men; Exeter, 195 members, 21 committee-men; Portsmouth, 102 members, one committee-man; while Greenland, with 26 members, Newington, 13 members, Nottingham, 5 members, Rye, 8 members, and Seabrook, 5 members, have no committee-men.

Chester, with 21, and N. Hampton, with 25 members, have but 2 committee-men each. Hampton Falls, 31 members, Kensington, 14 members, and Plaistow, 12 members, have 3 committee-men each. Out of all the towns in the County, only 19 are represented at all, or with but one committee-man, leaving nearly half the number of towns without representation.

The above shows some lack somewhere; and a person of any discernment, looking over that list of Committees, would naturally exclaim, "Our family first; Look out for No. One." The numbers of members above given are taken from the printed list of 1866. Again: the time for holding the Fair was fully discussed at the Annual Meeting, and the days fixed; how then can those days be changed? JIMTE.

EXETER, August 29.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

CAMP MEETING AT EPPING.—This meeting is in operation, having commenced on Monday of this week. We will first give an account of the place.

It is two and and a half miles east by north of Epping Corner, a half mile from the Concord & Portsmouth Railroad, and about half that distance from where the Pike tavern used to be.

An Association was formed (as the Secretary, Rev. J. Thurston of Dover, informs us,) some 8 years ago. Twelve acres of woodland were purchased of Mr. Daniel Barber, for one thousand dollars. Afterwards 5 acres more were purchased, for three hundred and forty dollars. Last winter or spring the Association purchased the remainder of the Barber farm, about 80 acres, with the buildings thereon. The price paid is not public. Only a bond for a deed has as yet been obtained, Mr. Barber, senior, having a life claim upon the place.

The ground is admirably adapted for a Camp Meeting. It slopes gently towards the north, from the entrance on the south. The preachers' stand is at the north. From three to four thousand people can see and hear those who preach, if they are so disposed.

The place is well wooded. Just outside of the circle of tents, on the west, is a valuable spring of water; and a little way from this is the Boarding Tent, in which 500 people can be seated at the tables at once. J.

☞ Josiah H. Benton, Jr., Clerk of the New Hampshire Legislature, was in this city on Saturday examining the accounts wherein the City and State are interested. His report will show that the records of our city authorities are kept correctly.

☞ The N. E. Historical Society have erected an elegant new building at No. 18 Somerset Street, Boston.

BRIGHTON CATTLE MARKET,

FOR THE WEEK ENDING, WEDNESDAY, AUG. 24.

[Reported for the Boston Journal.]

At market for the current week—Cattle 2263; Sheep and Lambs 13,604; Swine 3350; number of Western Cattle 1723; Eastern Cattle 683; Northern Cattle and Working Oxen 460. Cattle left over —.

Prices Beef Cattle—Extra $13 25 @ $14 00; first quality $12 50 @ $13 00; second quality $11 00 @ $12 00; third quality $10 50 @ $10 75; poorest grade of coarse Oxen, Bulls, &c., $8 00 @ $9 50 ₱ cwt. (the total weight of hides, tallow and dressed beef.)

Brighton Hides 7@7½c ₱ lb; Country Hides 6¼ @ 7c ₱ lb.

Brighton Tallow 7 @ 7½c per lb; Country Tallow 6 @ 6½c ₱ lb.

Sheep and Lamb Skins 50 @ 75c each; Calf Skins 16 @ 17c ₱ lb.

The Cattle from the West this week were the poorest lot, taken altogether, that has come from that section in any one week this season. The trade for good Cattle was quick and prices from ¼ @ ½c ₱ lb higher than our last quotations. Upon the common grades, on account of the large supply in market, the trade has not been very active, and prices are lower. There were but few extra Cattle in market this week. From Maine there were more good Cattle than has been brought from that State in any one week this year. The large supply of Texas Cattle in market, many of them of poor quality, has a tendency to cause the market for poor grades of Cattle to be dull.

Store Cattle—Yearlings $15 @ $25: two year olds $23 @ $45; three year olds $45 @ $65 ₱ head. Most of the small Cattle that are in a fair condition are bought up to slaughter. Prices depend much upon their value for Beef.

Milch Cows—Extra $35 @ $115; ordinary $50 @ $60; Store Cows $35 @ $55 ₱ head. Prices of Milch Cows do not vary much from week to week. Most of those brought into market for sale are of an ordinary grade, there being but few fancy breeds in market.

Working Oxen—The trade has been quiet for several weeks and a few pairs is all that the market requires. We quote sales at $85, $93, $125, $140, $155, $180, $190, $200 and $230 ₱ pair.

Sheep and Lambs—The trade for Sheep and Lambs has been dull, and prices were lower than those of last week. We quote extra lots at $3 50 @ $5 ₱ head; ordinary lots at $1 50 @ $3 ₱ head; Lambs from $3 @ $5 50 ₱ head, or from 3¼ @ 5½c ₱ lb.

Swine—Store Pigs—None in market. Spring Pigs 12c ₱ lb; retail 13 @ 15c ₱ lb. Fat Hogs—3000 at market; prices 10½ @ 11c ₱ lb.

More than 500,000 people bear testimony to the wonderful curative effects of Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery. It cures Bronchitis, and the worst lingering coughs. As an anti-Bilious medicine for Liver Complaint it has no equal. It permanently cures constipation of the bowels, cleanses and purifies the blood and thereby cures Scrofulous and Syphilitic taints, and all diseases of the skin, as pimples, Blotches, Boils, Rashes and Eruptions. Sold by druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Sound Logic For the Sick.

The invalid has often good reasons to exclaim, "save me from my friends." As a general thing, each of them will have a different medicine to propose, and if he follows all their prescriptions in turn, their well-meant advice may be the death of him. The only sensible course in any case of sickness is to resort promptly to a specific which has stood the test of a long and widely extended public experience, and obtained on solid and sufficient grounds the reputation of a Standard Remedy. This rank among the rusteratives of our day belongs of right, and beyond all dispute, to HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Let those who are taking it at this debilitating season as an invigorant answer for themselves as to its tonic properties. Can any dyspeptic, who has ever used it, question its superiority as a stomachic over every other medicine? Can any person of bilious habit, who has ever taken it for liver complaint doubt its efficiency? It is believed among the tens of thousands who are now using, or who have used it as an alterative and corrective, not one can be found who would exchange it for any other preparation in the known world. For intermittent fevers, nervous debility, constipation, sick stomach, and all complaints arising from indigestion or impoverishment of the blood, it is the only article which can be conscientiously guaranteed, and no one who is thoroughly acquainted with its virtues will allow interested dealers in worthless slops, on which they make a larger profit, to furnish them in the place of the great vegetable restorative.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.

Vegetable "Pain Killer,"

After THIRTY YEARS trial, is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues, from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Physicians of the first respectability recommend it as a most effectual preparation for the extinction of pain. It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, &c., but for Dysentery or Cholera, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Canker, Asthma and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved by the most abundant and convincing testimony, to be an invaluable medicine. Sold by all druggists. dawlms1

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

IF SO, SELECT THE BEST, which is the

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It has proved itself, West, North and South, to be the best Paint known. It will not peel, crack, nor chalk off, and will last twice as long as the best Lead Paints.

It is cheaper, handsomer and more elastic, than the best of other Paints. It is the most convenient Paint made, being mixed, ready for application; it dries rapidly, and retains its shade perfectly, with a beautiful surface and glossy finish, and for years retains its gloss and beauty. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper, making a smooth glossy finish, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injury.

One Gallon of Mixed Lead Paint weighs 20 lbs. and costs $2.72, and will only cover 16 square yds, 2 coats; while one gallon of the Chemical Paint only weighs 10 lbs., and costs but $2.50, and will cover 20 square yds., 2 coats.—thus making a saving of 22 cts., per gallon, besides covering 4 yards more than Lead Paint, and will last twice as long and look far better.

The Chemical Paint is sold by the gallon in quantities to suit purchasers, in 40 different shades and pure white, and will be applied by experienced workmen and satisfaction given in every case, or in case of dissatisfaction in one year after put on, the whole cost of Paint will be refunded.

The sale of these unequalled Paints are daily increasing. Call and examine these ready mixed Paints, both in kegs, and applied to Buildings near you ago, before buying elsewhere, and save your money and money, and beautify your dwelling by using the

FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,

It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Liver is acted on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the vegetable tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the digestion of Iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.

MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel to act on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect medicine. It purifies the blood and imparts IRON to it. It acts on the Liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is a most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons whose blood is poor, and who need Iron and a strengthening medicine. 2moeodawjy26

FREE BRIDGES.—The result of the census taking is not very flattering to the pride of public spirited citizens. The complaint is chronic, that our young men find better encouragement for business elsewhere than at home. Portsmouth people who have travelled abroad extensively report that in the most remote regions they run across young men who have left old Strawberry Bank to better their condition. Some succeed and some do not; but all agree in condemning the lack of public spirit in the place of their nativity. There are others, (a minority, we regret to say,) who remain here, and, if they achieve success, do so in spite of the many.

With as good a harbor as the world affords, our city should be thriving and prosperous with a busy trade and commerce; yet our wharves decay and the arrival of a ship is rarely witnessed.

A proper public spirit needs development that profit may come of enterprise. Our citizens pay more than is necessary for their daily living because of the want of public spirit. Our city is hedged in on one side as if by a wall, by toll bridges. The expenditures of $30,000 for the purchase of those bridges would repay us tenfold in a short time.

We hear of a case of a prominent citizen, who walked over Portsmouth bridge to Kittery and found there a farmer with a load of poultry. On being asked the price he said he would sell the load at 12 1-2 cents per lb. "Why don't you take them to Portsmouth," inquired our citizen. "Oh! I've tried that with wood, hay and all kinds of marketable produce," said the farmer, "and it don't pay. They tax us for going into Portsmouth and for going out. I prefer selling on this side, for smaller prices, than to loaf around Market Square for a day at a cost of a dollar or more and tolls both ways."

In a short time the citizen above mentioned returned, and, on passing the farmer, ascertained that the load of poultry had been sold to a Portsmouth dealer at 12 1-2 cents per lb. for the lot. The farmer was satisfied with his trade and so should the purchaser have been, for that same poultry was retailed to our citizens at 45 cents per lb.

This is only one of many cases that daily occur. The Maine people are not the only ones shut out from our markets. Vessels frequently come into our lower harbor with produce, which is sold at Newcastle at two-thirds the market prices of Portsmouth; and our citizens pay higher rates because the tolls over the Newcastle bridges keep these commodities from them.

The cheaper the necessaries of life are in this city, the more desirable will be the place for permanent residents; and the more desirable the residence, the more will property be enchanced in value. The purchase of the bridges seems rather an extensive investment, at first thought, but we doubt not would be a profitable affair for rich and poor, for a man can better pay an increase of 5 per cent in taxes than to continue paying 10 or 15 per cent more for his daily food because of toll bridges.

We hear it estimated that the Newcastle bridges might be purchased for from $7,000 to $10,000, and that Government would willingly bear one-third the expense of the purchase and Newcastle another third, as well as their share of the expense of repairs. Why may not our city bear an equal share of such expense? We are confident that though the investment be small the profits from the transaction would soon learn our citizens that the previous neglect to do so had cost them many thousands of dollars.

☞ We are indebted to our old friend, Mr. Lowell Jenness of this city, for a sample of early grapes, of good quality, from his garden. They are of the Hartford Prolific variety, and are sweet and rich, and of fine color and bloom. He cut bunches fully ripe, Aug. 21st. We have rarely eaten so good grapes, raised out of doors in this climate. Mr. Jenness thinks there are two varieties of the Prolific, (as of the Vicar of Winkfield Pear) and we are inclined to believe it, for these are more blue than most we have seen of the sort, and not at all foxy.

☞ The time for saving the 4 per cent discount on your taxes will expire to-morrow. Wednesday will be the last day of grace.

☞ We had sufficient rain to lay the dust, on Monday, but not enough to allay the fears of a great drought.

☞ Adjourned Meeting of Mechanic Association this (Tuesday) evening.

☞ Steamer Appledore was chartered for Wells Beach on Sunday last, —but only a small number appearing for the trip, arrangements were made to visit the Shoals, and the party highly enjoyed the beautiful day, and a capital dinner at the Appledore House. A large number of visitors yet remain there—150 on Sunday.

Messrs. Laighton are making arrangements to enlarge their accommodations, by the erection of a new wing, easterly to their house, 85 feet in length, similar to the old, or west wing, and extending to the hill, so that one can step from the piazza upon the hillside. The front piazza will then be 500 feet in direct, continuous length. The dining room is also to be enlarged, so as to accommodate 500 guests; the number for a month this season, having been 350. The steamer will also probably make two trips daily next season. Messrs. Laighton are also constructing a bathing dock or basin in front of the hotel, and will put up dressing houses convenient. The success of the Shoals is surprising, and the premises are constantly being improved on both islands.

At Gosport, we notice that one of the Turk's heads has been blown or knocked from Sir John Smith's monument, and another has lost his turban. In a situation so greatly exposed to the weather, and otherwise, such a structure ought to be watched, looked after and repaired yearly. The Atlantic and Gosport Houses, on Star Island, are very neat and creditable structures.

Correspondence of the Chronicle and Gazette.

KITTERY, ME., Aug. 29.

Rev. Dr. Peabody of your city preached to a large and appreciative audience before the 1st Universalist Society at Armory Hall last Sunday afternoon; seldom if ever have the citizens of Kittery been afforded the opportunity of listening to a more eloquent discourse than that of Dr. Peabody's on the occasion referred to. On this, as on other occasions, Rev. Mr. DeNormandie's presence was very gratifying.

Under the fostering care of Rev. Mr. Bicknell, the 1st Universalist Society in Kittery is rapidly resolving itself into a charge of which its denomination may rank among the first—in point of spirit and earnestness. Through the liberality of our enterprising young physician, Dr. R. M. Otis, the Society has become the recipient of a fine lot for a Church, which will in all probability be erected within a year. A feeling of attachment not to be easily shaken is very manifest among the members of his little flock for its beloved pastor. Before concluding this communication, I cannot forbear mentioning the manifest feelings of gratitude felt by society and pastor towards the ladies and gentlemen through whose kindness and musical talents they are furnished with one of the best choirs in town—Mr. S. R. James, a gentleman of rare musical talent and well known to musical circles in this vicinity officiating as leader.

Wednesday next the Maine Historical Society will hold a "field day" in this town. The occasion being one of an unusual interest, a hearty welcome awaits the distinguished visitors. Through the generosity of the citizens of Kittery ample provision has been made for the entertainment of the society during its brief stay. The day will close with a conference meeting at Armory Hall, commencing at 7 o'clock, to which the citizens of the town have been cordially invited.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, its estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and from the date of to-day principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at a distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by every body as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compound. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, where they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhea, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawjel6odsm

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made one hundred rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

RICHARDSON'S

LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pockethandkerchief to a

LARGE BED SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you will use this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

GOOD IDEA.—Chicago arrests people for jumping upon cars in motion.

☞ Twenty-five boys from the New York schoolship Mercury, while out rowing Saturday, threw the boatswain overboard and escaped to the city. The boatswain was rescued, and ten of the boys captured.

GRATITUDE.—A benevolent individual of Westbrook lost his vest the other day containing $250, a bank book, gold watch, &c. It was found by a boatman who was taken to the owner's house and treated liberally to sour apples.

New Hampshire Items.

In compliance with an order of the Selectmen, the barber shops in Great Falls will be closed on Sundays.

300 weavers are wanted by the Great Falls Manufacturing Company.

Four years ago the Nashua Manufacturing Company put in steam power, against a day of need. The engine was a massive affair of 275 horse power. For four years the huge engine has been unused. The occasion that should call its giant energies into action has at last come. The drouth has dried up the Nashua until it is now but a little more than a respectable brook, and it is no longer equal to the demand upon it. The great engine of the Nashua company is now in motion, and for the first time the water-power of Nashua is superseded by steam. It takes five tons of coal per day to feed the monster.

Mrs. Sylvanus Holman, of Fitzwilliam, was seriously injured in the following manner, a few days since: Her husband was trashing with horse-power in an adjoining barn, and having gone to call him to dinner, she thoughtlessly put some straw into the hopper as she was passing the machine, but allowed her hand to come in contact with the cylinder, which was revolving very fast, and it was instantly caught in the teeth and literally torn to pieces. Amputation above the wrist has been performed.

HORSES IN FLY TIME.—From a timely and humane article in the N. E. Farmer, we extract a few hints, which we have often wondered that more people do not take for themselves, or rather for their suffering dumb beasts. And we do not see why flies may not and should be kept from cattle, as well as horses:

If it is light, and the air is confined, flies, in any number, will find a horse and become his tormentors during nearly all the daylight hours. There is no rest for the poor animal. He cannot get away from his tormentors. He pounds the floor incessantly to keep them off, breaks the planks that he stands on, and fatigues himself with constant exertion in trying to protect himself. So the poor horse stamps with his feet, switches with his tail, and swings his head from side to side, while hungry swarm after swarm succeed each other, until darkness compels them to suspend their voracious attacks. So the horse requires more feed in consequence of this exertion, and will often lose flesh, though working but little and fed highly.

Now all this is unnecessary, and ought not to be so. A little care, and a very little genius, will prevent it all. Throw open the windows, and hang over them an old piece of carpeting, horse-blanket, or any other cloth that will exclude the light. Keep the stalls dark, but admit light enough before the horses to enable them to see clearly, if possible. In very hot weather, close the doors and windows during the day and open them at night. In this arrangement, horses will stand just as quietly in their stalls through the hot weather as they do in the winter. They can stand at rest or asleep at will, eat less, and are better able to work than when constantly tormented by flies.

It is a matter of surprise that so many persons—persons who are great lovers of the horse, too—neglect these faithful animals in this particular. They see that they are well fed and groomed; that they are not driven too hard, or suffer from cold, and yet allow them to be eaten alive during the heats of summer! In some neighborhoods, the stamping of horses in the stables may be heard all around during all the long summer days. On some farms the noise is as familiar as the cricket's song in an August evening. A radical change in this matter ought to take place everywhere.

When on the road, or on the farm at work, the horse is in a defenceless condition. He is buckled up, strapped up, and hitched up, so that he can scarcely turn right or left to defend himself, and yet very little is done to protect him from annoyances which sometimes well nigh lead him to madness. All this is allowed, when most of it might be prevented by a few yards of the thinnest cotton cloth, or nets, or grass cloths made for the purpose.

The following formula is given in one of the late Dr. Dadd's books, to protect animals against the torture of flies and insects:—

Walnut leaves	4 ounces.
Lobelia leaves	4 "
Boiling water	1 gallon.

When cool, strain it, and add four ounces of the tincture of aloes, and apply a small quantity to the surface by means of a sponge.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.

A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.

Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for useful purposes by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it.

If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

A CARD TO THE LADIES.
DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILL,
FOR FEMALES.
Infallible in correcting irregularities, and removing obstructions of the monthly period. It is over forty years since these now so well known pills were first brought to notice by Dr. Duponco, of Paris, during which time they have been extensively and successfully used by some of the leading physicians, with unparalleled success. Ladies in poor health, either married or single, suffering from any of the Complaints peculiar to Females, will find the Duponco Golden Pills invaluable, viz., General Debility, Headache, Lassitude, Loss of Appetite, Mental Depression, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Loins, Bearing-down Pains, Palpitation of the Heart, Retained, Excessive, Irregular or Painful Menstruation, Rush of Blood to Head, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Fatigue on any slight exertion, and particularly that most annoying, weakening ailment, so common among Females, married and single, the Leucorrhœa or Whites. Females in every period of life will find Duponco's Pills a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. They invigorate the debilitated and delicate, and by regulating and strengthening the system, prepare the youthful constitution for the duties of life, and when taken by those in middle life or old age they prove a perfect blessing. There is nothing in the pills that can do injury to life or health. Safe in their operation, perpetual in their happy influences upon the Nerves, the Mind and the entire organization.
S. D. HOWE, Proprietor, N. Y. ALVAN LITTLEFIELD, Boston, Agent, N. E. States.
Ladies by enclosing $1 by mail will have the Pills sent confidentially to any address.

The Chronicle.

YOUTH'S FAREWELL.

When love is young, and life is strong,
The minutes sing a siren's song;
The harp, the trumpet, and the lute,
The pipe or string, all seem to suit
A long, and endless day.

The music of the fleeting hour
Draws jocund health to lady's bower,
There the so giddy senses chime,
That every common word seems rhyme,
And dances on its way.

To this soon shows the other side,
For that which comes too can divide;
Soft youth dies out by living on,
The pressure and the kiss are gone,
And flies the word "Farewell."

As young youth flags, the watchers see
How all good gifts wing-makers be;
They yield a taste, and then they die,
As favors pass the palate by,
In ecstacy's farewell.

Note upon note dies all along
The mellow cadence of a song;
So must youth float toward age and night,
See grief, taste death, hear loves take flight,
And dying coo "Farewell."

MRS. PARTINGTON ON THE COOLIES. "As for the coolers coming here," said Mrs. Partington, as she wiped her brow with the old bandanna handkerchief, bearing the pictorial representation of the battle of Lake Erie, "I should say let 'em come; for goodness knows it is hot enough, with every rag of one's clothes so satiated with moisture, that one almost wishes to be a great white bear and sit on the top of the North Pole, if it would be proper, and ice so dear! The more of 'em the better; I should say, with the mockery at ninety, and going up at that, goodness help us! Oh, if heaven would only freeze the ponds over in summer, what a luxury it would be, with ice for picnics, and no thanks to the monopolarizers, who are taking advantage of folks extremities, and are pluching 'em to make em' pay, so that a ten cent ice cream isn't enough to fill a hollow tooth with, if anybody should want to, and ice lemonade is not to be thought of without paying for it, and the Lord knows where it will it end, unless the coolers come. She stopped, exhausted in idea and breath, wiping her face with her handkerchief, while like sat beside the full milk-pan with a boat in it, the sails of which he was filling by fanning it with Mrs. P.'s great black Sunday fan with the red flowers on it, that she had just laid away in the drawer up stairs.

IN STATU QUO.—A friend in Wooster, Ohio, sends the following amusing instance of the simplicity of the African lad, as evinced in his first efforts to attain a knowledge of the English vocabulary. The boy seven or eight years old, Dan by name, was set to learn words in an old spelling-book that had been tossed about the house. He soon became interested in watching a race between a small boy and Time, as represented by an engraving in the book, and every spare moment of the day that he could find was devoted to the contemplation of the (to him) exciting chase.

Night finally compelled the young African to lay aside the book which his race at the present day manifest so much pleasure in studying, and to retreat to his pallet, where no doubt, he dreamed of "dat big fellow wid de mowin' scyve," as he called him, in pursuit of the poor frightened boy. Dan was up with the lark the next morning, and the first thing he did was to get the speller and look for his heroes of the race. He gazed intently for an instant on the picture, and then, with a wild scream of delight, exclaimed, as he danced about the old kitchen, "He ain't cotched 'im yit—Golly! he ain't cotched 'im yit!"—Harper's Magazine.

SLEEPING TOGETHER.—The Laws of Life says: "More quarrels arise between brothers, between sisters, between hired girls, between school girls, between clerks in stores, between apprentices, between hired men, between husbands and wives, owing to electrical changes through which their nervous system go by lodging together night after night under the same bedclothes, than by any other disturbing cause. There is nothing that will derange the nervous system of a person who is eliminative in nervous force as to lie all night in bed with another person who is absorbent in nervous force. The absorber will go to sleep and rest all night, while the eliminator will be tumbling, tossing, restless and nervous, and wake up in the morning fretting, peevish, fault finding and discouraged. No two persons, no matter who they are, should habitually sleep together. One will thrive and the other will lose. This is the law; and in the married life it is defied almost universally."

—A Census taker recently asked a servant girl in the vicinity of Boston, how many regular boarders there were in the house. She informed him that there were fifteen boarders in all, but "not more'n four of 'em is steady; the rest is dimmecrats!"

—If half the pains were taken by some people to perform the labor allotted to them that are taken by them to avoid it, we should hear much less said about the troubles of life, and see much more actually completed.

DRY GOODS NOTICE.
☞ ON OR BEFORE October 1st, 1870, I shall withdraw from the firm now transacting business under the name and style of STEPHEN H. SIMES & Co., as it will be for the interest of both partners to reduce the Stock to as low a point as possible, without breaking up the usual good assortment, the Goods now on hand, or that may be received, (equal in quality and style to any to be found in New Hampshire) will be offered low.
With gratitude to very many kind friends who for a long series of years have honored me with their continuous patronage and to the public generally, I respectfully solicit a continuance.
All persons having demands against me will please present them for payment, and those indebted to the firm for goods purchased previous to January 1st, 1870, are respectfully requested to settle, as early as possible after this date. jy7

HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and efficacious for preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 31, 1870.

WAR TALK.—The Prussian General Steinmetz has been displaced, and because of the great losses incurred in his forces, his army has been incorporated with that of the Crown Prince.

A republican conspiracy has been discovered in South Germany.

The French General Failly has been deprived of his command because he overlooked and left at Chalons 100 cannon, which would have fallen into the hands of the enemy, had not Count Palikao taken the precaution to have the camp inspected after its evacuation.

It is said that the French advance repulsed the Prussians at Attigny, a few miles north-west of Vouziers. McMahon is reported to be in the Ardennes forest, and Bazaine between Metz, Charey and Etain. A later dispatch says that General Steinmetz is marching northward from Metz, pursuing McMahon to prevent him from disturbing the Prussian force investing Metz.

The Constitutionnel says that the army of the Prince Royal has been reenforced by part of the army of Frederick Charles, and is marching on Paris through the valleys of Aube and the Seine. The Prussians must know how adventurous is such an attempt, and must be aware of the peril into which they are leading their main army. Marshal McMahon may cut off their communication and place them between two fires. To avoid this danger the Prussians have made great efforts. They three times attacked Marshal Bazaine with overwhelming forces, which the French army successfully resisted. The enemy then, despairing of being able to conquer him, decided to keep Bazaine checked, and march on Paris. From Paris to Sierck, the nearest point on the German frontier, is more than 100 leagues. This line the Prussians must defend against our armies, numberless sharpshooters and Garde Mobile. In order to subsist on our territory 600,000 invading Prussians, they must extend their lines vastly, and must disperse their forces —the thing so fatal to us in the beginning of the campaign. Our revenge, says the Constitutionnel, in conclusion, is near.

The Boston Advertiser closes an editorial on the war thus:—

An advance from Metz, on the western side, of only fourteen miles to Remilly, would strike the only line of railroad by which the Prussians communicate with their rear, while on the left bank of the Moselle the united armies of the French moving against any force inferior in numbers, would inflict a disaster upon the Prussian arms which it would be difficult for them to retrieve.

A dispatch from Mezieres in France, adjoining the frontier of Belgium, reports that desperate three day's fighting occurred on the 22d, 24th and 25th, between the armies of Prince Frederick Charles and Marshal McMahon, in which the Prussians were finally defeated, with a loss of 50,000 men. The battles are said to have been fought to the west of Montemedy, upon the line of the Meuse. The report, however, is received with doubt. It is also rumored that in consequence of the defeat of the army of Prince Frederick Charles, the advance of the Crown Prince has been checked and that he will fall back in order to effect a junction with Prince Frederice Charles between Bar le Duc and Verdun.

The special correspondent of the Tribune writes from Rethel, on Friday, as follows: — 10,000 or more of fresh troops arrived from Paris, via Rheims, last night. They have been pouring through here all this morning. I am, therefore, delayed. The Emperor left early this morning. He was cheered in the streets. He starts for Mezieres.

Private dispatches received from London, say that a great battle is going on. The fighting has been in progress for the last forty-eight hours, but the result is still uncertain. The engagement is believed to have covered miles of wooded ground, between Stenay and Verdün. The losses were heavy on both sides.

Russia is preparing to mingle in the European war.

On the 27th five German detachments routed six detachments of French cavalry near Buzancy, in the department of Ardennes. The Germans belonged to the 4th army, which is now scouring the Eastern departments, in order to prevent communication between McMahon and Bazaine.

The following from the French War Office is just received:—

There are nearly 900,000 men in the triangle formed by the lines running from Rheims to Rethel and Vourziers. Bazaine is not shut up. He has 120,000 men and McMahon is 180,000 strong. They are stealing two marches on the Prince Royal, who is two days ahead of Prince Frederick Charles. It is hoped that the latter cannot come up in time. Fifty thousand men left Paris on Monday for the vicinity of Rethel. It is said that the Prussian force there is 500,000 strong.

Belgian troops are hastening to the front to protect the border.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS.—From a document just issued by the Union Republican Congressional Committee, the fact may be learned that the public debt has been reduced during the sixteen months of Gen. Grant's administration $139,069,687 17, nearly one hundred and forty millions of dollars. By this reduction the people are relieved from an annual tax of $8,334,145 23. The sinking fund, for extinguishing the debt, amounted to nearly one hundred and twenty-four millions of dollars on the 30th of June of the present year. The value of United States securities has increased since the close of Andy Johnson's term, in the London market, from 89.9 to 99.2, and in the New York market from a gold rate of 89.4 to 99.4 —an advance of ten per cent.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1870, the receipts of the Government were $411,255,477, 66, and the expenditures $292,124,052 18—making the excess of receipts $129,131,425 45. A comparison of the expenditures of the first year of Grant and the last year of Johnson, exhibits a saving under the former of fifty-six and a half millions. The ordinary cost of running the Government the past year, deducting the outlay resulting from the war, was only eighty millions of dollars, which reduced to a gold basis, would be sixty-five millions.

Estimating the population of the United States at 40,000,000, the expense for the year of President Grant's administration ending June 30, 1870, is, per capita $1 64 1-8. For the year 1860 the expenditures of the Government were $63,025,789 34 gold, the population being about 31,400,000, a per capita, of $27-10—showing a proportionate expenditure of eighteen per cent. less in 1870 than in 1860 upon the same basis. As crowning the above favorable account of the management of national affairs by the Republicans, it may be stated that since the downfall of the rebellion the burden of taxation has been removed, by a Republican Congress, from more than ten thousand articles! The reduction of internal taxation, for the last five years, has been $228,212,000. The financial exhibit is very satisfactory as a whole.

☞ The Treasury Department has just completed a statement which shows the steady increase in the collection of internal revenue during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1870, over the preceding fiscal year. The table for the principal articles is as follows:—

	1869	1870
Tax collected on spirits	$45,628,000	$55,537,000
Tax collected on tobacco	23,430,000	31,318,000
Tax collected on fermented liquors	6,099,000	6,260,000
Tax collected on gross receipts	6,300,000	6,884,000
Tax collected on sales	8,206,000	8,835,000
Tax collected on income	31,229,000	36,243,000
Tax collected from other sources	36,000,000	39,000,000
Total	$159,124,000	$183,634,000

NAVAL.—The department has published a list of the rear admirals, commodores, captains and commanders, showing the date on which they will retire and the promotions consequent, covering a period of twenty-five years. According to the list, J. B. Marston, commodore, was retired Saturday, thus promoting Captain Mullany to be commodore. Rear Admiral Rowan will retire on the 25th of December next, thus promoting Commodore Jenkins to be rear admiral, and Captain C. R. P. Rodgers to be commodore, vice Jenkins. Rear Admiral Glisson will retire on the 18th of January next, promoting Commodore W. R. Taylor to be rear admiral, and Captain N. Collins to be commodore. Rear Admiral Melancthon Smith will retire May 24, 1871, promoting Commodore P. F. Sands and Captain S. B. Trenchard to be commodores. Rear Admiral Goldsborough will retire July 1, 1871; Rear Admiral Godon, June 18, 1871, promoting Commodore Steadman. Rear Admiral Lanman will retire July 18, 1873, promoting Commodore Pennock. Rear Admiral J. A. Winslow will retire November 19, 1873, promoting Commodore J. S. Worden. Within the next two years nineteen rear admirals will be retired, some of whom, according to the present list are yet to be promoted to that rank.

☞ The Brunswick, Me., Telegraph is not orthodox on the war question and doesn't hesitate to declare itself. It says:

The man who says Prussia was not prepared for war is the magnificent liar of all time; he who says that the war is Protestant vs. Catholic is the most stupendous fool ever ground out. If Catholic vs. Protestant we hope the Catholic will whip the Protestant "to flinders," as the elegant expression is. We hope further if this hellish contest must go on it will provide first class funerals for King William and Bismarck, but not for the Crown Prince or Prince Royal, as both show themselves too good soldiers to hold animosity against them.

Won't the Telegraph please include Napoleon among the first class funerals?

☞ At Girardville, Pa., seven persons were killed by falling 300 feet.

A VERY SHORT CORNER.—"On the score of merit we have half a dozen naval officers whom (the position of Admiral) would become better than Porter. He may occupy the place but he never can fill it. He would clatter round in it like a pea in a child's rattle." Portland Press, Aug. 22.

"No man in our naval service is more worthy to receive the mantle of Admiral Farragut than David D. Porter."—Portland Press, Aug. 29.

There's no knowing what a week will bring forth.

New Hampshire Items.

Robert Guilford of Hooksett met with a serious accident on Saturday last. He fired off a musket and it exploded, lacerating one of his hands very badly. The thumb was nearly torn off.

The Shaker Mills at Enfield have suspended work and discharged all their hands.

New Hampshire producing two-fifths of all the starch made in the country, the price of that article has already been affected by the drouth in this State, which has greatly injured the potato crop.

In Concord, Sunday morning, a little son of George A. Badger, two years old, set his frock on fire while playing with matches, and was terribly burned about the head, breast, and arms. It is feared the injuries are fatal.

The census returns show a gain in every town but one of Coos County, while every town in Carroll has fallen off. It is thought that Merrimack County about holds its own, the rural towns losing, but Concord and some manufacturing places largely gaining. The population of Concord is estimated at nearly 13,000.

Two crushers are now operating at the gold mines in Littleton with good and satisfactory results.

One hundred and eleven trotting horses have already been entered for the fair at Manchester.

There was a heavy frost in many parts of the State on Friday night last.

Jennie Gray of Barrington, about twenty-seven years old, was found drowned in Long Pond the other day, and is supposed to have committed suicide, although no reason can be assigned for the act.

☞ The Rockingham Association of Universalists held its annual session in the Free Will Baptist meeting-house in Stratham on the 24th and 25th. Discourses were preached by Revs. S. S. Fletcher of Exeter, M. Goodrich of Pawtucket, R. I., S. H. McCollester, Nashua, and J. G. Adams of Lowell. It was a meeting of much interest. Contributions to the Murray Centenary Fund were made, and a resolution offered by Rev. Mr. Adams in fraternal memory of the late T. H. Miller of Portsmouth, was unanimously passed.

☞ The North German consul in New York sent $25,000 to Berlin, Saturday, for the aid of the wounded, making a total of $85,090 since the opening of the war.

Many suffer rather than take nauseous medicines. All who suffer from coughs, colds, irritation of the bronchial tubes or tendency to consumption, will find in Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry a remedy as agreeable to the palate as effectual in removing disease. The Balsam is a pleasant remedy; it is a safe remedy; it is a powerful remedy; it is a speedy remedy; it is a remedy that cures.

HAWK, HAWK, SPIT, SPIT, BLOW, BLOW, and disgust everybody with the offensive odor from your Catarrh, just because some fogy doctor who has not discovered and will not believe that the world moves, tells you that it cannot be cured. The proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will pay $500 reward for a case of Catarrh he cannot cure. Sold by druggists, or send sixty cents to R. V. Pierce, M. D., 133 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y., for it. A pamphlet free. Beware of counterfeits and worthless imitations. Remember that the Genuine has Dr. Pierce's private Government Stamp upon each package. This Stamp issued by the United States Government expressly for stamping Dr. Pierce's medicines, hash is portrait, name and address, engraved upon it, and need not be mistaken.

FATAL TO THE TEETH — Are all acrid preparations. They may bleach the enamel, but they as surely dissolve and destroy it. The mild, genial, balsamic and preservative SOZODONT, impregnated with the SAPONIN of the famous tropical Soap Tree, of Chili, is the only absolutely safe article of its kind in the market, and protects the Teeth from all destructive influences, as well as keeps them free from tartar.

"SPALDING'S GLUE," handy and useful.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Sound Logic For the Sick.

The invalid has often good reasons to exclaim, "save me from my friends." As a general thing, each of them will have a different medicine to propose, and if he follows all their prescriptions in turn, their well-meant advice may be the death of him. The only sensible course in any case of sickness is to resort promptly to a specific which has stood the test of a long and widely extended public experience, and obtained on solid and sufficient grounds the reputation of a Standard Remedy. This rank among the restoratives of our day belongs of right, and beyond all dispute, to HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Let those who are taking it at this debilitating season as an invigorant answer for themselves as to its tonic properties. Can any dyspeptic, who has ever used it, question its superiority as a stomachic over every other medicine? Can any person of bilious habit, who has ever taken it for liver complaint doubt its efficiency? It is beyond among the ranks of thousands who are now using, or who have used it as an alterative and corrective, not one can be found who would exchange it for any other preparation in the known world. For intermittent fevers, nervous debility, constipation, sick stomach, and all complaints arising from indigestion or impoverishment of the blood, it is the only article which can be conscientiously guaranteed, and no one who is thoroughly acquainted with its virtues will allow interested dealers in worthless slops, on which they make a larger profit, to palm them in the place of the great vegetable restorative.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.

This splendid Hair Dye is the best in the world: the only true and perfect Dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effect of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the Hair soft and beautiful, black or brown. Sold by all Druggist and Perfumers, and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond Street, New York. 1ydawj2

1840. PERRY DAVIS' 1870.

Vegetable "Pain Killer."

After THIRTY YEARS trial, is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues, from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Physicians of the first respectability recommend it as a most effecual preparation for the extinction of pain. It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, &c., but for Dysentery or Diarrhœa, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Cramps, Asthma and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved by the most abundant and convincing testimony, to be an invaluable medicine. Sold by all druggists. dawlmsl

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Special Meeting—Portsmouth, G. F. & C. R. R.
Special Meeting—Eastern Railroad in N. H.
Wanted—Two Female Teachers.

THE CENTENARY MEETING in the Pleasant Street (Universalist) Church, Monday evening, was large and enthusiastic, the spacious edifice being filled at an early hour. The meeting was in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the introduction of the distinctive faith of Universalism into this country. It is proposed by this denomination to raise a Centenary Fund of $200,000, the income of which is to be used for various missionary and educational purposes.

The meeting was opened with prayer and a few brief remarks, by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Bicknell, who was followed by the celebrated lady speaker, Mrs. Mary A. Livermore of Boston, in an eloquent and powerful address, which held the large audience in close attention for nearly an hour. Mrs. Livermore was followed by Rev. A. J. Patterson of Boston, whose eloquence and ability are too well known in this vicinity to need any encomium from us.

After the addresses a contribution was taken up for the Fund, and to meet the assessment of $750 laid upon this Society. In less than ten minutes, not only was the quota of the Society full, but the sum was speedily swelled to $1131, — a part of which goes to reduce a small debt upon their new organ. Considering that this Society has just raised $1600 by subscription, for their organ, this prompt and liberal response to an outside call was certainly noble and generous.

The exercises were interspersed with some excellent singing, and the organ exhibited its power and richness of tone; and every one of the large concourse present seemed to fully enjoy the occasion.

Communication.

COMMON SENSE VS. LEGAL QUIBBLES. On the 29th of August, a complaint was entered before the Police Court against Augustus Knox, for stealing. The complaint was that he "took, stole and carried away" the goods specified in the complaint. As theft is, in and of itself, felonious, why is it essential to insert the latter word in the complaint? But because it was not before the word "took," the Justice quashed the complaint, and let the prisoner go. We have ever been opposed to legal quibbles and mere technicalities, which were borrowed from English forms. Common sense is defined to be common reason; and if a complaint sets forth an offence correctly, in substance, legal quibbles ought to be overruled. Criminals have too often escaped justice by what are termed legal exceptions to complaints, or indictments, that described an offence correctly in substance. JUSTICE.

THAT RARE COMBINATION OF TALENT that draws crowded houses and brings them down, the Delehanty, Hengler and Bloodgood company, are to give one of their unique and mirthful entertainments at the Temple, to-morrow (Thursday) evening, and the signs of the times indicate a hearty reception. Harry Bloodgood is an old favorite, and Delehanty and Hengler can count on their greeting by remembering the occasion of their last appearance. Besides these comic celebrities, there are many others in the company who are favorites with the amusement loving public.

☞ Robert B. Lincoln, formerly Assistant Draughtsman in the Dep't of Steam Engineering at this Navy Yard, has been appointed Draughtsman vice Benj. F. Lewis, resigned on account of ill health. We are pleased to chronicle this merited promotion, while we regret the necessity which caused Mr. Lewis' resignation.

☞ A boy by the name of Blake, at Kittery Point, was seriously injured by being thrown from a carriage, a day or two ago, the horses having taken fright and run away. His arm was broken, and he was severely bruised. Dr. M. F. Wentworth, of Kittery, attended him.

☞ Dr. Strong has returned, after a short absence, and will administer the invigorating, health-renewing, humor-killing, cleansing, and appetite-creating Sulphur Baths, as heretofore, at No. 7 Ladd street.

☞ The portion of the old building opposite the Academy, on Congress Street, owned by Mr. J. M. Edmonds, is being made into a store.

☞ The farmers say they have never before known flies so troublesome to horses and cattle, as this season. Shoo fly—time flies.

☞ The rumors that Jim Fisk has tried to buy the Shoals, we think are without foundation.

THE DYING ADMIRAL.

BY GEORGE B. GRIFFITH.

Not where the cannons' roar the ocean shook,
Nor midst the awful darkness of the strife;
But where his closing eyes on loved ones look,
The grand old hero breathes away his life!
More dear than clasp of brightest wreathes of Fame,
That fond wife's hand upon his aching head;
More prized than all the prestige of his name,
The holy tears of love around him shed!
The guardian angel who beside him stood,
When to the fore-top lashed in Mobile-Bay,
And said, in answer to his prayerful mood,
"Go forward Farragut, and win the day —,"
Clothed in the splendor of a higher sphere,
As messenger immortal o'er him bent,
And whispered words of comfort to his ear;
By the great Ruler of all nation's sent!
The chosen few who loved and knew him best,
With bated breath await the dreaded hour;—
But calmly as the Christian seeking rest,
His heart was conscious of life's waning power.
Beyond the casement, waving fold o'er fold,
The rustle of our dear old flag he heard;
Morn furnished all its stars with molten gold,
Whose glory on the sea lay in his word!
Clear as a vestal flame, the blue skies arch
Around the quiet port, the ancient town;
The faithful sun has reached his mid-day march,
And peace has come for him of great renown!
Yes, by the banks of fair Piscataqua,
Our Navy's pride thro' death was more than blest,
And evermore its rippling waters may
Sing dirges for the noble hero's rest!

Charlestown, Mass., Aug., 1870.

MAINE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.—By the following notice it will be seen that the public are invited to take part in the proceedings at Kittery this (Wednesday) evening:

NOTICE.—There will be a field meeting of the Maine Historical Society in Kittery this day, Wednesday. The Society desire at this meeting to acquire a more perfect knowledge of the geography of Kittery; to view any relics which survive, of the action of the past centuries; to visit the grounds made memorable by any interesting events of antiquity; to inspire the public with a deeper interest in the history of the State, and the inhabitants of Kittery with a more active sense of the importance of preserving the facts of their town history. And they would respectfully request of all persons who have in their houses any documents, letters or papers of whatever kind, of the olden time, that they would submit them to their inspection, and communicate to them any reliable traditions which have not yet had a place in written history.

In the evening there will be a conference meeting in Armory Hall, at 7 o'clock. All persons are invited to attend, and freely to take part in it.

E. E. BOURNE, Chairman.

Among the distinguished gentlemen who have arrived and are expected to be present at the meetings, are Pres. Woods, Pres. Harris, Prof. Packard, Joseph Titcomb, Rev. Dr. Ballard, Prof. J. Sewall, Wm. D. Sewall, Hon. J. A. Poor, Gen. J. M. Brown, Rufus K. Sewall, E. C. Bailey, Rev. Mr. Dike of Maine, Hon. Daniel W. Gooch, F. Kidder, John H. Sheppard, C. W. Tuttle, James K. Wiggin, Rev. Mr. Bartlett, Wm. Meredith of Boston and Charles Deane of Cambridge. Gov. Chamberlain, Judge Clifford, Gov. Washburne, Hon. J. W. Bradbury, Hon. S. P. Benson, Hon. C. J. Gilman, J. G. Elder and others, are expected.

☞ Quite a jute panic has prevailed in Bangor lately, among the ladies, and many are the switches, chignons, etc., which have been sacrificed as a holocaust. Microscopes have been in demand, and numerous and hideous are the discoveries which have been made; and the result has been that the articles have been almost wholly discarded as articles of wearing apparel. Go in, jute-bugs; you are working out a much-needed reform in the fashionable world.

NAVAL.—Secretary Robeson has issued orders that on and after October 1, no retired officer of the Navy shall be on active duty except on Lighthouse Boards, Boards of Examination, for promotion and for the retired list, and of the Naval Asylum, unless by special assignment of the President, and that the position of Port Admiral, except at New York, be discontinued after October 1.

☞ There have been twenty-eight deaths at the Rockingham County Farm since September last.

☞ The Muffers are desired to meet at the store of M. T. Betton & Co., this evening at 7 o'clock.

☞ The Vermont election takes place on the 6th of September, Tuesday of next week.

☞ Ex-Minister Motley has arrived home from England.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an unmixed security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to enhance them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, besides paying about 9 per cent., currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return 6 per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more efficacious remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box for the following complaints, which these PILLS rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken, as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawjel6eod4m

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. B. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

RICHARDSON'S

LITTLE WASHER, unlike all others, light and portable, weighing only ten pounds, is sold for the small price of five dollars. Adjusts itself to any article from a Pocket-handkerchief to a

LARGE BED SPREAD,

without alteration. Can be fitted to any tub, and removed at pleasure.

If you do not think this little common sense washing machine, you will do the work of half a day in 2 hours.

RICHARDSON'S LITTLE WASHER does not tear or wear the clothes, no matter how fine the fabric. Clothes are straightened out, and passed back and forth, between the rollers till clean.

Richardson's has taken a Silver Medal in Springfield, Mass., at Mechanic's Fair in 1868, and other places where exhibited.

Additional List of Names of Purchasers who have the Little Washer now in use.

The following list of persons whose orders were taken within three weeks past, and who have all been served with their machines within two weeks, makes the total number (in this city) who have purchased the Little Washer between June 1st and August 16th, 181,—a previously published list of 71 names being omitted in this advertisement.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

THE INSECT WORLD.—Lazy, listless or tired, I know not which, I have spent the last hour in cutting the leaves of a magnificent volume with this title, written by Figuier, translated by Janson and published by the Appletons. What a world! It bears about the same relation to the vertebrate creation that the stories in the Arabian Nights do to the narratives in the Rollo books. Surely fifty such insects as the silkworm, bee, snap-bug, plant louse, and glow-worm, would be enough to baffle the human race! The same creature bearing three forms, the perfect form sometimes three-fold,—masculine, feminine and neuter; creatures whose latest male ancestor was the great-grandfather of their great-grandmother; builders miraculous, and armed with venom in tooth or tail, making a living nest in the skin or entrails of superior animals, —what a travesty of creative wisdom! But why should their species so far outnumber those of all other animals combined? As to the number of individuals: a single termite (not an ant, but mis-called the "African white ant,") is supposed to lay 3,000,000 eggs in a year (p. 407). It make the brain reel to think of all this as the work of one Creator. What can he not do! What is beyond his notice!

Figuier's work contains 576 illustrations, which might be counted many more without fraud, some of them of a whole octavo page, and in a superior style. It occupies itself with the famous insects of the world and the more common ones of France. It contains less letterpress and more engraving than Harris' "Insects Injurious to Vegetation," which makes a good supplement to it. They have in common not one species in twenty. Figuier's has most of curiosities in it; Harris best aids the identification of our pests.

Figuier has also written, and the Appletons have published, the Ocean World, the Vegetable World, the World before the Deluge, and Primitive Man. I have not seen them, but infer from this volume that they are well written and translated, and beautifully got up.

Yours, I. F. H.

BIDDY'S EXPLANATION OF THE WAR. Two worthy domestics, occupying residences vacated by the owners for the summer, were talking across the railing a day or two since, when the individual who removes the ashes ventured to ask Biddy if she could tell him the cause of the war abroad. Miss Biddy, who had plenty of time to read the papers, delivered herself pretty nearly as follows:—

"Well, it is pretty hard to tell the exact difficulty, but from what I hear it appears to me that it is something like this: Suppose Mrs. Spain wanted a girl, and my missis should say that she would recommend Bridget Dolan. Then suppose Mrs. France should say to my missis, you mustn't give Bridget Dolan a recommend, because the Dolan family will became too important. Then my missis says she won't do it, but that don't satisfy Mrs. France, who wants her to promise that she not only never intended to give Bridget a character, but will positively consult Mrs. France before she assents to Mrs. Spain having any other girl. My missis then gets mad and says she'll not do anything of the kind, and so they begin to tear each other's chignons."

Pat. who had placed his basket on the fence and drank in the explanation without moving a muscle, resumed his tour, after remarking: "And is that what's the matter, bad luck to 'em! I thought somebody had been trod on."

—Do you chew tobacco?" asked a lady of a young man in a street car by whose side she displayed her immaculate skirts. "No ma'am," was the reply, "but I can get you a chaw if you like."

A FRENCH RESPIRATOR.—A Mr. Sinclair has lately introduced in Great Britain the respirator invented by M. Gallibert, and shown by him in practical operation at the Paris Exposition in 1867. It is styled the "Ne Plus Ultra Respirator," and consists of an air-tight sack, suspended on the back by shoulder-straps, and filled by means of a pair of bellows in about two minutes with sufficient air to last for forty. The wearer has a species of mask, held on by an elastic band, and pressed tightly to the face by means of a border of fluted india-rubber. To the mouthpiece of this mask is affixed a tube, which the wearer can cause to communicate either with the open air or with two tubes fitted with flap-valves working in opposite directions, and leading to the sack which he wears on his back. By this means the supply of air is not used till actually needed. The utility of this appliance, both for firemen and the exploration of foul air is obvious.—Artizan.

THE RAILROAD CASE.—The bench of Judges of the Supreme Judicial Court assembled in Manchester, Monday, pursuant to adjournment. Judge Nesmith was absent.

The testimony which has recently been taken in the great railroad case between the Directors of the Northern and the Directors of the Concord Railroads were presented to the court in a printed form by one of the counsel on each side. Chief Justice Bellows said that the court proposed to adjourn for a day or two for the purpose of reading the evidence and then to hear arguments of counsel in the case.

Mr. Tappan, one of the counsel for the Northern road, said that counsel on his side were willing to submit the case without argument.

Mr. Bingham, one of the counsel for the Concord road, said he thought the case had better be argued.

The Chief Justice then said that the case would be adjourned until Wednesday at 11 o'clock, A. M.—Manch. Union.

UNCONCERNED.—Larry F——, tells a good story of one of the baggage masters at a station on the Boston and Albany railroad, a fat, good-natured, droll fellow, whose jokes have become quite popular on the road. His name was Bill. A few mornings since, while in the performance of his duty of changing baggage, an ugly little Scotch terrier got in his way, and he gave a smart kick, which sent him over the track yelping. The owner of the dog soon appeared in high dudgeon, wanting to know why he kicked the dog.

"Was that your dog?" asked Bill, with his usual drawl.

"Certainly it was; what right have you to kick him?"

"He's mad," said Bill.

"No, he's not mad, either," said the owner.

"Well I should be if anybody kicked me in that way," responded Bill.

WHO ARE WEAK, whose appetite is poor, whose blood needs iron, who are bilious, whose stomach and nerves need to be strengthened, will be benefitted by

FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,

It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Liver is acted on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the vegetable tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the digestion of Iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.

MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel to act on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect medicine. It purifies the blood and imparts IRON to it. It acts on the Liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is a most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons whose blood is poor, and who need Iron and a strengthening medicine. 2meodawly25

DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILL. FOR FEMALES.

Infallible in correcting irregularities, and removing obstructions of the monthly periods. It is over forty years since these now so well known pills were first brought to notice by Dr. Duponco, of Paris, during which time they have been extensively and successfully used by some of the leading physicians, with unparalleled success. Ladies in poor health, either married or single, suffering from any of the Complaints peculiar to females, will find these Golden Pills invaluable, viz., General Debility, Headache, Faintness, Loss of Appetite, Mental Depression, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Loins, Bearing-down Pains, Palpitation of the Heart, Retained, Excessive, Irregular or Painful Menstruation, Rush of Blood to Head, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Fatigue on any slight exertion, and particularly that most annoying, weakening ailment, so common among Females, both married and single, the Leucorrhœa or Whites. Females in every period of life will find Duponco's Pills a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. They invigorate the debilitated and delicate, and by regulating and strengthening the system, prepare the youthful constitution for the duties of life, and when taken by those in middle life or old age they prove a perfect blessing. There is nothing in the pills that can do injury to life or health. Safe in their operation, perpetual in their happy influence upon the Nerves, the Mind and the entire organization. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor, N. Y. ALVAN LITTLEFIELD, Boston, Agent, N. E. States.

Ladies by enclosing $1 by mail will have the Pills sent confidentially to any address.

ANECDOTE OF MATTHEW THORNTON. The late Hon. Wm. Plumer, in an Address before the N. H. Historical Society in 1853, gave the following anecdote of Matthew Thornton, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence:

John Pickering, afterward Chief Justice, was counsel in a case before the Supreme Court of this State, of which Mr. Thornton was one of the Judges. When in the midst of an earnest argument, he perceived, that Judge Thornton, instead of listening to him, was engaged in reading a book which he held in his hand, and on which, also, he seemed intent; while another of the Judges, with his head reclined on his shoulder and his eyes closed, was giving evidence, quite audible, through the nose, of his happy oblivion of the cares and vexations of Court.

Not unreasonably provoked at this indifference of the Court to his eloquence, the impassioned advocate turned his back short upon the bench, and said with strong emphasis, "Gentlemen of the Jury—my unfortunate client has no hope but in your attention, since the Court, in their wisdom, will not condescend to hear him." This sentence, followed by a dead pause in his speech, brought Court and bar and spectators all to a sudden stand. The jury were wide awake; the sleeping Judge starting suddenly up, rubbed his eyes, and, looking wistfully around for the cause of this unwonted interruption to his slumbers, resumed his seat as suddenly as he had left it, quite abashed at the awkard exhibition which he had made of himself, and but little wiser than when he rose.

Thornton, alone tranquil and unmoved amidst the general excitement, said very innocently, just raising his eyes from his book; "When you have anything to offer, Mr. Pickering, which is pertinent to the case on trial, the Court will be happy to hear you. In the meantime, I may as well resume my reading." The book the Judge was so intently reading was the seductive novel of Tom Jones.

TREATMENT OF SPRAINS AND BRUISES. The best treatment of sprains and bruises is the application of water, of such temperature as is most agreeable. The degree of temperature varies with the temperature of weather and the vigor of the circulation. In a hot day use cool or cold water. If the circulation is low, use warm water. The bruised or sprained part may be immersed in a pail of water, and gently pressed and manipulated with the hand or soft cloth, for ten or fifteen minutes, and even longer in severe cases; after which, wrap up the parts in cloths wet in cold water, and keep quiet. This treatment keeps down the inflammation, and in nine cases out of ten proves a speedy cure. The liniments and filthy ointments so much used for sprains and bruises, do not compare with this simple treatment in efficacy.—Herald of Health.

GOOD MEN MAKE GOOD HORSES.—A horse is never vicious or intractable without a direct cause. If a horse is restive or timorous, you may be sure that these faults arise from defects in his education. He has been treated either awkwardly or brutally. Commence the education of the horse at his birth; accustom him to the presence, voice and sight of man; speak and act gently; caress him; and do not startle him. All chastisement or cruelty confuses the animal and makes him wild. They are good men who make good horses.—Translated from French.

— A gentleman in Galena keeps an ordinary tree-toad in a glass jar half filled with water. Inside the jar is a diminutive ladder, from the bottom of the vessel to the top. Just above the water line is a perch, on which his frogship in dry weather is to be seen sitting perfectly motionless long as the dry season lasts. On the slightest indication of a change in the atmosphere, the frog quits his perch and takes to the water returning to the landing only at long intervals to feed upon the flies that are thrown into the jar.

—The Christian Union (Mr. Beecher's paper) says:—"When one's feeling are heated with a sense of wrong, he earnestly desires some mode of expression. A worldly man gets relief by swearing. Good men reach the same end by a liberal use of controversial epithets. When a religious editor declares that a brother editor makes a statement knowing it to be untrue, he has only taken a peripbrastic way of saying 'd—n you!' That is the way the world looks at it."

—The war is getting into everything. Here is an oil region paper publishing an account of a prize-fight, from which we extract the following: Round 11—Both prompt at the scratch and get to work quickly; —— lands a mitralleuse-shot in ——'s mug, nearly closing his port pecper. —— chassepot back on his opponent's starboard harker. Round 12———'s mug looking seedy, his left optic turning a Bismarck color, etc.

—The hum of industry is a good thing, but there is some sort of industry that is nothing but hum.

DRY GOODS NOTICE.
☞ ON OR BEFORE October 1st, 1870, I shall withdraw from the firm now transacting business under the name and style of STEPHEN H. SIMES & Co., as it will be for the interest of both partners to reduce the Stock to as low a point as possible, without breaking up the usual good assortment, the Goods now on hand, or that should be received, (equal in quality and style to any to be found in New Hampshire) will be offered low.
With gratitude to very many kind friends who for a long series of years have honored me with their continuous patronage and to the public generally, I respectfully solicit a continuance.
All persons having demands against me will please present them for payment, and those indebted to the firm for goods purchased previous to January 1st, 1870, are respectfully requested to settle, as early as possible after this date. jy7

HAIR VIGOR,
For Restoring Gray Hair to its Natural Vitality and Color.
A Dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for Preserving the Hair. Faded or gray Hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use.
Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remains can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor, can only benefit but not harm it.
If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Portsmouth, N. H.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1870.

THE WAR. — The Twenty-Seventh Regiment of Chasseurs d'Afrique, commanded by Marquis de Galifet, attacked two regiments of Saxon dragoons of twice their number near Mouzon, and after a sharp fight succeeded in entirely routing them with considerable loss.

McMahon's army numbers 180,000.

The French army, under Marshal McMahon, Tuesday, engaged with the fourth Prussian army corps under the Prince of Saxony.

The march of the Prussians on Paris seems to be arrested.

Marshal McMahon continues his movements.

There has been no serious engagement yet.

Chalons has been evacuated entirely by the Prussians. Railroad trains go freely now as far as Rheims.

The Public says that McMahon is entirely free in his movements. He is in perfect communication with Marshal Bazaine, and both must be fighting the enemy.

A Prussian despatch says Bazaine is still cooped up. The German army has been ordered to camp as far as possible from the last battle-field, owing to the sickening exhalations.

Jay Cooke's London despatch says that the French advices report that McMahon by his tactics has succeeded in separating the forces of his opponent, and will deliver battle, with the most confident hopes of success.

Despatches received from Mezieres, adjacent to the Belgian frontier, state that a battle has been fought at Carignan in the department of the Ardennes, twenty-two miles E S E of Mezieres, between a flying column of the Fourth German Army Corps of the Crown Prince of Saxony and a part of McMahon's army. The battle is said to have resulted in a victory for the French, and discomfiture of the Prussians. A despatch from Berlin confirms the above.

Four hundred Arabs of the French army, captured in the late engagements by the Prussians and imprisoned in Germany, have escaped and returned to France.

COLORADO.—A new and rich silver mining district has recently been discovered in this territory, fifteen miles north-west of Central City, on the western boundary of Boulder County, and forty miles from Denver. About thirty ledges have been struck, and six or eight uncovered, showing the true fissure silver vein, and bearing the pay-rock crevices from two to five feet in width. There are five hundred men on the ground. The buildings are going up rapidly. Tons of rich ore are being hauled from the mines to the smelting works at Black Haw, daily. The veins so far developed give the impression that this is one of the richest silver regions yet discovered on this continent.

☞ A very estimable and worthy couple who have passed together 50 happy years managed to have the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day pass without the knowledge of their boys and girls, who would have been delighted to have done honor to the occasion, but the aforesaid boys and girls hope the "old folks" will live to see another 50th anniversary when they promise to be on hand.

New Hampshire Items.

Bethlehem has had five hundred summer boarders.

The crushers are in operation at the Lisbon gold mines, with satisfactory results.

Alfred Ward of Croyden has slaughtered two Leicester lambs, four months old, one of which weighed 105, and the other 102 pounds.

Forty new tents are being put upon the camp meeting ground at Alton.

William Ward of Meriden recently found a swarm of wild bees in a tree, which, upon cutting the tree yielded, 160 lbs. of pure honey. Some of the sheets of comb were nearly filled with honey.

☞ Two cars of the train on the Des Moines Valley Railroad were thrown down an embankment south of Des Moines, and were demolished. Eight men were killed, and fifteen seriously injured.

☞ The Carlist bands in the north of Spain have been defeated and dispersed wherever encountered. Hundreds of the insurgents fled to France, where they are promptly arrested.

☞ Alexander, the Illinois stock raiser, has planted only 5000 acres of corn this year, so his cattle will have to starve on 40,000 acres of pasture and mowing land.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

THE WAR.—What would the people gain by the triumphant victory of Prussia, or of France? This is an important question for them. Every nation in Europe is governed by a monarch—often an absolute despot. The people in some parts of Germany are well educated and intelligent; the Danes are better educated than the English; the government of Sweden in form is more like our own than any other government; it is said that the people of France exercise universal suffrage (but they act under the influence or subjection of the military power); yet in all these countries the absurd delusion (reversed in our country) is inculcated and generally believed, that all political power is derived from the king, or monarch of any kind or title. Under that belief, and through fear of standing armies, and not being sufficiently enlightened, although they have the physical power, they will not assert their natural rights, and establish free systems of government, like that the people of the United States happily enjoy.

It matters not to them, therefore, whether King William or the third Napoleon comes out of the war victorious. They must still remain under subjection to arbitrary government, although it is probable that should Napoleon be dethroned, more liberal principles would be adopted in France, although the people are not yet prepared for rational liberty and free institutions, under which the voice of the people may be expressed.

For what purpose, then, are two millions of soldiers arrayed against each other on the battle-field, and crimsoning the plains with their blood? It is not for the interests of freedom. It is true that Napoleon waged the war, and therefore Prussia was justified in repelling the invasion of her territory and domestic hearths. For that reason, and because there was no justifiable cause whatever for declaring the war, the sympathies of the American nation generally are with Prussia and her allies. But could not the King and his brave minister Bismarck, call upon the nations of Europe to interfere in various ways to prevent the effusion of blood, and prevent other nations from being involved in all the horrors of war? False pride, and obstinate self-will, were the obstacles in the way.

When we reflect upon the folly and wickedness of this war, we ought to rejoice that should our chief Executive, united with Congress, dare to wage war in opposition to the voice of the people, their career as legislators would soon end. May the time soon come when the European nations, enlightened by our example, will put an end to all arbitrary governments.

We may not expect great achievements in the interests of liberty from any of the crowned heads of Europe, for it is not their intention to liberalize their forms of government. The larger and stronger their empires, the easier it is for each ruler to rivet still closer the chains of his people. So long as large armies can be supported, just so long the people will remain enslaved and powerless. It is not the visions of glory, and great victories on the battle-field, that can make a nation prosperous and happy; but the advance of the arts and sciences, the promotion of agriculture and commerce, education and morals, and all the industrial pursuits of life. SENEX.

ANOTHER OLD CITIZEN GONE.—It becomes our painful duty to announce the death of Hopley Drew, one of the very oldest citizens of Ottawa. He died at his residence in this city at 2 1-2 o'clock on Tuesday morning, July 26.

Hopley Drew was a native of Durham, New Hampshire. In 1832 he left his native village for the west, making his first stopping place at Detroit, where, soon after his arrival, he was treated to an attack of the cholera. Not relishing such a reception, he left on his recovery, and in 1833, settled at Ottawa, Illinois, where he resided until his death.

For years his occupation was that of cabinet making; then he changed his business to that of manufacturing agricultural implements, and was the founder of what is now the large plow factory of Joseph Maierhofer; but his health failing, he had, for the last six or eight years, been out of business entirely.

Ottawa has had few citizens more universally esteemed than Hopley Drew. Rigidly honorable in all his business affairs, kind hearted, liberal always to the full extent of his means, public spirited, genial and companionable, few men could boast a larger circle of warm personal friends, with so few if any enemies. His funeral, on Wednesday, was attended by a large concourse of our older citizens, as well as numerous mourning friends and relatives. His age was 65 years.—Ottawa Free Trader.

Mr. Drew was a brother to Miss Nancy Drew of Newington.

HOW'S THIS?—The New York Mail says small women seldom dress well, and the reason is that they imagine themselves as tall as every one else.

ELECTRICITY AND THE INDIANS.—Our North American Indians pride themselves on their indifference to pain. They bear with only occasional grunts the severest tortures inflicted upon them by their enemies. But according to the following, an electrical battery was rather more than a match for a certain savage chief. Those who have themselves been "doubled up" by a machine of this kind, will appreciate the feelings of the "big Injun."

Our Piute Indians are of an inquiring turn of mind, and always flock around at any kind of street show, where they will stand for hours, stretching their necks over the shoulders of the white spectators, drinking in through open eyes and mouths the wonders before them. Sunday afternoon last, quite a crowd of white men and the usual sprinkling of Piutes were gathered about the electrical machine which was in full blast near the corner of C and Union streets. Several whites had bought two bits' worth of the artificial lightning, when a "big Injun," whose raiment consisted chiefly of a big turkey feather and a few daubs of red paint, marched up in a drove by himself, like Baxter's hog, and became a customer to the peddler of home-made lightning. He seized upon the handles of the machine, and the man at the wheel began to grind. So deep was the silence that reigned in the expectant crowd, that you might have heard the blowing of a nose. Presently the painted warrior began to show signs of uneasiness.

He evidently felt thrills and things—twitches, for instance, His grim countenance became grimmer, then grimmest. There was a fearful working of his facial muscles; his eyes began to goggle; the paint on his cheek bones cracked and fell off in flakes; he tried to drop the handles of the machine, but they stuck to his fingers. "Hi-you," cried he, "no good-ee!" Stan you nana! You stop-ee wagon—whoa haw; d—l!" Hereupon he began a wild sort of war dance, his fingers still upon the keys of the machine, as though playing an accompaniment on the piano. "Hi, you d—l, do im small—me plenty two bits." "The "wagon" being stopped, the "noble red man" made a break through the crowd at a rapid rate.—Ex.

SCANDAL IN MERRIMAC COUNTY.—In a certain county in the State which possesses a county farm a great immorality has shocked the community. The chief of the county fathers is a married man, but he keeps his family at some distance from the county farm, where he spends the most of the time when faithful and devoted husbands are to be found in the bosoms of their families. Among the wards of the county above mentioned are several small children, whose mental and physical wants it was necessary to provide for. So the chief of the county fathers provides a convenient female to take in charge the budding intellectual and moral growth of these pauper children. A room is fitted up for her in the county farm-house adjoining, and communicating with the one which was set apart for the sole and exclusive use of the chief of the county fathers. In due course of time, and as a natural consequence of human depravity and unbridled passion, the services of some unscrupulous disciple of Esculapius were called in to prevent the consequences from speaking for themselves.—Nashua Telegraph.

OFFICIAL VISIT.—Monday evening Joseph H. Gardiner of Portsmouth, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. of this State, paid a visit, in his official capacity, to Rumford Lodge of Odd Fellows of this city. The work was reviewed in a critical but friendly manner by the Grand Master, and the visit was a highly profitable one for the Lodge and gratifying to the inspecting officer.—Concord Patriot.

☞ The Louisville Courier Journal says "if it be true that Chicago has but three hundred thousand inhabitants instead of four hundred thousand, then one hundred thousand men, women and children are to be warmly congratulated that they have never been born."

☞ The military career of King William I. of Prussia extends over a period of fifty-five years. He was born in 1797 and was present at the battle of Waterloo, being then but eighteen years of age. He should have died long ago.

More than 500,000 people bear testimony to the wonderful curative effects of Dr. Pierce's Alt Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery. It cures Bronchitis, and the worst lingering coughs. As an anti-Bilious medicine for Liver Complaint it has no equal. It permanently cures constipation of the bowels, cleanses and purifies the blood and thereby cures Scrofulous and Syphilitic taints, and all diseases of the skin, as pimples, Blotches, Boils, Rashes and Eruptions. Sold by druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Sound Logic For the Sick.

The invalid has often good reasons to exclaim, "save me from my friends." As a general thing, each of them will have a different medicine to propose, and if he follows all their prescriptions in turn, their well-meant advice may be the death of him. The only sensible course in any case of sickness is to resort promptly to a specific which has stood the test of a long and widely extended public experience, and obtained on solid and sufficient grounds the reputation of a Standard Remedy. This rank among the restoratives of our day belongs of right, and beyond all dispute, to HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Let those who are taking it at this debilitating season as an invigorant answer for themselves as to its tonic properties. Can any dyspeptic, who has ever used it, question its superiority as a stomachic over every other medicine? Can any person of bilious habit, who has ever taken it for liver complaint doubt its efficiency? It is believed among the tens of thousands who are now using, or who have used it as an alterative and corrective, not one can be found who would exchange it for any other preparation in the known world. For intermittent fevers, nervous debility, constipation, sick stomach, and all complaints arising from indigestion or impoverishment of the blood, it is the only article which can be conscientiously guaranteed, and no one who is thoroughly acquainted with its virtues will allow interested dealers in worthless slops, on which they make a larger profit, to furnish them in the place of the great vegetable restorative.

Vegetable "Pain Killer,"

After THIRTY YEARS trial, is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues, from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Physicians of the first respectability recommend it as a most effectual preparation for the extinction of pain. It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, &c., but for Dysentery or Cholera, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Canker, Asthma and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved by the most abundant and convincing testimony, to be an invaluable medicine. Sold by all druggists. dawlmsl

THE HISTORICAL VISIT.—The Maine Society had a very interesting meeting at the York Cong. Church, Tuesday evening; and on Wednesday morning proceeded in carriages furnished by the citizens, to Kittery. A visit was first paid to the Navy Yard, where Mr. Bacon shew them over the grounds, buildings and ships; and after dinner with the residents at Navy Yard village, the party proceeded to Kittery Point, where the afternoon was spent among the relics of Sir Wm. Pepperell and others of fame. In the evening, a historical conference meeting was held in the Church, and the party, comprising about thirty gentlemen and ladies, spent the night with the townspeople.

This morning, they are to visit this city, and will breakfast at the Rockingham House.

Communication.

Messrs. Editors;—I cordially endorse your article in favor of Free Bridges and think the amount needed to buy them is so small that a prompt movement to that effect would speedily accomplish it. Why not call a public meeting for the purpose? I do not doubt that nine-tenths of our legal voters would favor the proposition. Why not make the City Farm pay for Free Bridges?

Our correspondent may be right in his estimate and may be a little sanguine of success. A public meeting of the voters of this city, however, can only advise such action. The City Council have all the necessary power in the premises without an appeal to the popular vote. No doubt they would investigate the subject if properly brought before them by petition, and if they should then refuse to act, the voters have power to elect a City Council in a few months, if they wish, who will vote for the purchase of the bridges.

THAT, THAT NEVER WAS, NOW IS, say Delehanty, Hengler & Bloodgood, and the change which has come in the style of minstrelsy is largely due to their individual exertions. The trio are as happy on the stage as schoolboys on a holiday, and are equally loose footed. For this evening a tempting programme is offered. Delehanty and Hengler are to bring out their ever welcome silver clogs, Senegambian gambols and the double songs and dances known as "Shoo Fly," Come and Kiss me" and "Where the Woodbine twineth." Bloodgood has a burlesque on "Louis and I," as well as two other laughable acts and an original oration suited to the present time. Happy Dave Holbrook, Seaver, the Daily brothers and Freeman sisters are, we think, new comers, but whether good, bad or indifferent performers (and we have no doubt of their being among the first named,) it is very evident that the people who will fill the Temple, this evening, will be surfeited with good things and will have an opportunity to laugh and grow fat.

From the Dover Local Record.

DOVER AND PORTSMOUTH RAILROAD. It is expected that the cars will run on the Portland and Rochester R. R. to Springvale by the 12th of October. The grading will be up and a portion of the track laid.

Workmen are now engaged in grading the bed of the proposed Portland & Rochester Railroad near "Blaisdell's Corner," so called, about one mile from East Rochester.

These two items show better than anything else could, what pluck and persistency will do in building a railroad.

We have now had a charter for a railroad from Dover to Portsmouth for twenty years, or thereabouts, and yet not one blow has been struck toward building it. If it had been commenced ten years ago, and built as far as Sawyer's, long ere this the cars of the Eastern R. R. would have been seen in the depot of the Dover & Portsmouth R. R. There are reasons why this consummation, so longed wished for, has not been accomplished patent to any body looking in the right direction. The first is, we have never struck the first blow; and the second is too many Directors of the D. & P. R. R. have had, and are now having Free Passes on the Boston & Maine.

What we need is, a bran new deal all around for Directors, and public meetings of the people in Dover and Portsmouth favorable to the building of the road.

Less than five per cent. of the valuation of these cities will build it, and a vote could be obtained in Dover, loaning its credit to that amount, at ten day's notice.

In view of the success which has attended the Portland & Rochester against ten times the difficulties which stand in the way of the Dover & Portsmouth, let the citizens of these cities so intimately connected as they are, or ought to be, call public meetings, and see if something cannot be done to secure the building of this important railroad between us and Boston, and Portsmouth and the interior. Will the people of Dover and Portsmouth second our suggestion?

☞ A correspondent of the Elizabeth, N. J., Journal, writes:

A convenient way out of Boston is to take a train that lands you at the city of Portsmouth. Here you will find a splendid hotel, the Rockingham; and if you have the pleasure of the acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. George Vandenhoff, you must call at their elegant and stately and capacious mansion, guarded as it is by two noble elms. You will answer all the questions of Mr. and Mrs. V. about Elizabeth and Elizabeth's children, and if the hospitable Captain's wife happens in, as she luckily happened when we were there, you will hear the adventures of a plucky yankee woman, who spent several months with her husband (whose ship was burned) on the famous rebel Alabama.

Pleasant drives are in the vicinity of Portsmouth, and a trip to the "Isle of Shoals" is a matter of daily delight. I will always remember Portsmouth with pleasure. My companion tried hard to divert me from the mountains; he found some ladies going to the famous shoals and he almost got me in deep water, but I persisted, and we started inland.

AT 90 AND INTEREST,

Interest payable May and November.

J. EDGAR THOMPSON, CHARLES L. FROST, } Trustees.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the earnings from the finished portion are already more than sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work is progressing rapidly, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this line, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par, be sides paying about 9 per cent. currency, interest in the meanwhile. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices only return five per cent.; and we regard the security equally safe.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

FOR ALL PURPOSES of a LAXATIVE MEDICINE,

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cases are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by any body. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore the appetite.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required, and other cases demand but a DINNER PILL, take one or two PILLS to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these PILLS makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. dawje17eod4m

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twenty-four application, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

HOT AND COLD BATHS AT ALL HOURS, At the Rockingham House.

Morning Chronicle.

A STORY OF A GARTER.

Just at four o'clock one dazzling afternoon last February, two young persons, opposite genders, took sudden possession of a neat sleigh, muffled themselves together in a manner intended to secure as far as possible the double advantage of comforting protection and engaging appearance, and after judicious settlement of skirts and robes on the one hand and hats and furs on the other, darted briskly off, along the smooth and shining roads of Winston. Clear and still, and not at all chilling, was the atmosphere. The sun shed all its splendor from a cloudless sky, and the spotless earth radiantly reflected its glittering beams. The two sleighers with whom we have to do agreed without debate that no other day so favorable for their excursion could have been selected, and in turn went into spasms of rhetorical excitement over the glories of winter—in its present cheering aspect.

Not having accustomed themselves to the assiduous study of nature, they failed to exactly interpret certain omens which might otherwise have interfered with their innocent enthusiasm. Of course neither had noticed the night before, the broad circle of luminous haze that surrounded the moon, giving warning of approaching disorder above. Of course neither considered, as they dashed along heeding only their own pleasant fancies, the light clouds which, rapidly rising, soon overspread the southern heaven, and gradually threatened to obscure the declining sun. What need had they to anticipate the possible interruption of their sport?

None, certainly. Their aim was pleasure.

Lucy Bragdon, nineteen, daintily beautiful, and coquettish by unconquerable feminine instinct, filled the hearts of the youths of Winston, and above all, those gathered within the institution for the wholesale manufacture of clergymen for which Winston is celebrated, with frenzies.

The secular youth swore she was an angel. The students, whose destiny was theological, did not swear, but after investigating the subject, and finding that angels were sometimes imperfect and infallible, proclaimed her divine, and in their orisons remembered her.

In this way they satisfied all the conditions of their college life. Inside the walls they were divinity students; outside they were students of divinity.

In consequence it may be revealed that Miss Lucy's highest attributes were, in fact, of a moral order. She was not a bit of an angel; but she is what is much better for the purposes of this world—a charming girl, with beauty enough to wind golden chains around susceptible young hearts, and with enough to fasten with glittering clasps whenever she chose. At the same time she was as amiable as could be expected of a spirited young woman who ruled a subservient seminary with a rod more rigid than any of the professors could wield; she was, with all her frolicsome coquetry, as discreet as a dowager, and she was not destitute of good sense, a powerful proof of which was that she never wrote her name Lucie. Nevertheless, it is a melancholy fact that many of the maidens of Winston refused to recognize those infatuating qualities, which by the ruder creatures were unanimously accorded her.

After a considerable period of supreme sway, wishing for something new to conquer, she fell in with Mr. Henry (so christened, but popularly denominated Harry) Langford, a fine young fellow with no theological aspirations, who had come to Winston to look after some long neglected relations. Clever and well-dressed, and with a heavenly curl to his hair, he interested Miss Brandon, who forthwith smiled upon him, and bated her flirtation books with most delicate fascinations. With a shade of surprise, she observed that her intended victim succeeded in reaping the full benefits of the baits, and yet refused to be caught. Upon this, she became shy, and he commenced a promiscuous assault upon the affections of every available young woman he encountered. As soon as it was evident that they understood each other, they began to laugh. Consultation followed. From laughing at one another they turned to laughing at Miss Brandon's troop of suppliant admirers. I am sorry to say that the young lady betrayed confidence.

She told him how one especially devout adorer was continually quoting scriptural puffs to her; and how another, of entomological turn of mind, would insist on comparing her to new and exquisite specimens of bugs. Then he told her quite maliciously how precarious her rule was, and cruelly likened her position to that of a keeper in a lunatic asylum, whose strength lies in his confidence that his subordinates, having lost their wits, possess no power of combination among themselves to defeat his plans. Occasionally Miss Brandon was a little tart; sometimes Mr. Langford was a little rude; but they usually kept within amiable bounds, and were understood to be excellent friends—nothing more!

Not one of Miss Lucy's devotees ever thought it worth while to look upon Henry Langford with eyes of green indignation. He was in no degree rapturous about her; she often snubbed him. An infinitesimal quarrel between them had once been detected. Besides he was not a resident; only a visitor, whose opportunities were limited.

Moreover it is a fact that no two persons were more profoundly convinced of their absolute indifference to one another than Miss Brandon and Mr. Langford themselves.

They had given much private thought to the subject (there was the danger), and had satisfied themselves that they were, as everybody understood, excellent friends—nothing more.

Nevertheless, it happened that Mr. Langford was suddenly overcome by a sense of shame at his want of family feeling in so long neglecting his Winston relations. So he endeavored to repair old errors by frequent visits, and established an extensive acquaintance in the neighborhood. He grew fond of social gayeties. He cultivated all Winston. At every important gathering he was made welcome.

At last the winter came, and everybody knows how delightful the winter is in a New England country town, where the thermometer never by an excess of exaltation gets more than an occasional degree or so above the 0; where frozen noses are seen at over corner, and are deemed neither uncommon or unornamental, while frozen toes are accepted almost in the light of luxury; where ice-cream indissolubly associated with breakfast, and where for many months, life is but a perpetual shiver. Mr. Langford, anxious to experience all these joys came up to Winston in the middle of February to remain two days, bringing with him baggage sufficient for three weeks, to which term, after much interchange of entreaty on exactly opposite sides, he was induced to extend his visit.

The first time he met Miss Bragdon he tempted her with the suggestion of a sleigh-ride. Said he, "A sleigh-ride in winter is seldom amiss," and was therefore sharply criticised of admitting the possibility of such a thing at any other season. However, Miss Bragdon consented. She would ride with him the next afternoon.

In the morning Mr. Henry Langford gravely inspected the family stable, but found nothing therein equal to his own idea of the magnitude of the occasion. At the public stable he was more successful. At first he contemplated the luxurious magnificence of a span, but an irresistible impulse subsequently induced him to settle upon a single course. (One horse may be driven with one hand!) It is difficult to imagine what impelled him to seek with such pertinacity as he did for the narrowest sleigh in the collection.

At 4 o'clock P. M. the light-hearted young pair dashed away, as full of good natured glee as the sleigh was full of them—and they fitted very compactly. Miss Bragdon, knowing the country more intimately than her companion, undertook to point the way, a manner of proceeding quite agreeable, in view of the male creature's total ignorance of localities. They glided on, turning hither and thither, until ere long they left the clustering cottages of Winston quite a distance behind. For a while both chatted and laughed with a vigor that put them into a precious glow; but by-and-by Mr. Henry stopped short, in an unaccountable manner, and left Miss Lucy to do the declamation, contenting himself with watching the sparkle of her eye, or the pretty curve of her lip, as she threw out incessant little smart sprinkles of feminine wit. Presently he observed with wonder a faint suspicion of a flutter trembling through him, and attributed it to their rapid motion, recollecting similar sensations in early youth, caused by swinging.

He must have expressed something odd in his countenance, for, of a sudden, Miss Lucy cut short her fun, and subsided into a dim, oblivious tranquility. Just one minute after it flashed upon Mr. Henry Langford that he had for the past six months being steadily and uninterruptedly occupied in making a muff of himself; that the notion of "excellent friendship," so far as he and Lucy Bragdon were concerned, was utterly absurd and degrading to think upon; that the truth was he loved her dearly, and that he ought to have known it long ago, and should if he had ever before been alone with her, as he had now found himself. Having settled all this to his own satisfaction, he took courage and a bold step:

To be continued to-morrow.

OLD FOLKS,

YOUNG FOLKS,

ALL FOLKS,

WHO ARE WEAK, whose appetite is poor, whose blood needs iron, who are bilious, whose stomach and nerves need to be strengthened, will be benefitted by

FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,

FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,

FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,

It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Liver is acted on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the vegetable tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the digestion of Iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.

MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel to act on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect medicine. It purifies the blood and imparts IRON to it. It acts on the Liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is a most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons whose blood is poor, and who need Iron and a strengthening medicine. 2meodawjy25

DUPONCO'S GOLDEN PILL.

FOR FEMALES.

Infallible in correcting irregularities, and removing obstructions of the monthly periods. It is over forty years since these now so well known pills were first brought to notice by Dr. Duponco, of Paris, during which time they have been extensively and successfully used by some of the leading physicians, with unparalleled success. Ladies in poor health, either married or single, suffering from any of the Complaints peculiar to Females, will find the Duponco Golden Pills invaluable, viz., General Debility, Headache, Faintness, Loss of Appetite, Mental Depression, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Loins, Bearing-down Pains, Palpitation of the Heart, Retained, Excessive, Irregular or Painful Menstruation, Rush of Blood to Head, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Fatigue on any slight exertion, and particularly that most annoying, weakening ailment, so common among Females, both married and single, the Leucorrhœa or Whites. Females in every period of life will find Duponco's Pills a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. They invigorate the debilitated and delicate, and by regulating and strengthening the system, prepare the youthful constitution for the duties of life, and when taken by those in middle life or old age they prove a perfect blessing. There is nothing in the pills that can do injury to life or health. Sale in their operation, perpetual in their happy influences upon the Nerves, the Mind and the entire organization. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor, N. Y. ALVAN LITTLEFIELD, Boston, Agent, N. E. States.

Ladies by enclosing $1 by mail will have the Pills sent confidentially to any address.

"SOUNDING BRASS."—The democratic candidate for Congress in Delaware, Benjamin T. Biggs, accepts his renomination in the following big explosion: "In the presence of this people and Almighty God, I declare the fifteenth amendment a monstrous fraud. Hear, O, earth, and give ear, O! heavens! in the Senate of the United States sits a dirty, thieving nigger preacher,"—and more to the same effect.—The Scotch have a most expressive term to designate a noisy, blatant, empty-headed fellow,—they call him "a mouth." Mr. Biggs is evidently a big "mouth," of the mouthiest kind. No wonder Delaware exalts the whipping-post and scorns the common school, when her representative men are such highfalutin wind-bags.

—A few days ago a New Bedford lady, who lives near a church in that city, was sitting by the window listening to the crickets, which were loudly chirping, the music from the choir rehersal being faintly audible, when a gentleman dropped in familiarly, who had just passed the church and had the music all in his mind. "What a noise they are making to-night," said he. "Yes," replied the lady, "and it is said they do it with their hind legs!"

—During Thursday evening last, two women in New Haven were so frightened by the thunder and lightning that they went into convulsions and endured the most excruciating agony. At one time it took six strong able-bodied men to hold them.

—A John Chinaman had heard the quotation, "We have piped unto you, but you have not danced," and thus reproduced it: "We toot-tooted unto you, why you no for makee jumpee?"

—A wise physician once said: "I observe that every one wishes to go to Heaven, but I observe also that most people are willing to take a great deal of very disagreeable medicine first."

—The first day a little boy went to school, the teacher asked him if he could spell. "Yes, sir." "Well how do you spell boy?" "Oh, just as other folks do?"

—A Wisconsin paper mentions a case where burglars broke into a store, but the goods were marked so high that they would not take any away.

— The whole town of St. Cloud, Minn., turned out to hunt the only rat ever seen north of Minneapolis.

OLD FOLKS,
YOUNG FOLKS,
ALL FOLKS,

WHO ARE WEAK, whose appetite is poor, whose blood needs iron, who are bilious, whose stomach and nerves need to be strengthened, will be benefitted by

FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,
FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP,

It excels all other Iron preparations in the combination with Mandrake and Vegetable Tonics, so that the Liver is acted on to remove bile and impurities from the system, while the vegetable tonics strengthen the stomach and promote the digestion of Iron with the food and its absorption into the blood. It renovates the system and is the best medicine.

MANDRAKE is the Great Vegetable substitute for calomel to act on liver. In FREEMAN'S IRON MANDRAKE SYRUP it is combined with Iron and Vegetable Tonics, and forms the most perfect medicine. It purifies the blood and imparts IRON to it. It acts on the Liver and removes foul humors from the body. It is a most excellent remedy for debility, especially for mothers who are worn down by nursing infants, and for all persons whose blood is poor, and who need Iron and a strengthening medicine. 3meodawjy25

DRY GOODS NOTICE.
☞ ON OR BEFORE October 1st, 1870, I shall withdraw from the firm now transacting business under the name and style of STEPHEN H. SIMES & Co., as it will be for the interest of both partners to reduce the Stock to as low a point as possible, without breaking up the usual good assortment, the Goods now on hand, or that may be received, (equal in quality and style to any to be found in New Hampshire) will be offered low.
With gratitude to very many kind friends who for a long series of years have honored me with their continuous patronage and to the public generally, I respectfully solicit a continuance.
All persons having demands against me will please present them for payment, and those indebted to the firm for goods purchased previous to January 1st, 1870, are respectfully requested to settle, as early as possible after this date. jy7
